WILSON, SHOCKED AT JAILING MILITANTS, MAY ADVOCATE 'VOTES FOR WOMEN' AS PART OF WAR EMERGENCY PROGRAM

SEES PRISONER'S HUSBAND

J. A. H. Hopkins Reports the President's Desire to Aid Suffrage Cause.

BATTLE MAY ARGUE APPEAL

Has a Conference with Malone, Who Visits Women Prisoners at the Workhouse.

PLAN FOR PAYING FINES

Arrangements Made for Releasing Prisoners Who Will Consent to Accept Freedom.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—The situation produced by the imprisonment of sixteen suffragettes in the District of Columbia Workhouse for displaying banners near the White House took a new turn tonight, when the husband of one of the imprisoned women, J. A. H. Hopkins of Morristown, N. J., after a forty-five-minute interview with President Wilson, issued a statement in which he indicated that the President would consider making national woman suffrage legislation a part of his war emergency program. Mr. Hopkins did not say so directly, but he left the impression that the President, deeply shocked over the arrest and imprisonment of the women, was anxious to do something to conform to the "votes for women" sentiment. Mr. Hopkins is the Chairman of the Progressive State Committee of New Jersey. He supported President Wilson's candidacy in the last Presidential campaign.

Dudley Field Malone, Collector of Customs for the Port of New York, went twice today to Occoquan, Va., where the District of Columbia Workhouse is located, to consult the sixteen women in whose behalf he appeared as counsel when they were on trial in the local police court. Occoquan is twenty-five miles from Washington by road, and Mr. Malone made the two round trips in a motor car.

After Mr. Malone's return from the second visit it was made known that George Gordon Battle of New York would probably be retained to represent some of the convicted women in appeal proceedings. Mr. Battle came to Washington tonight in connection with the case, and was in consultation at the Shoreham Hotel with Collector Malone and others interested. They were joined by George Creel, Chairman of the Committee on Public Information, but it was said afterward that Mr. Creel just happened to be present, and did not take part in the conference.

Most of the suffragette prisoners refuse to make an appeal, but it seems likely that a few of them may take the case to an upper court. It is expected that when Mr. Battle or some other prominent lawyer has been retained by the women Mr. Malone will not appear actively in the case as legal adviser.

Arrangements were made today by which money may be deposited with the Superintendent of the workhouse, which he will accept in payment of the fines imposed on the women whenever any of them care to leave the institution. None of the prisoners has yet decided to take this means of obtaining release.

Stories brought to Washington today by visitors to the workhouse in regard to the treatment of the suffragette prisoners have aroused members of the Woman's Party, and it was announced that on Saturday they would send thirty-six pickets to display banners near the President's official residence, with the intention of keeping alive the issue they have raised.

Some of those who visited Occoquan represented the treatment of the suffragettes by the workhouse authorities as unnecessarily humiliating. They said, for instance, that the picketers were quartered last night in a dormitory with negro women prisoners. A man whose wife is among the prisoners said at the Woman's Party headquarters this evening that he had information that a Cabinet officer was directing the Washington police and the District of Columbia authorities in their repressive measures toward the White House pickets.

Mrs. Abby Scott Baker, the wife of a Washington physician and Chairman of the Press Committee of the Woman's Party, went to New York last night to arrange for a mass meeting to protest against the sentences imposed on the suffragettes, and it was reported that she would appeal to Colonel Roosevelt to espouse the cause of the militants and oppose President Wilson on that issue. One of those at the headquarters of the Woman's Party said that the report that Mrs. Baker would appeal to Colonel Roosevelt was true. Another denied it.

Mr. Malone continued to decline to say anything in regard to the report that he had tendered his resignation as Collector in order to take up the cudgels on behalf of the suffragettes, but it was learned in other quarters that Mr. Malone had not submitted a letter of resignation.

Hopkins's Interview With President Wilson, Which May Lead to Triumph for Suffrage

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—After J. A. H. Hopkins, Progressive National Committeeman from New Jersey, had conferred with President Wilson on the suffragist situation today, he was impressed with the idea that President Wilson had been deeply shocked at the whole affair, and on learning the circumstances has had only one thought, namely, to straighten the matter out. The President asked Mr. Hopkins for a suggestion as to what might be done, and the latter replied that, in view of the seriousness of the situation, the only solution lay in the immediate passage of the Susan B. Anthony amendment.

One of the suggestions that evidently had been made to the President was for a pardon for the women from the workhouse. This suggestion seemed to appeal to the President, but it was apparent that this would be only a temporary relief, since the picketing would undoubtedly continue and the agitation go on until the entire question was settled.

The President discussed the advisability of treating the suffrage amendment as a war emergency measure and asked for data which would throw light on the question of whether it would be likely to pass Congress with the necessary majority if he should add it to his war emergency program. Mr. Hopkins volunteered to furnish him a canvass of the House and Senate which would be quite convincing on this line.

EXPECT DRAFT TO NEW ARMY FRIDAY

PROBLEM OF PUBLICATION

Enormous Task of Transmitting and Printing Lists—Plan to Include Ally Aliens.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—Advices today to Brig. Gen. Crowder, Provost Marshal General, indicated that the national lottery to determine the order of liability of 10,000,000 men registered for military service could be held next Friday. Preparations to make the drawing on that day went ahead rapidly, although a final decision as to the date cannot be made until the last Governor has actually reported that the local exemption boards in his State have finished their task.

All States except three—New York, Pennsylvania, and Michigan—had reported their local lists numbered for the drawing when the Provost Marshal General's office closed tonight. Officials said they had reports to indicate that these States would report themselves ready tomorrow, so the drawing could be held Friday.

Details of the mechanism to be employed in the drawing have not been revealed. It is known definitely, however, that present plans are for the lottery to take place in the Capitol, with the members of the Senate and House Military Committees as witnesses. The entire proceeding is not expected to take much more than one hour.

General Crowder was in conference today with the newspaper correspondents over arrangements for the drawing. The press is relied upon to carry to individuals throughout the country the information as to when they will be required to appear before exemption boards, and for that reason every effort is being made to suit the convenience of the papers as to details.

The task of transmitting the long lists of numbers by telegraph is a problem of considerable proportions, but the press associations and telegraph companies are making efforts to insure both speed and absolute accuracy in transmission. There is more concern over the task of the individual newspapers after they receive by wire the results of the drawing. In large communities the problems of printing the serial number with the names of the men they represent in each district attached is one of staggering proportions.

In New York City, where there are 189 of the 4,557 local exemption districts, a list of the names and numbers would fill several hundred newspaper columns. Even to give sufficient names and numbers, to cover those likely to be called to the colors immediately, means enormous work.

While the Provost Marshal General's office was busy clearing up the last details for the drawing, the problem of alien registrants, other than enemy aliens, came before the Senate in a resolution introduced by Senator Chamberlain, Chairman of the Military Committee. It provides for the drafting for military service of citizens of countries at war with Germany who are now residing in the United States upon the same terms as those to which American citizens are liable under the National Army bill.

The resolution seeks to meet the views of the State Department, however, by excepting from its action citizens of countries which have treaties with the United States prohibiting the enforced military employment of the nationals of each party in the territory of the other. There has been no indication whether it will have Administration approval.

A resolution declaring that the Secretaries of War and Commerce in fixing the quotas of the States and territories on the basis of registration and not on the basis of population have acted illegally; and calling upon them to furnish the House with their reasons for "so ignoring the express provisions of the conscription law," was introduced today by Representative McCulloch of Ohio.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—An order made public by the War Department today assigns First Lieutenant Quentin Roosevelt of the Aviation Section of the Signal Officers' Reserve Corps to active duty, and directs him to proceed to Fort Wood, N. Y., to report to Captain James E. Miller of the Aviation Section of the Signal Corps for assignment to duty.

OUR TROOPS HAVE FOOD FOR 3 MONTHS

American Army to be Only One Eating White Bread and Biggest Meat Consumer.

GIFTS FROM FRANCE BARRED

Quartermaster's Department Is Puzzled Over the Disposition of Champagnes and Wines.

By The Associated Press.

AMERICAN TRAINING CAMP IN FRANCE, July 18.—The busiest of all the American troop departments these days is the Quartermaster's, which is working almost feverishly to perfect its system of supplying the men with all the necessities. The work has gone ahead so fast that the Quartermaster already has a three months' supply of all foods within a short distance of the camp and a constant ten days' supply here.

The troops are still eating the dark French bread which is being paid for with American flour, but within three days bakeries will have been established, and the rations will change to white bread with a heavy crust, that makes it transportable and durable. The American Army will, then be the only one in Europe eating white bread. It is today the biggest meat consumer, as the men receive a ration of twenty ounces daily.

The American soldiers are now living on the field ration, which consists of twenty ounces of fresh beef daily, or twelve ounces of bacon, or sixteen ounces of canned meat, or sixteen ounces of canned salmon; eighteen ounces of soft or eighteen ounces of hard bread, or flour or beans; twenty ounces of potatoes, with a similar amount of onions or tomatoes; an ounce and a quarter of coffee and three ounces of sugar, with salt, pepper and syrup, as well as prunes, dried apples or peaches or jam. When the supplies all arrive there will also be butter, which will be distributed as an extra on special occasion.

The entire plan of the Quartermaster's Department is to be entirely independent of the French at the earliest date possible, so as to be no burden either to the Government or the population.

The department is still trying to decide what to do with the gift made by the French Government to the American troops, in honor of July 14, the French national holiday, consisting of champagne, red wines, jellies, ham and other delicacies. There is a considerable quantity of champagne and red wine for each soldier and officer, but for the present the authorities have not been able to to decide whether the distribution of these wines would be in violation of the spirit of the recent legislation covering the question of liquor to soldiers.

So far, the troops have been rigidly held to water, even though the difficulties of filtering are considerable. Refrigerating plants will be necessary both for water and food supplies, and recommendations for the construction of these plants have already gone forward.

Practice today began early, as usual, despite dismal weather. It included anti-aircraft practice, which was pronounced highly successful.

The first death occurred at the camp yesterday, when Private Nolan of the infantry was drowned.

The latest development of the camp is a Post Office, which will enable men to mail letters either home or to any other point in the world, to keep in constant communication with friends without revealing their exact whereabouts by the tell-tale cancellation mark on envelopes, and to receive mail either through families or friends who do not know what the destination of their letters may be. The system naturally will be enlarged to fit the needs.

At present it consists in requiring of each soldier or officer that he address his communications of every nature from the American training camp and deposit them in a special Post Office from where they will be taken by pouch to Paris and mailed in the ordinary manner. Similarly return mail should be addressed to the training camp of the American expeditionary forces, Paris, whence it will be forwarded to the proper address.

Germany to Propose General Disarmament and Compulsory Arbitration, Paris Hears

PARIS, July 18.—A dispatch to the Tempe from Geneva says the German Government, according to reliable information, meditates the dramatic proposal to its enemies and to the world of a complete disarmament except for sufficient forces to maintain compulsory peace by compulsory arbitration.

"The German Government," says the Temps, "while allowing the solution of the internal crisis to appear as a success for the Pan Germanists, has in view a manoeuvre of a quite different aspect. The bellicose declarations which resound, and will perhaps continue in Berlin, will be nothing but the prologue, designed to represent Germany as invincible. Afterward, perhaps sooner than is expected, will come the theatrical initiative in which Germany will show a disposition to disarm."

PUTS PETROGRAD IN ARMY'S CONTROL

Russian Government's Action Follows Renewed Outbreaks by Maximalist Anarchists.

STREET FIGHTING SEVERE

Six Persons Killed and 238 Wounded—Council Denounces Rebellious Regiments.

PETROGRAD, July 18.—At a conference of Ministers and Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates last evening, following fresh outbreaks by the Maximalists, it was decided to place the city under martial control. General Polovtseff, Governor of the military district, was summoned and instructed to use all the loyal troops to put down the insurrection. As a result he ordered out the Cossacks and several companies of infantry to patrol the streets.

A majority of the regiments of the Petrograd garrison and most of the armored motor car detachments are supporting the Government. A machine gun regiment stationed at Strielna has signified its willingness to come to the Government's aid.

The city today was quiet under a continuous downpour of rain.

Yesterday's disturbances, which resulted in a list of casualties, so far as ascertained, of six persons killed and 238 wounded, were a repetition of those of the day before, except that they occurred at 2 o'clock in the afternoon whereas the first outbreak occurred around midnight. The manifestants were grouped along the same part of the Nevsky Prospect. A number of stray shots were heard, followed by the firing of rifles against upper windows and rooftops at a seemingly imaginary foe.

Cossacks Put to Flight.

One of the first clashes occurred on Troitsky Bridge, where the Cossacks met a body of armed demonstrants. The Cossacks were armed only with sabres. A brisk fire was opened by the insurrectionists, whereup the Cossacks fled up Liteiny Prospect, many of them abandoning their horses. Several Cossacks and twelve horses were killed.

Later a brush between armed Government troops and Maximalists occurred in the neighborhood of the Duma. The Maximalists, were quickly dispersed leaving behind seventeen wounded.

A group of Maximalists were arrested by patrols on their way to take possession of the telegraph and cable office.

A contingent of sailors from Kronstadt took part in the outbreak but returned home last night. The Maximalists have asked for more help from them, and it was rumored today that a second influx of sailors might be expected before night.

The St. Peter and St. Paul fortress, although commanded by a Maximalist regiment, apparently is not in full sympathy with the insurrectionists. The garrison at the fortress refused the demand of a machine-gun contingent of the Maximalists to give them arms.

M. Tchernoff, Minister of Agriculture, was arrested at the Duma by Maximalists, who started to take him away in an automobile as a hostage as he was delivering an address from the steps of the building. The Minister was roughly handled by the crowd, but as he was being taken from the ground he was recognized by Trotzky, one of the Agitator Lenine's lieutenants, who protested and harangued the Minister's captors and secured his release. The taking into custody of M. Tchernoff is accounted for by a rumor of the arrest of M. Tcheidze, President of the Central Executive Committee of the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates.

Premier Lvoff today sent the following telegram to all the Provisional Government commissaries:

"In reply to your inquiry, the Minister of the Interior informs you that the reports regarding the arrests of members of the Provisional Government are false. As to the appeals to overthrow the Government by force of arms, and transfer all powers to the soldiers and workmen, these appeals had the character of irresponsible acts on the part of the members of an extreme minority, and were received in an unfriendly manner by the people.

"At the same time the Government, in full agreement with the Soldiers', Workmen's and Peasants' Delegates, and the Duma, is taking measures to avert the occurrence of incidents which might be inimical to the State. The events of yesterday and today have for the time being interrupted the negotiations which are in progress for the completion of the Cabinet, but as soon as the disorders are at an end the negotiations will be resumed with a view to forming a Cabinet in which representatives of the various political views will find a place, as in the preceding Cabinet, a matter which has the full approval of the Executive Council of the Soldiers', Workmen's and Peasants' Delegates."

Council Roused by Outbreak.

The council of the new body of Soldiers, Workmen, and Peasants of All Russia, the Extremists abstaining from participation, passed a resolution today after an all-night session rejecting "with indignation all attempts to influence" the attitude of that body.

"It is inadmissible," continues the resolution, "that armed demonstrations should seek to impose the will of isolated military elements upon the whole of Russia. Blood has been shed in the streets of Petrograd. All these acts toward our revolutionary army, which is defending the conquests of the revolution at the front, are acts of treachery and felony. Whoever attacks the recognized democratic agencies, whoever sows discord in their ranks, is striking a dagger's blow in the back

MICHAELIS TODAY MAY ASK FOR TIME

Reichstag Summoned to Hear the New Chancellor's Declaration This Afternoon.

EXPECTED TO BE EVASIVE

Socialists Demand Immediate, Clear Pronouncement on Peace and Franchise Reform.

LONDON, July 18.—Chancellor Michaelis has asked the President of the Reichstag to summon tomorrow afternoon's session for a "communication from the Government." The Chancellor's declaration, it is understood, will be delivered at 3 o'clock. According to the Neueste Nachrichten of Munich, whose views are transmitted in a dispatch via Switzerland, it will be for peace, having the same general trend as the resolution prepared by the parties of the Left.

It is supposed here that this resolution is the one which before Bethmann Hollweg's resignation the majority bloc decided to introduce unchanged upon the re-assembling of the Parliament. This stated that the Reichstag was laboring for peace and reconciliation, that forced acquisitions of territory and political, economic, and financial violations were incompatible with such a peace, that economic peace must be assured, and that the Reichstag would promote the creation of international juridical organizations.

Liberals Are Uneasy.

From Copenhagen, however, comes the information that the Liberal press and politicians in Germany manifest an increasing apprehension that when the Chancellor breaks silence he will speak with a decided pro-German accent. It is said that Dr. Michaelis's putting forward of Field Marshal von Hindenburg and General Ludendorff to discuss German peace conditions with members of the Reichstag, his failure to consult parliamentary leaders on prospective new appointments to the Imperial Prussian Cabinet, his antecedents, previous environment and openly avowed satisfaction of the Conservative National Liberal Party men with the change in Chancellors, contribute to the marked uneasy feeling in Liberal and Socialist circles.

"The speech," continues this dispatch, "is not expected to go exhaustively into questions of reform or peace, as the time is too short for Chancellor Michaelis to elaborate a definite program. The Socialist agency reports that in all probability he will ask six weeks' grace to inform himself and work out a detailed policy. The agency, undoubtedly speaking for Herr Scheidemann, the Socialist leader, demands, however, that Herr Michaelis immediately and unequivocally make clear his attitude on the Prussian franchise reform and the peace formula.

"The Lokal-Anzeiger also reckons with a deferred presentation of the Chancellor's program, and instances the question of parliamentizing the Government as one of the problems Dr. Michaelis will avoid because it cannot be approached until after exhaustive discussion by the federated Governments.

"It appears unnecessary for Chancellor Michaelis to burn his fingers with this question at all, because the Catholic Centre Party, which has already changed sides, explains in an inspired article in the Clerical papers that the party interpretation of parliamentarism is merely the bringing of the Government and Parliament into intimate touch, not the introduction of a parliamentary régime, to which the Centre is now, as always, opposed. The Centre merely wishes to change the system that at present hinders a member of Parliament from entering the Government. The National Liberals have also adopted a 'closer touch' theory.

Chancellor Warned by Vorwaerts.

"The papers manifest some uncertainty regarding the fate of the Reichstag's peace resolution. The Clerical and Radical organs insist it will have a big majority, although they evidently are counting on some decidedly uncertain votes. They fear, however, Chancellor Michaelis will refuse to accept it as a basis of his policy. Vorwärts, the Socialist newspaper, in a leading article, warns Dr. Michaelis of the danger of temporizing on either question. It says the crisis, perhaps, is not over, and may redevelop after a short pause. It is even conceivable that the next manifestation may not pass with the complete order characterizing the last."

Another Copenhagen dispatch says that a successor to Foreign Secretary Zimmermann has not yet been selected. Leading German papers continue their campaigning for or against various candidates. The danger of the candidacy of Admiral von Hintze, Minister to Norway, as a victory for the Pan German, Navy, and Junker elements is steadily clear to the Socialist organs, which concentrate an attack on von Hintze's record in the Russian revolution of 1905. They claim he encouraged Nicholas's reactionary counsel and later offered the Emperor refuge on a German warship.

Count von Reventlow, military writer for the Tageszeitung, says that Count von Bernstorff, former Ambassador to Washington, is impossible because he now is, as from the outset, an advocate of a peace of renunciation and a flat opponent of the submarine war.

COPENHAGEN, July 18.—The German conservatives have decided to submit in the Reichstag an alternative resolution on the aims of the war from the annexationist standpoint. A test vote between this and the Bloc resolution will come up Friday. A majority

U-BOATS SINKING 1,600,000 TONS A MONTH, NEARLY THRICE THE WORLD'S PRODUCTION; DEFEAT THREATENS IF LOSS IS NOT REDUCED

18 British Ships Week's Toll in U-Boat Zone; No Gain Shown Since Beginning of July

LONDON, July 18.—Fourteen British ships of over 1,600 tons were sunk by submarines or mines in the last week, according to the official report tonight. Four British vessels under 1,600 tons were sunk and eight fishing vessels.

"Arrivals, 2,828; sailings, 2,920.

"British merchant ships sunk by mine or submarine, over 1,600 tons, including one previously, 14; under 1,600 tons, 4.

"British merchant vessels unsuccessfully attacked, including three previously, 12.

"British fishing vessels sunk, 8."

The foregoing dispatch tells almost the same story as the reports of the marine losses on July 8 and July 11. Since the U-boat war reached its maximum of destructiveness in the week ending April 22, with a total of fifty-five vessels destroyed, forty of which were over 1,600 tons, there had been a rapid decline until the week of June 10, which showed an increase of fourteen over the total of the previous week. The total of June 17 was the same—thirty-two. Then the week of July 8 showed a decline from twenty to seventeen. The total for last week is eighteen.

In the two weeks which each registered thirty-two the entrances at British ports were respectively 2,767 and 2,897, the clearances 2,822 and 2,993, and the unsuccessful attacks twenty and thirty-seven. For the entire month of June (five weeks) the entrances were 13,978, clearances 14,226; those sunk over 1,600 tons, 99; under, 29; fishing craft, 22; while exactly 100 vessels were unsuccessfully attacked.

The losses to British shipping since early March are as follows:

No Solution Yet in Shipping Row As Submarine Ravages Go On Goethals, Asked if He Intends to Resign, Replies: "I am a Soldier"—Denman Now Criticises Commandeering Plans as Inadequte.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—After a two hours' debate with William Denman, Chairman of the Shipping Board, Major Gen. George W. Goethals, General Manager of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, said tonight when asked if he contemplated handing in his resignation:

"I am a soldier."

This was taken to indicate that the General would not resign in any circumstances under fire, and that the fight was on to the end.

The possibility of a readjustment which might keep both Mr. Denman and General Goethals in the service was considered much greater than it was yesterday. The only thing that seemed certain today was that the impossible situation confronted when the Shipping Board adjourned tonight could not be continued for another forty-eight hours.

A meeting of the Shipping Board today did not bring any definite settlement and an adjournment was taken until 8:30 o'clock tomorrow morning. The early hour of meeting shows that the members of the board are alive to the necessity of adjusting the trouble as soon as possible. General Goethals attended the meeting and will be present at the session in the morning.

Those on the inside of the controversy so far as it affected General Goethals put no faith today in the published statements that the General would resign. On information obtained tonight it may be said General Goethals will not even take the matter of resigning into consideration as long as any hope exists that he will be in charge of the building of the great merchant fleet to be owned by the Government. As for Mr. Denman, it was said that he had no intention as head of the Shipping Board to seek to have General Goethals dismissed, a power that rests in Mr. Denman as President of the Emergency Fleet Corporation.

At the meeting of the Shipping Board today General Goethals furnished information as to his plans for commandeering merchant ships under construction. He also gave data as to what he had in mind concerning the erection of the Government building plants to be located near Philadelphia and Chester, Penn. It was said that Chairman Denman thought that the information was not adequate, and after a long wrangle over this point the adjournment was taken until tomorrow morning, when General Goethals is expected to produce further information.

An inquiry into the work of the Shipping Board is contemplated in a resolution offered in the Senate today by Senator Smoot of Utah. Owing to the Food Administration bill having the right of way the resolution went over until next week.

Under the resolution President Wilson is asked for information "that may be in the hands of the Shipping Board" to show what contracts have been let or are pending for construction of ships under the board's authority, prices paid, money advanced by the Government, and all other facts that may indicate the scope of work undertaken by the board up to this time.

Senator Smoot explained to THE TIMES correspondent that he had been unable to ascertain definitely that the Shipping Board had started the construction of one ship, although it has been organized nearly a year.

"It got a $50,000,000 appropriation under the act creating it," said Senator Smoot. "Under the Ship Emergency bill it got $750,000,000 more, and now wants an additional $500,000,000. I simply want to know what this board has been doing with all the money. Congress is entitled to know how the money is being spent."

WIRELESS IN MEXICO TOLD OF OUR TROOPS

James Hamilton Lewis Says Government Knows How Germany Got Word.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—Senator James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois said today:

"The Administration heads have information that much of the knowledge which Germany got of the movements of American troops and of our conduct of the war was caught on the wireless stations of Mexico and transmitted to Germany.

"We have reason to believe that the ships carrying the American soldiers were betrayed to Germany through Mexico, and that the dispatches sent from the ships to this Government were caught on the wireless that was set at a Mexican port, and that because of such information they were pursued by submarines and their landing announced in Europe days before our navy was ready.

"The representatives of Carranza here say that this information did not go through the Carranza element, that some of these wireless stations are in control of those who are opposing Carranza and are opposed to the United States, and from these could have come the information. Those who are accused by the Carranza people retaliate and say that some of Carranza's forces have been betraying the United States from the beginning and have never been sincere, and profess devotion that they may be used by the enemies of the United States as sources of information.

"This Government is now investigating the whole situation, and when they have the truth the public will have it, and the United States will take such action as shall be made necessary by the disclosures."

It could not be learned today whether or not the visit of Ambassador Fletcher, who left Mexico City suddenly for Washington, is in connection with the charges against Mexico. Mr. Fletcher before coming to Washington had a conference of several hours with Secretary Lansing on a train, while Mr. Lansing was en route to Watertown.

DUTCH SEE SCANT HOPE OF AMERICAN FOOD

Negotiating with British for Help in Getting Supplies for the Winter.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, July 18.—Referring to reports from America appearing in the Dutch Press that the Dutch representative at Washington has offered to lend the Allies tonnage in return for favorable consideration regarding Holland's needs of food supplies, THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent learns from the British Minister at The Hague that it would appear this must have reference to British negotiations with the Dutch Government under which certain Dutch tonnage would be placed at the service of the Belgian Relief Commission in return for which, it is understood, the Netherlands were seeking to obtain assurances regarding future food supplies for this country.

At the Dutch Foreign Office, an official could give THE TIMES correspondent no information on the subject, but the statement was made that Holland expected very little food from America, as no surplus was looked for, owing to the "bad harvest." It was also said that Holland's food question for the Winter was beginning to assume a serious aspect, but as the official put it, "It has been proved that countries can live without food."

Speaking of President Wilson's pressure on neutrals, the correspondent was told that he was obliged to do something and as he could kill no Germans for at least nine months he would try to kill neutrals.

The question of the new British danger zone has assumed a serious aspect, so far as Dutch shipping is concerned. It is now obvious that unless the German Government is willing to change the so-called safety channel further west, that is, nearer the German coast, the Dutch overseas shipping will be at a complete standstill, as is the case at present. The Dutch Government has approached Germany on this question and is expecting an answer shortly.

THE TIMES correspondent learns that all American relief ships now under way will receive safe conduct to Holland.

[Passed by British Censor.]

LONDON, July 18.—The change at the Admiralty by which Sir Eric Geddes succeeds Sir Edward Carson calls attention to submarine conditions, and there have been sharp revisions of opinion in the last few hours as a result of a re-examination of facts and figures.

The Prime Minister's recent assurance had a sedative effect on the public mind, but discussion by well-informed persons, particularly in banking and commercial circles, during the last few days has brought out conditions that are disquieting. Confidence in the submarine situation appears to have had no foundation more substantial than the hope that some scientific means was surely in the way of being found to put the submarine finally and entirely out of business. The syllogism was: America is a wonderfully inventive country; America is now a belligerent; ergo, America will invent a solution for the submarine menace.

Construction Lags Behind.

That part of England which wakes up somewhat ahead of the rest has suddenly grasped a fact that is so simple that it ought to have been realized and acted on long ago. The average man has been thinking about food—it has been plentiful; or thinking about Germany's threat to reduce England in two months—five have elapsed, and England is no worse off. What has escaped attention, and what is now brought to the fore by the change at the Admiralty, is the inexorable fact—which anybody with knowledge of the rule of three can cipher out for himself—that at the present rate of construction and destruction there cannot possibly be at the end of a few months shipping enough, unless British commitments elsewhere are considerably curtailed, to feed England and France and maintain the present armies in the field, and as for conveying America's armies to Europe and maintaining them, it will simply be out of the question.

The loss of ships by submarines totals 1,600,000 tons a month, or from two to three times the total of new construction. There is no possibility whatever of construction capacity overtaking at the present rate of loss in time to avoid a peace being forced on the Allies. What is wanted, therefore, is to largely increase the destruction of U-boats.

Must Be No Delay.

The British Government is, and the American Government ought to be, eye to eye with the staggering fact that the Allies have got to find a way to curb the submarine or lose the war—a way not yet found and not even approached, except experimentally.

Damage by submarines has been reduced by American co-operation, but every single ton of craft effective against submarines ought to be sent to European waters without a single hour's delay.

It is crystal clear that protection is not needed from the submarine in American waters, and keeping destroyers on the Atlantic seaboard is a sheer waste of time, when the situation here is so critical. The English fleet over here protects all interests over there. For the purposes of this war the Irish Sea is just as truly American as is Long Island Sound.

It is around the Irish Coast that the fight to make a world safe for democracy is at its deadliest crisis. No military victory short of marching into Berlin can take the place of a deathblow to the German U-boat. Every craft capable of operating against the submarine ought to be sent over here at the earliest possible moment.

Recalls Lane's Statement.

Franklin K. Lane, Secretary of the Interior, said before a joint meeting of the Council of National Defense and Governors of States, at Washington, May 2:

"Last week German U-boats destroyed 400,000 tons of shipping. Germany has food supplies that will last two years.

"If this keeps up for any length of time it will lay England and France prostrate, unless we are able to come to their support, or some measure is devised to put the submarine out of business. * * *

"We ought to fight on the waters and on land on the other side. The war will be fought on this side unless we beat them, and to beat them on the other side we have got to beat them quickly."

FIGURES SHOCK WASHINGTON.

Had Supposed the Ravage by Submarines Was Waning.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—The statements made in a London dispatch to THE NEW YORK TIMES as to the ravages of the submarines will come as a shock to many officials here.

Those connected with the Government who have followed the submarine warfare carefully showed keen interest today in the weekly report of sinkings, which they look for eagerly in the newspapers of every Thursday morning, and seemed anxious to obtain information in advance of newspaper publication as to what was shown by the report of the British Admiralty for the past week. One of these officials said tonight, however, that he was surprised over the statements made by THE TIMES correspondent, as his impression from the daily reports of sinkings received by this Government was that they were decreasing.

But, at the best, the situation is very serious, and American officials have not hesitated to say so in discussing the activities of the German U-boats. The greater number of those who have made a study of the strategic value of the submarine campaign have reached the conclusion that the great war will be decided upon the sea, by which they mean that the success or nonsuccess of the German policy of ruthless submarine warfare will determine whether Germany or the Allies will be the victors.

It will be a source of surprise to officials to read the statement in THE TIMES dispatch that the tonnage sunk amounts to 1,600,000 tons a month, or three times the construction of the world. This is a larger figure than Washington has understood to be the damage caused by the U-boats. It is supposed that it includes the merchant marine of every country that has suffered at the hands of the German raiders, and is not confined to British shipping. But the fact that the censor let THE TIMES dispatch come through indicates that the British Government admits the correctness of the figures, and, furthermore, is so alive to the dangers of the situation that it is willing to have the world know that something must be done to overcome the submarine.

Exceeds Hindenburg Figures.

At the inauguration of the ruthless methods of submarine warfare in February last, Field Marshal von Hindenburg, one of its foremost advocates, and the man who is credited with having induced Emperor William to consent to the abandonment of civilized methods of naval warfare, was reported to have estimated that the submarines would sink 1,100,000 tons of shipping a month, or 13,200,000 tons a year. As the British tonnage was about 14,000,000, and particular attention was to be paid by the U-boats to British vessels, it was apparent that Hindenburg, if he was reported correctly, had in mind that the bulk of the British merchant marine in existence at the time the ruthless policy was put into effect would be wiped out in twelve months, or by February, 1918.

While it has been conceded that the German submarines were making serious inroads on British merchant marine strength, new shipbuilding had been rapid, and there had been no realization that the ravages of the U-boats were as great as is told in the cable dispatch of THE NEW YORK TIMES tonight. The figures will be particularly impressive to observers here in the light of the fact that, owing to the quarrel between General Goethals, head of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, and Chairman Denman of the United States Shipping Board, there has been long delay in starting work on the great fleet of merchant vessels which the United States promised to build to keep its allies in Europe supplied with food, munitions, and other products essential to the success of the allied arms.

BRITISH BOTTLE UP GERMAN COAL TRADE

Smashing of Collier Fleet Interferes with Enemy's Means of Paying for Swedish Ore.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 18.—The capture of German ships in the North Sea is regarded by the Admiralty as having a far more significant side than the mere destruction of a certain number of enemy merchantmen. It has put out of gear an important branch of the German supply arrangements.

Lately about thirty German ships have been employed in carrying coal from Holland to Sweden in payment for Swedish ore imported along the Baltic. This iron trade, about a million and a half tons last year, was most important to the Germans because the ore was needed for shells and guns. It was impossible for the Allies to interfere directly as the ore ships keep in Swedish and Danish territorial waters, and Russia is unwilling to attack them.

If the supply of German coal by the North Sea route is interrupted, it is believed that Germany must transport it by rail. This would very seriously increase the burden on the rail facilities already nearly worn out and taxed to the uttermost in carrying munitions and the Rumanian harvest. So the naval incident is held to be of considerable strategic importance.

LONDON, July 18.—The allegation of Dutch newspapers that part of Monday's encounter between British destroyers and German merchantmen, which were attempting to run the blockade from Rotterdam, occurred in Dutch territorial waters is generally discredited in naval circles here.

It is explained that the shoals along the Dutch coast in this district extend so far to sea that it is necessary for ships to steer a course well outside the territorial limits. The attack is said to have occurred at a point more than four miles from shore.

Reporting officially the capture of the German steamships the British Admiralty statement says:

"Some of our light forces whilst patrolling the North Sea about 4:30 A. M. Monday sighted a number of German steamers ahead. The signal to stop and abandon ship was hoisted, and shots were fired across their bows to emphasize the order. The order was disregarded, and all the enemy ships made for the Dutch coast. Two of the rearmost reached shore, having been badly damaged by our gunfire. The other four ships were, however, intercepted and captured by our destroyers, who placed prize crews on board and brought them away under their own steam. On two of these ships the crews abandoned their ships. The other two crews were brought back into harbor prisoners. All four ships are now in harbor in this country. Their names are Pellworm, Brietzig, Marie Horn, and Heinz Blumberg."

SENATE VOTES CURB ON DEFENSE COUNCIL

Food Measure Amendments Bar Government Advisers' Firms from War Contracts.

BILL TO PASS ON SATURDAY

Control Board of Three a Snag—Charge Against McElwain's Concern Is Disproved.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—The Senate, after a long debate, today adopted the Pomerene amendment to the Food Administration bill by which the powers of the Advisory Commission of the Council of National Defense would be materially curtailed as to contracts with the Government involving their own pecuniary profit. This action was followed at once by the acceptance of an amendment offered by Senator Reed of Missouri further to clinch the modified authority left to the commission.

Section 8, affecting the authority of the Advisory Commission as it now stands in the Food bill, forbids members of the commission to "solicit, induce, or attempt ao induce or direct the execution" of contracts with the Government in which they have any personal interest or to "recommend" the acceptance of such a contract unless they explain their relation to the contract in writing. The Reed amendment affirmed that this legislation was to be taken in conjunction with Section 41 of the Statute at large, passed in 1863, which prohibits a Government employe or agent from engaging in any contracts with the Government.

Senator Reed's amendment was accepted by Senator Pomerene and embraced in the Pomerene amendment after Senator Knox, former Attorney General, had told the Senate that he believed it necessary if the Senate wanted to make sure that members of the Advisory Commission be prohibited from taking any part in contracts with themselves in their relation to the Government.

Loophole in Amendment.

In the debate Senators Reed, Kenyon of Iowa, Borah of Idaho, and Knox maintained that if the Pomerene amendment were passed as framed it would leave a loophole for unscrupulous Government officials sitting in an advisory capacity to facilitate the acceptance of their own contracts with the Government. None of the Senators cast the slightest suspicion upon the integrity of the Advisory Commission. They all insisted, however, that the Government ought to protect itself against any contingency that might arise during the war.

When the Senate adjourned tonight it had come to the threshold of the last stage of the Food Administration bill in that body. Tomorrow the hour limit of debate applies, to be in force until Saturday, when the ten-minute limit will be invoked until the Senate votes on the entire bill. Senate leaders predicted today that the bill would pass on Saturday.

One of the principal snags in the bill is that providing for a Food Administration Board of Three, to be appointed by the President, which would eliminate Herbert C. Hoover as sole food administrator. This, it was said tonight, might be amended on the floor Saturday so as to restore the original provision of the measure, by which Mr. Hoover would be supreme.

In urging his amendment circumscribing the powers of the Advisory Commission, Senator Pomerene maintained that it would assure ample safeguard and at the same time allow the Government to have advantage of the advice of the experts whom the President has called to the commission.

"Leaders of industries have been asked here by the President to advise the Government and to help mobilize the resources of the United States," said Mr. Pomerene. "I have heard men like Charles M. Schwab of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation and Thomas A. Edison, head of the electrical world, and Daniel Willard, a great railroad man, pilloried here in public. Charges have been made that were not accompanied by facts.

Menace to Defense Council.

"We don't want to do anything to disorganize the Council of National Defense and the plans for industrial and military defense. I have conferred with lawyers, Senators, and others, and my amendment is the result of those conferences.

"No man on the Council of National Defense has authority to contract with himself. The council is not given power to contract. The members of that organization cannot spend one cent of money. If my amendment is adopted this organization, which already has done so much to mobilize the industrial resources of this country for the war, will be retained.

"I ask Senators if they would have these leaders of industry eliminated. Shall we say to the President that he has made a mistake and shall disrupt the Advisory Board? Shall we tell him that he must let some one who knows nothing about such things advise him? We will best be serving the cause of our country by keeping the organization already effected.

"A great deal was said here yesterday about the motives of men. Much was said without regard to the facts. It is easy to get partial information and jump at conclusions. A lawyer should not do that. The public would know the truth. I am in favor of publishing to the world what is true no matter whom it hits or hurts."

Senator Pomerene alluded to the contracts for 400,000 pairs of shoes let to the W. H. McElwain Company of Boston at 15 cents a pair more than the lowest bid.

"When the facts are all known about these shoe contracts they are not subject to criticism," Mr. Pomerene went on. "It would appear from statements made on the floor of the Senate that some one at the head of the McElwain Company had given to himself, as a member of the Advisory Commission, a contract at prices in excess of other bidders. In part that is true, but it is not the whole truth.

"When the statement was made on the floor of the Senate I went to the telephone and called up the Secretary of War. I was informed that these were purchased by the Quartermaster Corps.

Explains McElwain Contract.

"The facts are that on May 29 sealed bids were opened by the Quartermaster Corps. The Committee on Supplies, of which, I understand, Mr. McElwain was a member, had sent special requests to seventy-four manufacturers, extending from Maine to California, asking them to bid. Bids were submitted by forty-seven concerns. Awards were made to forty-seven manufacturers by the Quartermaster Corps, awards being made in every case to the lowest bidders. On this opening awards were made to the W. H. McElwain Company of 400,000 pairs of field shoes at $4.79½. The awards on field shoes ranged from $4.67 to $4.85."

The Ohio Senator went on to say that the 470,000 pairs were awarded at prices lower than the McElwain bid and 630,000 at prices higher.

Senator Borah argued that any power to permit a Government official, no matter if he served merely in an advisory capacity, to participate in any phase of an award to himself was "iniquitous." He wanted a provision put in the Food bill explicitly to prohibit it.

After two hours of debate the Senate voted the Pomerene amendment into the bill, 54 to 17, those voting against it being Senators Borah, Broussard, Cummins, Gore, Gronna, Hardwick, Johnson of California, Kenyon, La Follette, McKellar, McNary, Nelson, Norris, Randell, Shields, Sutherland, and Trammell.

Immediately this amendment had been accepted, Senator Reed offered his amendment to provide that the amendment as adopted would not abrogate Section 41 of the Statute at Large.

"If we do not make sure that Section 41, prohibiting a Government agent or employe from taking part in the making of any contract in which he is interested, is kept in force, we shall still leave the way open for equivocation," said Senator Reed.

Senator Borah argued that "a man who wants to resort to crooked ways or to work around corners" could easily make contracts with himself if the Pomerene amendment were allowed to stand as passed. Senator Knox agreed with the critics of the Pomerene amendment and suggested that to prevent any evasion the Reed amendment ought to be adopted. That was enough for Senator Pomerene.

"I am willing to accept that amendment," said the Ohio Senator. "The effect of this, as I understand it, is simply to have Section 3 interpreted along with Section 41, and I consent to that."

The Reed amendment was then included by a viva voce vote.

Text of Amendments.

As placed in the bill, the Pomerene amendment provides:

"That no person acting either as a voluntary or paid agent or employe of the United States in any capacity, including an advisory capacity, shall solicit, induce, or attempt to induce any person or officer authorized to execute or to direct the execution of contracts on behalf of the United States, to make any contract or give any order for the furnishing to the United States of work, labor, or services, or of materials, supplies, or other property of any kind or character, if such agent or employe has any pecuniary interest in such contract or order, or if he or any firm of which he is a member, or corporation, joint stock company, or association of which he is an officer or stockholder, or in the pecuniary profits of which he is directly or indirectly interested, shall be a party thereto.

"Nor shall any agent or employe make or permit any committee or other body of which he is a member to make or participate in making any recommendations concerning such contract or order to any council, board, or commission of the United States, or any member or subordinate thereof, without making to the best of his knowledge and belief a full and complete disclosure in writing to such council, board, commission, or subordinate of any and every pecuniary interest which he may have in his contract or order, and of his interest in any firm, corporation, company, or association being a party thereto.

"Nor shall he participate in the awarding of such contract or giving such order. Any willful violation of any of the provisions of this section shall be punishable by a fine of not more than $10,000, or by imprisonment of not more than five years, or both."

The Reed amendment, providing that this section should not repeal the act of 1862, reads:

"No officer or agent of any corporation, joint stock company, or association and no member or agent of any firm or person directly or indirectly interested in the pecuniary profits or contracts of such corporation, joint stock company, association, or firm shall act as an officer or agent of the United States for the transaction of business with such corporation, joint stock company, association, or firm."

Among many amendments submitted but not acted on today was one by Senator Pomerene giving the President authority to take over and pool or regulate, through the Trade Commission, coal, coke, petroleum, and its products when in his judgment it is necessary, and to fix the prices and provide for distribution.

Bankers Oppose Liquor Seizure.

Bankers from eastern and western States appeared before the Senate Finance Committee, and the Ways and Means Committee of the House today, to protest against the liquor amendment in the Food Administration bill providing for commandeering of distilled spirits in bond without assuring adequate compensation to owners.

It developed at the hearing that tremendous withdrawals of whisky from bonded warehouses have been made since the Senate adopted the commandeering feature two weeks ago. These withdrawals, the bankers said, had put a heavy strain on them in money advanced the whiskey owners to pay taxes. Many banks are unable to advance more because they have already reached the limit of credit allowed the owners.

FOOD FOR 3 MONTHS FOR PERSHING'S MEN are now being turned back to the Quartermasters Department headquarters for redistribution, so that there will soon be more than enough of such things as tobacco and similar little luxuries which have been somewhat scarce among some troops and sections.

Officers who billeted among the inhabitants are still billeting at the moderate prices that prevail for the majority. They may by request pay one franc daily for quarters and provided they eat at a "hotel" expend seven francs daily for excellent food. Prices are thus kept low to prevent a repetition of events early in the war when allied troops in French territory accustomed to city prices all but spoilt the French population by paying what seemed to them moderate but really enormous rates for everything.

RAILROADS FOR OUR TROOPS.

Transport Service Takes Over Lines from Base to Front.

PARIS, July 18.—Official announcement is made that the United States transport service is taking over control of the French railroad lines from the port bases to the permanent camp and the front. Tracks are being laid and sidings enlarged. The roads will be manned later by men of the American engineer regiment. American locomotives, mostly narrow gauge, will be utilized. Most of the supplies will be imported from the United States.

PLEAS BY NEUTRALS TO GET OUR EXPORTS

Several Protest They Have Not Sold American Goods to Central Powers.

ALL SUBMIT TRADE FIGURES

Official Dutch Statistics Disprove Defense That Holland Gave Britain Preference.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—All the neutral nations of Europe have submitted statements to the United States concerning their export trade, and several have protested their innocence of the charges that they have been selling to Germany commodities purchased in this country.

It is not expected by the State Department that there will be formal correspondence with the neutrals, such as took place between the United States and Great Britain and the United States and Germany over controversies relating to neutral rights. State Department officials believe all the difficulties which arise from the application of export restrictions affecting the neutral countries can be adjusted by negotiation.

It was disclosed today that Great Britain had made many guarantees to some of the neutral countries out of consideration for concessions made during the war by them, and for this reason would not insist upon an absolute cessation of commerce by the rest of the world with them. The complete extent and force of these agreements is not known, but they were made necessary, it was stated by an authority today, in order to make the British blockade of Germany most effective.

Assurances to England.

The blockade was enforced by patrol visit and search and prize court proceedings and these measures were supplemented by the agreements with the neutral countries under which the rationing system for the neutrals was instituted. Great Britain was assured that goods bought in America and transported to the neutral countries would not be re-exported into Germany.

Despite these agreements, considerable quantities of goods purchased in the United States did find their way into Germany, but the British system had reached its maximum of efficiency before America entered the war. The exports policy of the United States will supplement the system and the effect of it will be to perfect the British blockade, although it is believed this Government will respect the agreements concluded by Britain with the neutral countries concerning their necessary supplies.

Official Dutch figures, which it is asserted, refute the statement by W. L. F. C. Van Rappard, the Netherlands Minister to the United States, that Holland supplied a larger quantity of her home products to England than to Germany, were obtained here today. These statistics, taken from official Dutch records, show that Dutch shipments to Germany and to England in the first three months of the present year were as follows:

To Germany—Butter, 1,845 tons; cheese, 9,272 tons; eggs, 3,443 tons.

To England—Butter, 513 tons; cheese, 3,494 tons; eggs, 593 tons.

The potato flour shipped to Germany in the same period by Holland amounted to 5,616 tons.

Unofficial statistics have been produced to show that in last April 3,500 tons of butter were exported by Holland to Germany and 1,200 to England. The only instance where the Dutch exports to England exceeded those to Germany was in the shipments of cheese in April, England receiving 2,200 tons and Germany 2,000 tons.

Expects Correct Figures.

It was remarked in an authoritative quarter today that this Government expects no difficulty in obtaining the correct and official figures relating to the exports from any neutral country, and that it will not be misled by any unfair manipulation of figures. Inasmuch as all the favors sought are in the power of the United States to grant, it was believed that neutral Governments would hesitate before deliberately seeking to mislead by falsifying statements of export and imports.

The Exports Council soon will be in possession of exact data concerning all the commerce of the European neutrals with the Central Powers, this information coming both from the tSate Department's diplomatic and consular representatives in Europe and from the allied Governments, and not only covering the present period, but ante-dating the war and including every month up to the present time. The trade charts will reveal also the necessities of the neutral Governments, the limits of their own production, their utilization of land available for the production of necessaries but which are devoted to the production of exportable commodities needed by the Central Powers, and other data which will furnish the council with all information it desires.

CALLED ALLIES OF ENTENTE.

Non-German Parties in Austria Denounced in German Paper.

LONDON, July 18.—The Vienna correspondent of the Deutsche Tageszeitung, according to a Reuter dispatch from Zurich, accuses the non-German parties in Austria of being in alliance with the Entente.

"No German can doubt," says the correspondent, "that an alliance of understanding exists between the Austrian Czechs, Poles, and other non-Germans on the one hand and France, Great Britain, and Russia on the other. The recent amnesty declared by the Emperor was the first result of this policy of blackmail, and must be considered a victory for the anti-German parties."

MORRIS FOR TOKIO POST.

Philadelphian to be Appointed Ambassador to Succeed Guthrie.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—Roland S. Morris of Philadelphia has been chosen for appointment as Ambassador to Japan, to succeed the late Ambassador Guthrie. It is understood he is persona grata to Japan, and that the nomination will go to the Senate shortly.

Vance C. McCormick, the Democratic National Chairman, it is understood, was offered the post at Tokio, but declined, and recommended the appointment of Mr. Morris.

FOUND COST OF FOOD TROUBLING BRITISH

Workingmen's Diet More Restricted, Despite Higher Wages, Says Traveler.

Arthur G. Helmsley, an English marine engineer, who arrived in New York yesterday on his way to Shanghai by way of San Francisco, said there was a good deal of dissatisfaction among the middle and working classes in England and Wales over the high cost of food.

"The bread that every one has to eat," he said, "is almost black, and is composed of bran, rye, malt, corn, and other ingredients which are welded into a solid mass that is sold to the public for 6 cents a pound and would destroy the digestion of an ostrich. When I left Liverpool the local hospitals were full of patients suffering from eating war bread.

"Beef, lamb, frozen mutton, and bacon cost 50 cents a pound. Because nearly all the steam trawlers are taken by the Admiralty for mine sweeping, fish is very scarce. The ordinary haddocks that cost 2 cents a pound before the war now cost 50 to 60 cents a pound and soles are $1.25 a pound.

"I read in the paper before leaving that an American statesman in Washington said that steaks in London restaurants were sold cheaper than in New York, but he forgot to state that the London steak weighs only four ounces, the same as the slice of roast beef that is served at dinner. Rice costs 14 cents a pound, and syrups to serve with cereals at breakfast are unobtainable. Bakers are not allowed to make anything except war bread, and all cakes and pies have been dispensed with, as well as candies of every description.

"I know numbers of families in London, Liverpool, Sheffield, and other large cities who did not have a potato in the house for fully three months last Winter. This will not occur again, because the people have dug up all their picturesque flower gardens and planted the ground with potatoes and other useful vegetables. The gardens in the suburbs of the big cities in England, which were radiant in Summer with hollyhocks, roses, geraniums, carnations, sweetpeas, and other flowers that were the pride of the owners, have disappeared, and waving potato plants and cabbages flourish there.

"Broad beans, that were once, with boiled bacon, the staple diet of the yeomen of England, now cost 25c. a pound, and potatoes, even at their lowest price this Summer, are 4c. a pound.

"The Government officials maintain that the working people are better off now, even with the high cost of living, because their daughters can work in the munition factories and earn from $19 to $15 a week. This is true, but the young women have had their heads turned by too much money in their pockets. They buy fine clothes, pay $6, instead of $3, for shoes, and say they must have recreation; so they go away, like bankers or stockbrokers, for the week-end, and the parents do not get any financial help from them except in rare cases.

"In England, and more especially in Wales, the people are heartily tired of the war's heavy burdens, which are increasing all the time. The streets in the big cities are filled with maimed soldiers, who arrive from France in a continuous stream. The thinking people realize that the war must go on until Germany is defeated and they must continue to bear the burden of it as best they can."

Mr. Helmsley said that in shipping circles in Liverpool and London there was a strong belief that if Russia continued her attacks on the eastern front and the British and French advanced along the western line, as they have been doing since the early Spring, it was possible that Germany would sue for peace before next Christmas.

ITALIAN LINES SHELLED.

Artillery and Aviation Activity Along Entire Front Reported.

ROME, July 18.—The following official statement on military operations was issued today by the War Office:

Enemy parties which yesterday attempted to approach our positions were all repulsed. A few prisoners remained in our hands.

The enemy artillery shelled our lines, especially in the Zugna region, on the Pasubio, on the Vodice, and east of Gorizia. Our artillery replied effectively, and also concentrated its fire on the Nabrasina Station, causing fire to break out.

The aerial activity was considerable along the entire front. Two enemy machines were brought down by our airmen. One of our airplanes was obliged to land within our own lines.

ORDER WIDENS CENSORSHIP

Daniels Directs Its Extension to Transatlantic Cables.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—Extension of the cable censorship to all transatlantic messages was formally ordered today by Secretary Daniels, under the authority of President Wilson's executive order of April 28.

Censorship of cable messages to South and Central America, Mexico, and the Orient has been in force since May 4, when transatlantic cables were temporarily exempted until the workings of the French and British censorships were learned. The extension of the censorship to transatlantic cables was recommended by George Creel, Chairman of the Committee on Public Information, who after a study of the British and French systems, has submitted a plan of procedure.

Commander David W. Todd, Director of Naval Communications, will continue his executive direction of the cable censorship. The New York office is in charge of Commander Arthur B. Hoff.

ITALY'S LOSSES TO U-BOATS

One Steamer and Four Sailing Vessels the Total for the Week.

ROME, July 18.—One Italian merchant steamer and four small sailing vessels were sunk by submarines in the week ending July 15, according to the official statement today.

Arrivals at Italian ports for the week numbered 558, clearances 499.

John Dillon Makes Bitter Attack on Official Implicated in Mesopotamia Affair.

JUDICIAL INQUIRY HALTED

Civilians to Go Free, But Accused Army Officers Must Face Trial.

LONDON, July 18.—The House of Commons tonight declined to interfere further to force the resignation of Baron Hardinge, Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs. By a vote of 176 to 81 the House rejected a motion by John Dillon to adjourn the House with a view to forcing the hands of the Government to accept the resignation for his connection with the Mesopotamia campaign.

Mr. Dillon, in a speech demanding the adjournment of the House, assailed Baron Hardinge, but after his indictment of the Under Secretary the debate was rather languid. Arthur J. Balfour, the Foreign Secretary, replying to Mr. Dillon's criticism, stanchly defended Baron Hardinge, contending that although he might be attacked for what he did as Viceroy of India it was grossly unfair and grossly unconstitutional to attack him as Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs.

"While I hold my present office," said Mr. Balfour, "I will not permit such a gross act of injustice to one of my subordinates. If the House decides that because I adhere to that decision I ought to resign, nobody will be more grateful than myself for that expression of opinion."

Mr. Balfour further argued that Baron Hardinge had only the same responsibility as other Ministers and former Ministers, and asked, "Why are these Ministers and ex-Ministers not in the dock?"

In moving the adjournment of the House Mr. Dillon bitterly arraigned the Government and said that the matter involved the great principle of Ministerial responsibility and the Parliament's sole means of influencing the executive. Mr. Chamberlain had resigned, but Baron Hardinge, whose responsibility was the heavier, was allowed to ride off in honor because he possessed powerful social influence.

The relatives of the men who died in unspeakable agony on the banks of the Tigris, said Mr. Dillon, would condemn a Parliament guilty of such neglect of its duty. What would the country say when it learned that the culpable officers had been courtmartialed, while the civilians went free.

Announcement was made in the House by Andrew Bonar Law, Chancellor of the Exchequer, that the Government had decided not to proceed with the proposed judicial inquiry into the report of the commission which investigated the Mesopotamia campaign.

In coming to this decision, the Chancellor said, the Government had been guided by the objection raised during debate on the report to a further inquiry and also was influenced by the undesirability of diverting the thought and energies of the Legislature and the Executive at this critical time from the prosecution of the war. The soldiers would be dealt with by the Army Council in the ordinary way and the decision announced as soon as possible.

SINN FEIN PAPER SEIZED.

British Suppress E. T. Keane's Weekly—Rebel as M. P. Candidate.

DUBLIN, July 18.—The newspaper Kilkenny People was seized and suppressed today by the police and military authorities. This paper is an important local weekly conducted by Edward T. Keane, an active politician since the days of Parnell and now Chairman of the local Sinn Feiners.

The paper has had frequent difficulties with the censorship, but it is felt here by good judges that its seizure on the eve of the Parliamentary election to replace Patrick O'Brien, Nationalist, who died July 12, will assist the Sinn Feiners and prejudice any constitutional candidate.

The Sinn Feiners held a meeting tonight under the Chairmanship of Mr. Keane, and selected as their candidate for the Kilkenny seat W. T. Cosgrave, who was recently released from prison. Cosgrave was one of the rebels, and was sentenced to death, but this was commuted to life imprisonment, and he was finally released under the order of the Government.

WILSON MAY PLEAD VOTES FOR WOMEN

ing the White House, spent three hours this afternoon in conference with the women urging them to appeal their case. He refused to say what conclusion was reached, but it was stated that an appeal might be taken in the case of one or two of the prisoners in order to make a test case. It appeared practically certain that a majority of them would serve the full sixty days of the sentence imposed.

Turning deaf ears to the entreaties of husbands, children, and friends, the sixteen prepared to spend their second night at the District Reformatory, determined to serve their sentence rather than pay the fine.

Mr. Malone, J. A. Hopkins of Morristown, N. J., and Gilson Gardner of Washington—the two last the husbands of two of the women sentenced by Judge Mullowny—Miss Mabel Vernon, Executive Secretary of the National Woman's Party, and Miss Lucy Burns, acting in a quasi-legal capacity, reached the workhouse at 10 o'clock this morning and received permission from Superintendent Whittaker to confer with the suffragette prisoners. A recess was taken at noon, when the prisoners were marched to the regular mess hall for the midday meal. After lunch the conference continued until 2 o'clock.

Mr. Malone refused to make any comment, but said that he might have a statement to give out on reaching Washington. Gilson Gardner said that the case was in the hands of Mr. Malone, and that it was probable that a test case would be made in the case of one or two of the prisoners, whose age and physical condition make it doubtful if they would be able to serve the full sentence. He said he did not know which members of the party would be selected to carry the case to a higher court.

Every member of the visiting delegation which made the trip to Occoquan by automobile was visibly affected by the interview. They started back to Washington soon after 2 o'clock.

"The disposition of the women is to serve the full sentence," said Mr. Gardner, "and I don't look for any change in the situation. It is a matter of the women of the country getting justice. They are putting up a brave fight for the cause. It is a perfectly hideous, frightful thing. It is torture they are enduring."

Asked if he had insisted on paying his wife's fine, Mr. Gardner said:

"Mrs. Gardner is an absolutely free woman. I won't interfere with her. This is her job, and she is going through with it with a great deal of courage."

The visitors had not been gone more than a few minutes when an automobile bearing the husband and daughter of Mrs. Florence Bayard Hilles of Washington drove up. There was a tearful scene, but Mrs. Hilles would not consent to their entreaties that they be permitted to pay her fine.

Mrs. John Rogers of New York City was the first member of the delegation to be assigned to duty. Her labors will be confined to the sewing room. A work program will be mapped out for the entire delegation, and all the women will start tomorrow on the drudgery of their sentence. Many of them have requested that they be assigned to picking berries and lawn and garden work. All of the female prisoners who have this assignment are required to wear bloomers. Mrs. Minnie R. Herndon, assistant Superintendent in charge of the female department, had not decided tonight what disposition would be made of the request for outside work.

Superintendent Whittaker made it plain today that no partiality would be shown the prisoners. They will be treated as are all the other female inmates. One of the rules is that only letters of brevity and business import may be written. When one of the suffragettes this afternoon was discovered writing a letter descriptive of the trip to the workhouse she was immediately informed that the rule as to letter writing must be obeyed.

A member of Congress telephoned Superintendent Whittaker for permission to send the delegates a box of California fruit. But the request was denied. Only reading matter may be received by the prisoners, and the only visitors who will be permitted to see them will be fathers, mothers, children, brothers, sisters, and attorneys.

The prisoners were up at 6:30 this morning and marched in single line formation to breakfast at 7. They had hominy and gravy, wheat bread, milk, coffee, and blackberry jam. At noon they received cabbage and shoulder, string beans, beets, and bread. Their night meal included vegetable soup and cornbread.

Immediately after breakfast this morning they were marched to the sewing room and later examined by the workhouse physician, Dr. Frank W. Hornbaker. The work of taking their records for the workhouse files then began. They were requested to answer approximately 150 questions asked under the general heads of commitment, personal history, home training, education, vocation, social relations, religion, delinquency, dependency, physical condition, habits, and family history.

By the time these details were disposed of the delegation from Washington had arrived, and it was decided not to assign the prisoners to work until tomorrow. For the most part the women had no complaint to make of the treatment accorded them. They did not have a section to themselves in the dormitory last night, but were assigned to cots which were arranged in alternating formation with cots occupied by other prisoners.

Immediately after reaching the institution yesterday the prisoners were required to don the regular workhouse wearing apparel, including loose gray dresses, blue cotton stockings, and square-toed, flat-soled shoes. Several members of the delegation tasted but sparingly of the food served them and gave no evidence of having an appetite today, but there is no talk or thought of a hunger strike.

SUFFRAGISTS WIRE WILSON.

Start a Telegraphic Campaign of Protest Against Sentences.

Hundreds of New York women sent telegrams to President Wilson yesterday protesting against the arrest and imprisonment of the militant suffragist pickets in Washington. They are members of the Woman's Party, to which the pickets belong, and at the headquarters of the New York City branch, 50 East Forty-second Street, there was great activity all day, letters and messages being sent to members urging them to act. The same thing is going on all over the country, the women sending thousands of protests by wire.

Among the prominent members of the party who sent telegrams yesterday were Mrs. Robert Adamson, Mrs. Caroline Lexow Babcock, Miss Anna Constable, Mrs. Philip Comstock, Mrs. Lewis L. Delafield, Mrs. Joseph Griswold Deane, Mrs. William Einstein, Mrs. Edmund Kelly, and Mrs. Samuel Martin.

A characteristic telegram was sent to the President by Mrs. Harriot Stanton Blatch, the founder and President of the Women's Political Union, which went over sometime ago in a body to the National Woman's Party. It read as follows:

> President Woodrow Wilson, The White House, Washington, D. C., July 18, 1917.
> Be not impatient of being disturbed. All rulers are being disturbed. This war is proving a touchstone of the genuineness of democracy in Kings, Premiers, and Presidents. Lloyd George, being pressed, wisely yields self-government to Ireland and suffrage to British women. Measure up to him and give votes and not jail sentences to the women of America.
> HARRIOT STANTON BLATCH.

New members have been sending in their names and money contributions to the work of the party, and those who before pledged money are making good their promises.

The New York Headquarters yesterday issued a statement declaring that the Woman's Party must continue its policy of picketing. Three New York women have definitely promised to take part in the next demonstration of the pickets, the date of which is not to be announced in advance. Mrs. William L. Colt, Miss Cora A. Week, and Mrs. Sophia Kramer stand ready to start for Washington at a moment's notice, and others from New York are expected to join them.

"The National Woman's Party is not going to be imprisoned out of existence," said Miss Anna Constable, Treasurer of the State branch. "It is seventy-five years since the women began fighting for enfranchisement, and if there were not so many of them in the early days, why, it was a question of ethics, not numbers. This country has a precedent different from any other country of starting in with a declaration of ethics. If the men wish anything they fight for it and get it.

"Why is President Wilson refusing to pass the Susan B. Anthony Amendment? Is it because he disapproves of it as a war measure? If he raises a finger the bill will come out of committee. It will take forty-five minutes for a roll call, and the amendment cannot go into effect until the Legislatures of thirty-six States have ratified it. This may take three years. In the meantime Congress will have put out of the way this question, which will never be allowed to die down."

Dr. John Rogers of 102 East Thirtieth Street, whose wife is one of the imprisoned pickets in Washington, when asked for his opinion on the subject, had nothing to say for publication, although he made some vehement remarks. Dr. John Winters Brannan, whose wife is another of the prisoners, was at the Veteran Artillery Corps Camp yesterday afternoon and did not return until late last night.

Protest from Newark Branch.

The Newark branch of the Woman's Party held a protest meeting yesterday in the Essex Building in Newark. Resolutions were adopted protesting against the arrest in Washington of Mrs. J. A. H. Hopkins and Miss Julia Hurlbut of Morristown, N. J., Chairman and Vice Chairman of the Newark organization.

The resolutions will be sent to President Wilson. They vigorously and vehemently protest against the unreasonable and arbitrary sentence of imprisonment imposed upon sixteen suffrage pickets on July 17, and call for the "immediate passage of the Susan B. Anthony Suffrage Amendment as a war measure in order that the just-minded women who are now under the necessity of submitting to superimposed authority may participate directly in the Government of their country in this war crisis consciously and willingly."

The resolutions conclude with these words: "We appeal directly to the President of the United States, that the whole civilized world today and future days will be the court to ultimately adjudicate between him and a group of patriots, no less impelled by their conception of duty, no less devoted to its performance, and no less resolute in both conceiving and performing than were the revolutionists who founded this nation, and the civil war patriots who saved it."

The Newark organization had received petitions from Mrs. Hopkins and Miss Mabel Vernon of Nevada, who were among the first pickets to be arrested, asking the branch to send requests to the President to revoke the sentences.

FIVE BRITISH ARMIES AWAIT OFFENSIVE

Correspondent Finds Men in High Spirits, with Munitions in Abundance.

TROOPS WELL TRAINED

Officers and Men Feel Sure of Themselves, Due to Recent Victories.

By CHARLES H. GRASTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, July 16, (Delayed.)—The British front has been particularly interesting for the last few days, both because of the presence here of the King and Queen and the general expectation of another offensive.

The contrast between present conditions and those prevailing when I visited the front last February is striking. The British were then fighting doggedly in the worst conditions imaginable, whereas now the weather is favorable and all other conditions make for optimism. The effect of big movements such as America's rounding into form, the internal eruption in Germany, and Russia's return to hostilities are felt in every trench and dugout, but the soldier's deepest sensibilities are touched by what is concrete and nearest him. The walloping of Fritz at Messines was not militarily important, but humanly it was most encouraging and must be rated above larger things in its effect on the morale of the army. Officers and men are beginning to feel sure of themselves as a fighting body. Such incidents as that at Nieuport prevent any slopping over.

There was appropriateness in their final examination by the Sovereign at what may fairly be reckoned the very top of their form and on the eve of maximum of effort. I have followed a day or two behind at many points visited by the Royal party and the interest which they aroused was so extraordinary that much of the show was still going on, and I saw activities that would otherwise have gone back underground and into camouflage.

The impression of British strength gained from a few days at the front under these circumstances is simply overwhelming. Every one knows the larger units England has on her line in France. There are five armies on the fighting lines, highly organized and perfectly supplied and supported. Adequate factories at home for shells and guns coordinate with a transport system that the enemy has never been able seriously to interfere with. There is absolutely no limit to artillery, with guns, machine guns, ammunition and auto transport. There are more and more tanks, with better knowledge of their use, and picked and trained men courting almost certain death to serve them, and finally there is a great and rapidly growing airplane service, including photo planes, destined with American help, to deliver what may prove the last fatal hammer strokes from the air. That good food, clothing and medical attention are part of such a tremendous organization goes without saying. These things count in a great war, but the most vivid impression made on me was by the huge numbers of trained young soldiers composing the fine armies. They constitute the greatest aggregation of impudent, unconquerable youth ever assembled.

But while youthful qualities are so necessary and attractive, and must be available at the front, the war has settled down into business, with planning and organization elaborated to the finest point. I have had an opportunity of talking with several army commanders whose manners and mental processes resemble those of captains of industry rather than the old-fashioned military type. They maintain headquarters far enough behind the line to be free from casual excitements, and their aloofness enables them always to bring to bear cool judgment in a crisis and collate experience in terms of science and philosophy. In this war things have been worked out rather than thought out, and every week brings changes of theory and practice. The improvement that has entered into both the material and moral side—and that is striking as compared with five months ago—is a greater economy of life. Nothing is more demoralizing to courage than the useless wastage of men and nothing accomplished by the reduction of war to a cold science has done more to steady the British than the curbing of recklessness and the conserving of men.

The development of the barrage and other forms of artillery fire with the accessories of air observation and photography has greatly reduced the high cost of an offensive. The percentage of casualties is now lower than on the defensive, and as the offensive hereafter inevitably must lie with the Allies' arms this established principle will work greatly to our advantage. The French continue to make marvelous use of their .75 field piece, whose value lies in the stability which is derived from its recoil and counter recoil.

To visit Albert, Péronne, Bapaume, Arras, Vimy Ridge, and intervening points, topping off with Messines, where I saw a great display of airplanes with some fighting accompanied by artillery liveliness, is an unforgettable experience, especially in brilliant weather. I am leaving with the conviction that what the British have done is merely a prelude. This is not to say that the Germans are going to scurry out of Belgium, but merely that the British are now absolutely at their best and ready to deliver their most telling blows. While this expectation is fully justified we must be prepared for long waits between attacks. No way has yet been discovered to make an offensive continuous in trench warfare.

FRENCH AT VERDUN HOLD NEW POSITIONS

Germans Throw Masses of Men in Vain Against Lines Captured on Tuesday.

PARIS, July 18.—Furious counterattacks were delivered by the Germans last night against the positions captured yesterday by the French on the left bank of the Meuse, northwest of Verdun. All these attacks were broken up by the French artillery and machine guns, which inflicted sanguinary losses on the enemy. At no place were the Germans able to gain a temporary footing in the French positions.

The Germans have resumed their heavy shelling of the front along the Chemin des Dames, in the region of Cerny, the Hurtebise farm, and Craonne.

The text of the official statement issued this afternoon by the War Office follows:

The artillery fighting became rather violent late at night east and west of Cerny.

We repulsed a surprise attack on an outpost north of Vienne le Château, on the western border of the Argonne, and took a number of prisoners.

On the left bank of the Meuse, after a violent bombardment, the Germans made several counterattacks on the positions we captured yesterday, from Avocourt Wood as far as the western slopes of Hill 304. All their efforts were defeated by the heroic resistance of our troops, which inflicted sanguinary losses on the Germans without yielding to them the slightest part of the conquered ground.

A German attack near the Calonne trench was without result. The night elsewhere was calm.

This evening's official statement says:

There [illegible] rather lively artillery activity in the region of Cerny and [illegible] and in the sector of Craonne. In the morning we repulsed a German attack west of the Cerny sugar refinery.

On the left bank of the Meuse (Verdun front) the enemy did not react in the course of the day west of Hill 304 except with his artillery.

In the forest of Parroy there were patrol encounters. We took prisoners.

BERLIN, July 18, (via London.)—The trenches recently captured by the Germans near Malancourt Wood and on both sides of the Malancourt-Esnes Road were penetrated by the French yesterday, the War Office announces.

On the northern part of the front, from the Yser to the Lys, the artillery fighting increased toward morning.

The announcement follows:

Army Group of Crown Prince Rupprecht—There was heavy artillery fighting on the Coast of Flanders. From the Yser to the Lys it increased considerably toward the early morning. Between Hollebake and Warneton British reconnoitring advances were repulsed in a hand-to-hand engagement.

At La Bassée Canal, Loose, and Lens, and also on both banks of the Scarpe there was lively artillery fighting in the evening. When darkness set in the British made an attack north of the Arras-Cambrai Road. They were driven back except on a narrow sector west of the Vert Wood. A British battalion which advanced north of Fresnoy was driven off by our fire.

Army Group of the German Crown Prince: On the Aisne and Champagne fronts the artillery fighting for the most part was light, owing to the gloomy weather.

On the left bank of the Meuse, (Verdun front,) there was fighting throughout the day. After strong artillery preparation for three hours, the French attacked on a front of five kilometres, (three miles,) from Avocourt Wood to the region west of Dead Man Hill. In the southeastern corner of Melancourt Wood, and on both sides of the Melancourt-Esnes Road, the French penetrated trenches we captured recently, after bitter fighting. Elsewhere they were driven back. A fresh assault delivered in the evening by the enemy, in an attempt to increase his gain, broke down without any success, and with heavy losses. East of the Meuse the firing was heavier than usual.

Army Group of Duke Albrecht: There is nothing important to report.

LONDON, July 18.—A further British advance near Monchy-le-Preux was reported by the War Office early today. The announcement follows:

There was fighting of a local character again last night east of Monchy-Preux, resulting in a further gain of ground by us, and the capture of a few more German prisoners.

Prisoners also were captured by us, and many of the enemy were killed in the course of successful raids during the night northeast of Oosttaverne, and in the neighborhood of Boesinghe. A hostile raiding party was encountered and driven off by our patrols near Wieltje.

The official communication issued this evening says:

We carried out a successful raid last night in the neighborhood of Fresnoy. Several of the enemy were killed and their dugouts bombed.

Owing to clouds there was little aerial activity yesterday until the evening, when a number of combats took place, in two of which large formations were engaged on each side. In the course of the fighting eight German airplanes were downed and six others were driven down out of control. Another enemy machine was shot down by our fire from the ground. Four of our machines are missing.

DRIVE AT HALICZ BEGUN BY TEUTONS

Seek to Recapture the Galician Town Following Their Recovery of Kalusz.

HARD FIGHTING TO SOUTH

Height Near Novica Stormed by the Enemy, but Lost Again in Strong Counterattack.

PETROGRAD, July 18.—Having recovered possession of Kalucz, the Teuton forces in Galicia now are seeking to drive the Russians from Halicz. The War Office today announces that the enemy's guns have opened a heavy fire along the front from south of Brzezany and in the region of Halicz. The text of the statement reads:

Western Front—There has been intense artillery fighting on the part of the enemy in the region of the village of Potutory, south of Brzezany, and in the neighborhood of Halicz.

South of the village of Novica, to the south of Halicz, enemy detachments, after strong artillery preparation, attacked and occupied one of the heights. Our detachments slowly retired on the line of the River Bereznica.

An hour later the enemy renewed the attack from the direction of the village of Novica, but as the result of a valiant counterattack by our infantry and cavalry the enemy was thrown back and we reoccupied the above-mentioned height.

There has been no material change in the situation on the Rumanian and Caucasian fronts.

BERLIN, July 18, (via London.)—Increased activity on the Rumanian front is reported in today's official announcement. Artillery fighting was revived in the sectors of Archduke Joseph and Field Marshal von Mackensen. On the northern end of the Russo-Galician front, in the regions of Riga, Dvinsk and Smorgon, the artillery engagements were more severe.

The official statement reads:

Eastern War Theatre: Front of Prince Leopold of Bavaria—There was an increase in the fighting activity at Riga, south of Dvinsk, and at Smorgon.

In Eastern Galicia the firing was strong at Brzezany.

In the Carpathian foothills Bavarian and Croatian troops in a combined attack captured the heights to the east of Novica, which were stubbornly defended by the Russians, and repulsed Russian counterattacks in the captured positions. At other points on the Lemnica line also the Russians were forced back in local engagements.

Fronts of Archduke Joseph and Field Marshal von Mackensen—A gradual revival of artillery activity was noticeable, especially on both sides of the Suchitsa Valley and along the Putna and the Sereth.

Macedonian Front—There was nothing new to report.

PARIS, July 18.—Concerning operations on the Macedonian front, the War Office tonight issued the following:

Eastern Theatre, July 17.—There was cannonading and rifle firing in the region of Mayadag. During the night several enemy patrols attempted to penetrate our lines at Tarvena Stena and in the neighborhood of Monastir, but were repulsed. British aviators bombarded the station at Angista.

PETROGRAD'S NIGHT OF SUDDEN RIOTS

Workers and Soldiers Engage in Rival, Aimless but Sanguinary Demonstrations.

By HAROLD WILLIAMS.

Copyright, 1917, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PETROGRAD, July 17.—Again there has been bloodshed on the streets of Petrograd, this time more than at any time since revolutionary week. All night long armed soldiers and workers have marched about the streets demonstrating for or against—what nobody could tell, least of all the demonstrators themselves.

The Government crisis was seized on by conspirators as the long-looked-for occasion for action. About 7 in the evening several factories in the disaffected quarter on the north side of the river struck work. Soldiers in motor lorries from Leninite and anarchist regiments scoured the town and called on workers and soldiers to come into the streets. Some consented, some refused, and a strange movement began. An armed battalion marched about commandeering motor cars. Trams were stopped. Lorries and cars with machine guns whizzed and rumbled, some whither and now hither. Crowds of idlers gathered in the central streets. Meetings were improvised. There were fierce disputes. Some of the loyal units came out and acted as a kind of guard.

The Government sat in Prince Lvoff's private rooms. The Council of Delegates sat in the Taurida Palace, and after an excited debate passed against a minority of twenty, a strong resolution condemning the demonstration and appealing for tranquillity.

Shots Fired on Nevsky Prospect.

On the Nevsky Prospect about 10 o'clock shooting began. Who began the shooting is not clear, but men on motor lorries with machine guns began firing indiscriminately into the crowd, which scattered in panic. This happened several times on the Nevsky Prospect and in other parts of the town. A typical case occurred near the Moscow station at 11:30.

A great crowd had gathered around the monument of Alexander. Three motors came up and scattered an appeal from the Council of Delegates condemning the demonstration. Immediately afterward machine gun lorries rumbled up and were hooted by the crowd. Fire was opened from the lorries and the crowd fled. Hundreds flung themselves on the ground to avoid the shots. A fair number were wounded.

Soldiers of one of the local units brought the wounded to the Town Hall. They declared their regiment had been in barracks all day, but when they heard firing in the evening they took their rifles and went out to defend the Provisional Government. At the corner of Sadovaya Street and Nevsky Prospect they met disaffected regiments who, hearing them shout "Long live the Provisional Government!" fired on the loyalists.

Late in the evening life in the streets became complete and unintelligible chaos. It was a hot, close evening. The streets were unlighted to dusk of the falling white night. Crowds wandered aimlessly and excitedly to and fro. Lorries and cars buzzed about filled with yelling soldiers, the nozzles of their machine guns pointed threateningly at the crowds and groups gathered at corners to discuss, to exclaim, to wonder, and to inquire. Yard keepers and their families sat placidly at house gates.

The talk was curiously mingled. One or two soldiers talked against the offensive and complained of Kerensky. Others cursed the Leninites.

On the Liteiny big street crossing on the Nevsky large crowds stood everywhere disputing. Delegates from the Council of Delegates tried to disperse them, saying, "Go home, comrades, go home. There have already been victims;" but the crowd lingered on, watching with some anxiety passing armed cars.

Huge Procession of Soldiers.

At the end of the Liteiny came a huge procession with banners inscribed "Down with the capitalist Ministers! All power to the Council of Workmen and Soldiers Delegates! Down with the War!" It was a strange sight, this great, silent, moving mass in the dusk, with the blur of guns, caps and bayonets of the men on lorries and the bent figures of soldiers on artillery horses, all silhouetted against the pale sky. I asked a young man looking on what it all meant. "This," he said solemnly, "is a reply to the cadets." He waved an evening paper and added, "The cadets have started sabotage. This is the answer of the workers and revolutionary army." As a matter of fact, the workers and revolutionary army did not know about the resignation of the cadets.

When the huge procession came to the Duma shouting, "Down with the capitalist Ministers!" M. Tcheidse went out to them and said: "The non-Socialist Ministers have already resigned," and the crowd was surprised and could not understand why it was demonstrating. A little later Tcheidse went out to another crowd. Some one fired a shot and missed. The cry was started, "Down with the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates!" In another part of the town the agitators shouted that all the Socialist Ministers, including Tseretelli, had been bought by the bourgeoisie for millions of rubles.

Hour after hour the crowds trudged the streets aimlessly and excitedly. I saw a long procession march down the Liteiny, soldiers in an endless armed stream. Mostly they were silent, but one party was singing the revolutionary "Marseillaise." Then a shot rang out. There followed hubbub and a scuffle and indignant cries. Then some vigorous voice yelled out the "Marseillaise" again. Others joined in, and the procession marched on.

Leninites Shirk Responsibility.

Official Leninites denied responsibility for the demonstration. They said it was the work of counter-revolutionists, whose names they knew, but in the Taurida Palace they refused to vote their condemnation. They sat on the fence and promised they would try to make the demonstration peaceful.

There happened last night to be a meeting of the new Town Council in the City Hall on the Nevsky Prospect. The majority in the council is Socialist. After a debate on the food question the councilors were coming out of the hall when suddenly a rattle and cackle of machine guns and rifles rang out from near the Kazan Cathedral, and then shots were fired on the council building.

The councilors ran back followed by a panic-stricken crowd. Then the sitting was renewed.

The Socialists were alarmed and indignant at the firing, and this impression was deepened by the arrival of a number of wounded, who were treated in the council buildings. A committee was formed to draft an appeal to the people. The committee sat for three hours, all because of a Leninite who objected to various phrases, and finally fought a pitched battle of words "for the good of our country." The new Mayor, Schreiber, a Social Revolutionary just returned from long exile, indignantly declared, "But I have fought and suffered for the good of my country all my life," and the Leninite subsided. I saw Leninites there. They were pale and haggard and most obviously frightened.

An attempt was made to arrest Kerensky, but he had left by a train a few minutes before the soldiers who sought him reached the station.

While the Ministers were in session at Prince Lvoff's quarters their motor cars were seized by armed soldiers and then a raid made on the Government garage.

When I returned home about 4 o'clock this morning the streets were quiet. Small parties of soldiers and workers were drifting home. Here and there stood wrecked and abandoned motor cars. I passed the Novoe Vremya offices. They had been seized by an armed band, who were printing their own proclamations.

Today, so far, everything has been quiet, and it is to be hoped the Council of Delegates have control of the situation. A majority of the troops are loyal, and many of the soldiers in the disaffected regiments have not the least idea why they came out. A characteristic incident was the seizure of a small station on the Finland Railway by men from a machine-gun regiment who put machine guns on the line and refused to allow any trains going to Finland to pass, although they passed incoming trains.

There is Germany's hand in the whole business. Watchwords were hopelessly mixed. There was talk of a protest against the disbandment of an insubordinate grenadier regiment at the front. There were outcries against the bourgeoisie, against the Provisional Government, against Kerensky and the offensive. But it was all chaotic.

In the meantime an attempt is being made to form another coalition Government. The Council of Delegates is reluctant to try a Socialist experiment. Prince Lvoff for the present remains at his post, but has put conditions. The crisis is complicated by the fact that the food problem is much worse, and serious privation seems imminent.

of the Reichstag, though perhaps a small one, is claimed for the latter.

Admiral von Tirpitz has telegraphed an appeal to Ernst Bassermann, the National Liberal leader, who is now an invalid, to leave the sanitarium where he is under treatment and assist in the fight against the Bloc resolution in the Reichstag. The von Tirpitz message says:

"No passing food difficulties or war weariness must be allowed to soften the German people's determination and render possible a peace which would threaten the future of Germany and its working classes. The bulk of the National Liberals will probably vote against the non-annexationist resolution."

AMSTERDAM, July 18.—According to news brought by arrivals from Berlin, belief in Liberal circles there is that Chancellor Michaelis is merely a stopgap who will prepare the way for something in the way of a dictatorship, with General Ludendorff in supreme control.

GERMAN MASSES NOT REVOLUTIONARY

Glad Bethmann Has Gone, but Don't Know What Caused His Fall.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 17, (via London.)—The changes that have taken place in Germany within the last few days must not be construed as though the Fatherland were on the verge of political convulsions that might change the foundations of the State radically, nor is there the slightest sign of unrest among the masses beyond the usual expressions of annoyance over the food question, which, as was generally known and expected, would reach the critical point in the first half of July but even today is showing a marked improvement.

The change in the Chancellery has certainly done much to restore the equanimity of the people, if that was disturbed at all. Curiously enough, the masses seem glad that Bethmann Hollweg has gone, as your correspondent has had occasion to observe in his extensive wanderings over all parts of Berlin during the last few days for the purpose of ascertaining public opinion. They are glad Bethmann has gone, there can be no mistake about that; but if you ask the people why, they can hardly give a reasonable explanation. The Berlin masses, at least, failed to a great extent to understand what brought about the change in the Chancellorship. The theory of revolutionary inclinations, such as they are, may be epitomized in the short sentence, "Es muss anders werden," meaning that they want a change. Well, they have had their change, Michaelis in place of Bethmann—and they are quite satisfied. None of them ventures an explanation why Michaelis should do better. No doubt they are pleased that Michaelis is of "Buergerlicher" birth, meaning not of noble blood, but I think they would have accepted Baron von Itzenplitz with much the same equanimity.

The Kaiser's recent decree ordering early ballot reforms is hailed by the masses and organized Socialists as a sign of a good understanding between the crown and the people, the latter seeming to regard it in a vague way as some sort of reward for loyal and brave behavior during the war.

The masses have heard and read of the parliamentarization of the Government, but not being able to measure the present form of Government on that of other countries, they cannot fully appreciate such a modern change of the conditions now existing. The idea is too new yet to evoke any great enthusiasm.

At the same time it must not be supposed that the German masses lack the grade of intelligence of other nations who already possess such a modern government form. If they are slower than others, they are certainly more thorough-going once they have recognized the necessity for reform. That will come, no doubt, their understanding growing with a larger measure of civic rights. But it will never come as it did in Russia. There is no revolutionary spirit here, nor any anti-monarchic tendency, not even among the Socialists. I say this advisedly, for during my wanderings through Berlin I have not detected the slightest sign of anti-monarchic feeling. Certain eventualities have not been thought of, much less shaped in words or planned.

The Hohenzollerns are at the head of the Government and they will be in generations to come. That is gospel truth to the average Prussian, and if he is not outspokenly enthusiastic over it, he at least does not dispute it, but takes it much as one does the unalterable succession of Sunday by Monday. The majority of the Prussian people of all classes are, even after this war of three years, and after having made unparalleled sacrifices, still as loyal as ever to the Hohenzollerns, and they are quick to let you know it if you doubt their genuineness.

Therefore, Americans should not be astonished if Germany goes on in her quiet way, even if parliamentarization does not come as quickly as German parliamentarians seem to demand and as the world in general thinks it ought to come, as even Germany's friends wish it would come. Only an early peace might quicken the pace of reform, because it would mean the election to the Reichstag of many young members graduated from the trenches, the hardest school for matured manhood the nation ever passed through, in place of the somewhat antiquated majority members of the present Imperial Legislature. And such a new Reichstag would probably quickly and quietly arrive at a happy solution of all the problems that as yet divide old Germany from the ideas governing other countries. But do not count on a revolution.

The following extract from an article in the Socialist Hamburger Echo clearly outlines the Socialist attitude to the monarchy:

"'On revient toujours sur ses premiers pas,' says the French adage. Its truth is now proved by Kaiser Wilhelm with his decree of July 11, 1917. He returns to the traces left behind by his decree of Feb. 18, 1890. He again seeks the confidence of the laboring and poor classes. In twenty-six years of peace and three years of war the Kaiser and the people have come to know each other so well that neither wishes the return of the old mistrust and suspicion. No doubt attempts will be made to stir them up again, but we hope that the people's enemies will have no luck. They carefully avoid attacking the Kaiser personally, since they can wreak their rage on the Chancellor, but they will soon find out that Wilhelm the Second is no mere shadow of a Kaiser.

"It is equally foolish to hold him personally responsible for everything that has been done, is doing and will be done during his reign. There is no room today any more for such straining of monarchical idea. No man can rule absolutely a nation of seventy million were he ever so wise and talented. To leave to him the sole disposition of all vital questions of the national life would mean burdening him with a superhuman responsibility and to expose the country and people to the gravest danger.

"It has been said often enough that the German Social Democratic Party has no intention of making a republic of Germany, much less of transforming her into a sort of bourgeois-governed State after the French and American pattern. If the German Kaiser and his successors remain true to the principles expressed in the Easter message and July decree the monarchy will rest at least as secure on the shoulders of the millions of laboring Germans, who are now graduating to equal citizens' rights as it did on the bowed backs of the old Prussian magnates, whose loyalty begins to shake every time the King refuses to do their bidding."

GERMANS GROWING AFRAID.

Stein Seeks to Encourage Them—Tirpitz Asks Time for U-Boats.

AMSTERDAM, July 18.—Many Germans have become faint-hearted, says General von Stein, Prussian War Minister, as quoted by the General Anzieger of Düsseldorf. The General, replying to a telegram from the German National Union, expressing confidence in him, gave the following advice:

"Every one should possess confidence in the future greatness of Germany, but an excessive anxiety and faint-heartedness is still troubling many persons. Every one should endeavor to give an example of self-renunciation and sacrifice and to make selfish and faint-hearted persons ashamed of themselves."

Admiral von Tirpitz, replying to a similar telegram, said:

"The U-boat is extremely effective, but needs time."

BETHMANN A HINDRANCE.

Jules Cambon Says Kaiser Wanted a New Peace Negotiator.

PARIS, July 18.—"One thing is certain, and that is, that Emperor William wanted to get rid of a man who trailed after him unpleasant recollections of the days preceding the war," said Jules Cambon, General Secretary of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, to The Associated Press today. "This was the man to whose name remain fitted the historical words, 'a scrap of paper,' that are unforgettable.

"The Emperor doubtless thought," added M. Cambon, "that by sacrificing Chancellor von Bethmann Hollweg he would make easier the task of the peace negotiations; but, whatever happens, Germany will make its war Chancellor a scapegoat for its own faults and its own crimes.

"Herr Michaelis," continued M. Cambon, "seems to be of the type of disciplined, brutal, Prussian functionary, a Liberal so long as he is not in power, but conservative and reactionary as soon as he is charged with public functions. He will doubtless try, according to the method familiar to the Germans, to practice contradictory policies, supporting von Hindenburg and von Ludendorff and the military party energetically on the one hand, and trying, on the other, to flatter the Socialists and the pacifist elements in Germany and her allied countries. The National Liberal Party seems to desire now to come to an understanding with the Conservatives and refuse to follow the Centre Party in its more conciliatory policy."

FOOD RIOTERS PUNISHED.

Dusseldorf Workers Protest Against Severe Prison Sentences.

COPENHAGEN, July 18.—Advices received from Dusseldorf say that the state of siege there, the result of food riots, has been raised after 185 persons received sentences averaging eighteen months. At a big labor meeting vigorous protests were made against the severity of the sentences. Suspension of the sentences of children and minors, and guarantees against reduction of the bread ration were demanded.

Twelve thousand workmen attended a meeting at Bielefeld, the centre of the Westphalia linen industry, and adopted a resolution demanding peace without annexations or indemnities. They asked the Reichstag to support only a Government making unequivocal declarations along these lines.

WAR LORDS GO TO CHURCH.

Kaiser, Hindenburg, and Ludendorff Attend Cathedral Service.

BERLIN, July 16, (via London, July 18, delayed.)—The imperial family, accompanied by Field Marshal von Hindenburg and his wife, General von Ludendorff, First Quartermaster General, and Count von Dohna-Schlodien, aide de cap to Emperor William and who was commander of the German commerce raider Möwe, attended Sunday's service at the Cathedral here. The service is said to have been one of the most impressive held in the Cathedral during the war.

The text of the sermon was taken from the Ninety-third Psalm, fourth verse:

The Lord on high is mightier than the noise on many waters, yea, than the mighty waves of the sea.

The officiating Court Chaplain invoked the Divine blessing on Emperor William and Field Marshal von Hindenburg, "the man into whose hands the Lord has laid the German sword," and on the newly appointed Imperial Chancellor, Dr. Michaelis.

of the revolutionary army which is fighting against the troops of William."

The resolution protests against the "deplorable symptoms of decomposition" which compromise the whole national authority and the future constituent assembly, and it demands that an end be made once and for all "to all acts which dishonor revolutionary Petrograd."

LONDON, July 18.—A Reuter dispatch from Petrograd filed on Tuesday night reads:

"General Polovtseff, the Military Governor of Petrograd, has issued the following order of the day:

"'In accordance with an order of the Provisional Government to relieve the city of armed disturbers of its peace and security, citizens are requested not to quit their houses without urgent need; to keep their door and gateways closed and prevent unidentified persons from entering their houses. At the same time the troops are ordered to proceed immediately to establish order.'

"A passenger steamer and a flotilla of tugs brought several thousand sailors, soldiers, workmen, and workwomen from Cronstadt to Petrograd this morning. They bore banners inscribed: 'Cronstadt Anarchists' Club. Down with Authority! Long Live the Commune!'

"At the corner of the Newsky Prospect and Sadovaya Street provocative firing was started similar to that of last night. It was followed by the opening of random machine gun and rifle fire. There was more firing still later in the Liteiny Prospect, the people in the street taking refuge in the courtyards of the houses and on the rear stairways. Part of the Cronstadt party made a pilgrimage to the villa of Mlle. Kshesinska, from which the agitator Lenine addressed them."

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PETROGRAD, July 17, 9:30 A. M., (Dispatch to The London Daily News.)—Armed manifestation is proceeding all over the town. Private motors have been stopped and seized as in the first days of the revolution. Regiment after regiment is carrying banners bearing the words, "Down with the temporary Government! All power to the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates!" Already shots have been fired, and in the present hungry condition of the town the manifestation may take serious proportions. Motors and machine guns manned by armed soldiers are again parading the streets.

RUSSIA'S PLAN UNCHANGED.

Embassy Says Resignation of Ministers Was Expected.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—The resignation of the cadet Ministers of the Russian Cabinet as a result of the Ukraine situation was officially explained at the embassy here today as not at all unexpected and as not interfering in any way with the major questions of the Russian military offensive and the reconstruction of the Russian governmental system. The Ministers, it is said, wanted to leave the Cabinet two months ago, when former Foreign Minister Milukoff resigned, but were prevailed upon to continue in office.

The continuance of Premier Lvoff as head of the Government was declared to show the permanence of the Government policy and to indicate that the continuity of the powers granted to it by the Duma had not been broken.

The Ukrainian demand for immediate independence was stated to be a rather natural reaction among men who have always sought freedom from the old reactionary forces and who have not yet been able to realize that the new Russia is actually bringing them the autonomy they desire. Separatist movements are expected, it is pointed out, until the different nationalities can be brought together in a strong administration.

DRAFT HERE 1 IN 14, OFFICIAL ESTIMATE

City Has Supplied Much of Its Quota Through National Guard and Volunteers.

BOARDS GET UNDER WAY

All But Eighteen Organized and Actual Work of Selecting Men for War May Begin Tomorrow.

The chances are about 14 to 1 against any individual who registered in New York on June 5 being drawn for the selective army, according to word received here yesterday from the office of Adjt. Gen. Stotesbury at Albany. These odds were computed in this manner:

New York's quota for war service has been figured by Washington authorities at 122,212 men. From this was taken the number of National Guardsmen on April 1, 1917, the number of guard enlistments to June 30, which was 16,888, and the number of enlistments in the United States Army since April, or 12,588, giving the State an allowance of 52,971. Therefore the State must furnish 69,241 men for the new army, or one man out of every 14.5 who registered.

At 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon all but eighteen of the 189 local exemption boards in the City of New York had turned in their draft cards, numbered as required by the draft law regulations, and it was announced that all of the remaining boards were almost ready to turn in their cards and that there was no doubt that New York City would be ready for the draft this morning.

While the news from all parts of New York City continued encouraging, that was not the case so far as Buffalo and Syracuse were concerned, and at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon the Adjutant General's office in Albany reported over the long distance telephone to the New York City headquarters in the Stewart Building that not a single card had been received up to that hour from either Buffalo or Syracuse. The Mayor of Syracuse denied last night that his city was delaying the draft. He asserted that the cards from that place were mailed to the Adjutant General in Albany on Tuesday. It was stated officially that Adjt. Gen. Stotesbury sent a telegram to Mayor Fuhrmann of Buffalo Tuesday night urging him in the name of the State to speed up the work in that city. General Stotesbury, it was said, worded his telegram in such a way as to make it impossible for any one to mistake its meaning.

The Boroughs of Queens and Richmond reported all preliminary work completed shortly after midnight yesterday morning. The Bronx reported complete with only one or two districts, and those districts would be ready, it was stated, before midnight last night. In all of the Manhattan and Brooklyn districts where the boards had not finished numbering the cards the reports received at the Stewart Building headquarters showed that those boards, without exception, had practically completed the preliminary work.

Exact Location Given.

Manhattan Local Exemption Board No. 167, the headquarters of which is at 107 East 125th Street, has the distinction of being the board which has the largest number of eligible registrants in its jurisdiction. The board turned in its serially numbered cards yesterday, the total number of cards being 4,696. This indicates that the highest of the key numbers to be drawn at Washington will be 4,696.

In about one-half of the boards the list of registrants, with the serial number of each registrant affixed, are posted in the headquarters, and by tomorrow it is expected that every board will have its list on view. All men subject to draft are requested by the Federal and State authorities to visit the headquarters in their respective districts and ascertain their serial numbers, so as to know as soon as those numbers are published what their position in the official list, as it will be made public in Washington, is.

Many of the exemption boards have taken new headquarters in the last few days, and it was not until yesterday afternoon that a complete official list, revised up to date, was available at the New York headquarters. These headquarters, as given in the list, are the places where the numbered lists of registrants will be posted for public inspection. The list follows:

HIGHLAND CHEERS FOR NAVY RECRUITS

Canadians Give Youngsters Bound for Newport a Memorable Farewell.

CITY OWNED BY KILTIES

First Evening of Freedom Showed Them the Town and Coney Were Theirs for the Taking.

A hundred New York youngsters, recruits in the United States Navy, sent off to the Newport Naval Training Station to begin their education as seafighters, received a memorable farewell yesterday afternoon, when the entire force of Canadian Highlanders, now in this city for "British Recruiting Week," went to Union Square to give them a parting cheer. It had originally been planned to split the Highlanders up today into small detachments and send them out through the city to hold recruiting rallies, but the intense heat, to which the fighting men from the North are not yet accustomed, and their strenuous day in Newark on Tuesday caused their officers to abandon this plan. Then they decided upon a day of complete rest, but just at this point Commander Charles A. Adams, U. S. N., in charge of recruiting for the navy in New York, called at the Seventy-first Regiment Armory, where the Kilties are staying, told them of the departure of his recruits, and invited officers and men to see them off.

Lieut. Col. Darling, commanding the Gordon Highlanders, and Lieut. Col. Guthrie, commanding the Macleans, consulted Lieut. Col. J. S. Dennis, who, being in charge of Canadian recruiting in general in the United States, is in command of the expedition, and all decided that an opportunity like this could not be missed. So the pipers were told to strike up and the drummers to beat the long roll, and in a few minutes the Kilties were swinging down Fourth Avenue to Union Square, accompanied by the admiring throng of New Yorkers that follows the Highland bonnets every time they appear.

The new recruits for the navy were drawn up in line alongside the land battleship "Recruit," in charge of Chief Boatswain C. F. Pierce, with Commander Adams on the quarterdeck, and the crew of the Recruit, armed as infantry, a little further aft. As the first distant skirl of the bagpipes came to him, Commander Adams brought his men to attention, and when the first tartans appeared through the cheering crowd, which by this time packed all the spaces around the ship, the bluejackets presented arms. The band of the Gordons marched up on the quarterdeck and played war songs while Commander Adams was formally introduced to all the Highland officers, the pipers and the platoon of infantry forming up on the starboard side of the Recruit, forward. Then Commander Adams and the three Canadian Commanders went down to a speakers' stand which had been erected on the starboard side, and Colonel Guthrie, introduced by Commander Adams, spoke to the recruits as a man who had been in the war since its beginning and knew what he was talking about.

In the Same Fight.

"It is a great thing to be able to talk to you lads today," he said, "for, after all, you come of our blood, your traditions are the same as ours, and more than all, we are in the same fight, and in it to the finish. You are just entering a service of glorious traditions, as every Britisher and Canadian knows, and more than that, you have the right to claim a share in the traditions of the British Navy as the common heritage of the English-speaking peoples. The traditions of the British Navy are now yours as well, for we are brothers all, these days. In fact, in spite of the past, we have always been brothers, but we didn't realize it fully until now. As a Canadian officer I am proud and happy to say so here, because Canada and America in the past have been privileged to prove to the world, by 100 years of unbroken peace, that war is unnecessary between free nations. We have shown it by our long frontier, along which for 100 years not one armed man has ever faced another armed man, nor one gun another gun."

Just as the Highlanders were marching back to their armory, a chance remark by Fire Commissioner Adamson, who was present, caused an impromptu addition to the program which was hugely enjoyed by the crowd. The Commissioner, in conversation with Commander Adams, inquired as to the fire protection on the Recruit. Commander Adams passed the remark off and continued the conversation, but quietly signaled to Chief Boatswain Pierce. A bell rang furiously, a bugle sounded "Fire quarters," and in less than ten seconds half a dozen hose nozzles were playing in all directions over the Recruit's decks, while a bucket brigade lined up with a swiftness that completely satisfied the Commissioner.

Highlanders Won the City.

The Highlanders last night received their first evening of freedom in New York, and soon found that the city was theirs. Everywhere they went they were greeted with cheers and slaps on the back, and found it difficult to spend any money because of the insistence of everybody that they help themselves, free of charge, to anything in the place. Many of them went down to Coney Island, where Luna Park and everything in it, and most of the shows outside it as well, welcomed them with open arms. The mere sight of a kilt and sporran was sufficient to give their wearer a free ride on anything that moved on the island.

Today is Brooklyn Day for the Highlanders. They march to Borough Hall, via the Manhattan Bridge, at 3:30 P. M., and return in the evening after a reception, parade, recruiting rally, and dinner. Tomorrow they will hold recruiting rallies by detachments throughout the city, and in the evening will make their last public appearance at the great rally in Madison Square Garden.

The effects of the Kilties' visit and the enthusiasm they have aroused began to show yesterday in the recruiting figures, both for the British and American services. Over sixty men enrolled for the British service from Newark alone after the visit of the Highlanders there, and men have been coming in from New York at an equal rate. Colonel Walsh, in charge of New York recruiting for the United States Army, said yesterday that volunteers were continuing to come in remarkably well for the lateness of the campaign season, and he attributed the good results almost entirely to the Highlanders.

WANT THE GUARDSMEN TRAINED NEAR HOME

Senator Lodge and Others Resent Plan to Send Northern Troops to the South.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—Attacks on the War Department's policy of training National Guardsmen in Southern camps and the method of compiling the army draft quota estimates continued today in the Senate.

Senator Lodge said the estimate method was "simply preposterous," and created the opinion that the "rolls have been padded." He wanted to know why it was that the National Guard from New England was to be sent to Southern training camps, while the army to be raised by conscription is to be trained at a camp in central Massachusetts.

"If the Massachusetts camp is good enough to drill one set of troops in Winter," he asked, "why is it not good enough for the others?"

Senators La Follette and Watson also voiced opposition to sending Northern troops to the Southern camps. Senator Watson expressed the belief that there was something back of the plan other than military reasons.

Senator Knox said he had received information that the camp at Plattsburg was to be broken up and transferred to a site at Atlanta, Ga. Sentor Wadsworth corroborated this report and characterized the policy as "inconsistent." He said the camp at Plattsburg, which represents an investment by the Government of $500,000, was to be abandoned by the middle of August, although the climate around Plattsburg in the Fall was ideal and training could continue there as well as in the South.

Senator Townsend told of protests by the officials of Michigan against the National Guard being sent to Waco, Texas, and he thought there was something behind it which should be explained.

Senator Weeks indorsed the protest of Senator Lodge and said he knew the opinions of Major General Wood and Surgeon General Georgas had not been asked by the department.

Senator Fletcher read a statement that Surgeon General Gorgas approved of the health and climatic conditions in the South for training of troops through the Winter. Senator Overman said no Southern man was on the board which located the camps.

Delay in laying out camp sites is being remedied and officials of the department believe the first movement will be well under way by the end of the month.

GERMANS IN PLOT TO SPREAD TETANUS?

Three Men Arrested in Kansas for Selling Poisoned Court Plaster.

ANALYSIS REVEALS GERMS

San Antonio Reports Discovery of a Liquid Poison Made for Germans in Mexico.

Special to The New York Times.

KANSAS CITY, July 18.—Federal officials in Kansas City believe that they have in custody three principals in a conspiracy, supported and fostered by agents of the Kaiser, to spread terror by inoculation with deadly disease germs through the medium of court plaster. These men are now under arrest in three Kansas towns. Their names are withheld, Fred Robertson, United States District Attorney, said today, for fear of lynchings. They are said to be Germans.

W. B. Smith, Government chemist, made a laboratory test of court plaster sold and given away in the towns and villages of Kansas. The first test did not satisfy him, and he summoned three chemists from this city. A thorough test revealed tetanus germs—all of the chemists agreeing. Other germs not yet identified were found, the chemists said.

"The work is that of skilled hands," Mr. Smith said today. "The plasters are so made that detection of the germs except by analysis is impossible.

District Attorney Robertson said that those arrested would face severe penalties, because they had been guilty of three crimes—assault with intent to kill, violation of the pure food law, and using the mails unlawfully.

So far Mr. Robertson has heard of no one poisoned by the germs, but he is expecting to hear of such a case in the next few hours, as many persons must have received the plasters, and if none have used them it would be unusual this time of year.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, July 18.—A liquid poison invented by German chemists was being manufactured in Mexico, and perhaps already shipments had been made to Germany, when the plot was exposed by American agents in Mexico, and the Carranza Government took action and put an end to the conspiracy.

Three men said to be chemists were arrested at the border as they crossed the Rio Grande into the United States.

Laccito, a poisonous weed grown in Southwestern Texas and Mexico, is said to be the basis of the poison, which was mixed with oil and could be used for death-dealing purposes in its crude state, and when lighted spread rapidly over a large area, emitting a poisonous gas. In old shacks located near Monterey and Tampico the stuff was being made and put up in iron tubes to be exported as illuminating oil to Germany.

ARMY UNITS RENUMBERED.

New System Indicates Regulars, Militia, or National Troops.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—The War Department today announced the promulgation of an order providing for the renumbering of the different units of the Regular Army, the National Guard and the National Army. The order, which has been approved by Major Gen. Bliss, Acting Chief of Staff, and by Secretary Baker, is as follows:

The three parts of the army of the United States referred to in the Act of Congress, approved May 18, 1917, are designated the Regular Army, the National Guard, and the National Army.

The regiments, brigades and divisions of each arm of these three groups will be numbered in a separate series, and the first number of each series will be as indicated in the following table:

REGIMENT.

	Inf.	F. A.	Cav.	Engrs. Pion'rs.
Regular Army	1	1	1	1
National Guard	101	101	101	101
National Army	301	301	301	301

BRIGADE.

	Inf.	F. A.	Cav.
Regular Army	1	1	1
National Guard	51	51	51
National Army	151	151	151

DIVISION.

	Inf.	F. A.	Cav.
Regular Army	1	..	*15
National Army	76	..	..

*This is to provide for the organization of cavalry divisions, either mounted or dismounted.

The engineer regiments, except pioneers, will be numbered in the manner already approved and put into effect.

The designations of regiments of the National Guard will show in parenthesis their present State designations, as, for example, ——th Infantry, (1st Me.); ——th Field Artillery, (2d Penn.,) &c. The designations of regiments of the National Army will show in parenthesis the State from which each organization, or the bulk of it, was drawn, as, for example, ——th Infantry, (W. Va.); ——th Field Artillery, (Minn.) No parenthesis implies regular army, an ordinary number and State abbreviation implies National Guard, a simple State abbrevition implies National Army.

This system contemplates that the designations in parenthesis will ordinarily be omitted in orders, dispatches, or correspondence, but will be authorized, when desired, for the purpose of local identification and to preserve traditions and local pride.

TO TRAIN 972 NEW YORKERS.

Regular Army Officers to Choose Men for Fort McPherson Camp.

Captain Arthur F. Cosby, Executive Secretary of the Military Training Camps Association, issued a statement last night for the "information and the guidance of the 3,900 men" who have applied for admission to the officers' training camp to be established at Fort McPherson, Ga., on Aug. 27. From these 3,900 applicants the 972 New Yorkers who will be trained at Fort McPherson will be selected.

"Before any man is selected," said Captain Cosby, "he will first be examined by regular army officers at Governors Island. The procedure will be different from that followed in selecting men for the camps now in existence, when successful candidates were selected from their written statements of previous training and education, and the report of the examining surgeons.

"As soon as the applications were listed and filed at Governors Island today the work of notifying the applicants to report for examination began. The examinations will start immediately and will last until about Aug. 7, by which time the officers who will select the 972 to attend the camp are expected to have a good idea of the material at their disposal.

"The notifications to appear for examination are being mailed as rapidly as possible. Because an applicant has not received one already is no indication that he has been rejected, as the letters will be sent out as the applications are looked over by the officers."

It is expected the final list of men certified for appointment to the camp will be completed between Aug. 7 and 10, and notices will be sent to the successful men on the latter date."

CALLS MRS. MOONEY ANOTHER MRS. SURRATT

Attorney Declares San Francisco Plot a Crime Equal to the Murder of Lincoln.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 18.—Characterizing Mrs. Rena Mooney, on trial for murder of one of the victims of the preparedness parade explosion here last July, as a "cold-blooded slaughterer of women and children," and "an anarchistic conspirator," District Attorney Charles M. Fickert asked today for conviction and the infliction of the death penalty in his opening argument to the jury.

"Either you will destroy anarchy or the anarchists will destroy the State," the attorney declared in a dramatic climax of his speech.

"This is the most important case that has ever been tried before an American court, not excepting the trial of those who assassinated the immortal Lincoln. This defendant and her fellow-anarchists, in the time of peace and tranquility, murdered ten men and women and maimed fifty people because they were bent on destroying the very Government which Lincoln preserved and defended and for which he gave his life."

Mr. Fickert asked the jury to "cast away all the maudlin sentimentalities that have been indulged in because the defendant is a woman."

"It is important that the death penalty for anarchy be issued out by this court," he said. "The defendant is not only condemned by the testimony of scores of disinterested witnesses but she is damned by the writings of the conspirators found in her possession."

He declared Mrs. Mooney was the Mrs. Surratt of the bomb conspiracy, and that she should pay the penalty "for the blood she has shed as Mrs. Surratt was made to pay the penalty for the murder of Lincoln."

"Alexander Berkman was at the head of this anarchistic conspiracy," said Mr. Fickert. He called Berkman the arch-anarchist of the United States.

$20,000 BAIL ENDS IVES'S INTERNMENT

CLAIMS U. S. CITIZENSHIP

Seized Because of Letter Found in Hands of von Papen, Whom He Now Disavows.

Walter E. Ives, formerly an officer in the German Army, who was interned at Ellis Island as a "dangerous alien," was released on Tuesday on orders from Washington after he had put up $20,000 cash as a guarantee of his neutrality while at liberty. These facts were made known yesterday. Ives, who is said now to assert American citizenship, in a conversation with a Federal official yesterday, made the statement that reports that he was a friend of Capt. von Papen, the former German Military Attaché, who was ordered out of the country by the State Department, were untrue. He said he did not even know von Papen.

Federal officials dispute the claim made in behalf of Ives that he is an American citizen. They point out that he was born in Germany, that he was educated in that country, married a German woman, and served his tour as an officer of the German Army. As to his statement that he does not know von Papen, it was pointed out that among the letters seized on the person of Captain von Papen, when he was returning to Germany, was one written by Ives to Baron von Oer zu Egelborg of Weisbaden, Germany.

In that letter Ives wrote that, "Thanks to the kindness of our Military Attaché, von Papen, who is returning to Germany, it is possible for me to send you my New Year's greetings."

"Herr von Papen," the letter added, "sails tomorrow with a safe conduct. Otherwise correspondence with Germany is absolutely unreliable. I write a good deal for our cause and otherwise try to make myself useful by propaganda, but it is not the same as being able to take part in the war. How much would I not give for that! We all look with firm confidence for the victory of the righteous German cause, &c."

"This claim made on behalf of Ives that he is an American citizen," said a Federal official yesterday, "is, in my opinion, all tommyrot. The man's father was an American, but he lived in Germany, and, according to the facts in the case, as they appear, expatriated himself before this man was born."

It was reported that several prominent citizens had interested themselves in Ives's case and had lent their influence in obtaining his liberty under bond. Federal officials who were asked about this phase of the matter said they were not in a position to say whether the report was true.

The requests of insurance men in New York that the Government permit Carl Schreiner, the American representative of the Munich Reinsurance Company, to return to New York on a guarantee that he will not be arrested for violating the barred zone regulations are now under consideration. Schreiner is now at Lake George, far away from barred zones, and is said to have made it plain that he must have a guarantee that he wont be molested or he wont leave Lake George. Schreiner represents several millions of insurance in this country, and the New York men who desire to see him want to find out exactly where they stand under the President's ruling that enemy reinsurance organizations shall not do business in the United States during the war.

Schreiner applied for a permit to live at the Waldorf several weeks ago. He was vouched for by several prominent men, among them the President of a life insurance company, the attorney for a well-known private banking house, and one of the best-known men in Wall Street. Up to noon yesterday the permit had not been issued.

It became known yesterday that some of the data seized by Government agents when the offices of the anarchist publications in East 125th Street were raided several weeks ago was sent to San Francisco, and that the evidence supplied by the New York authorities had been used to indict Alexander Berkman for murder in connection with the preparedness parade bomb plot in San Francisco last year. Berkman and Emma Goldman were convicted in New York last week of conspiracy to obstruct the operation of the draft law. They are now serving sentences in Federal penitentiaries.

It is also admitted by the Federal authorities that the data seized when he anarchists were arrested proved that a number of I. W. W. agitators were members of the so-called No Conscription League, of which Berkman and Miss Goldman were the founders. Carlo Tresca is one of the I. W. W. leaders concerned in the movement.

MUST FACE EXTRADITION.

Federal Court Refuses to Release Birdseye and Montgomery.

Judge Manton of the Federal District Court yesterday dismissed the writs of habeas corpus obtained on behalf of Clarence F. Birdseye and George F. Montgomery, in an effort to prevent their extradition to Pittsburgh, to answer to indictments charging them with conspiracy to loot the Pittsburgh Life & Trust Company. The applications to the court declared that the charges set forth in the indictment did not constitute a crime. In his opinion Judge Manton said:

"The form of the indictment may be bad or its subdivision into various counts may be bad, but if the power remains with the court of the demanding State to correct the defect, the rule laid down must control, and the defendants are subject to extradition under the Constitution and laws of the United States. It is the province of the State where the crime was committed to declare what its laws are and to determine that the particular acts on the part of the offenders constitute a violation of the criminal law of that State."

Permission was given to counsel for Montgomery to procure a stay of proceedings if they felt aggrieved over the decision.

Edison Gives a War Phonograph.

Charles A. Edison, at the Edison Laboratories in East Orange, N. J., yesterday presented to the Fifth New Jersey Infantry one of the new phonographs designed for the army and navy. The phonograph is reinforced with iron, and can be thrown into an army wagon or into a ship's hold without damage. The outer case is waterproof and fireproof. It is designed for the open air, and can be distinctly heard for 200 yards. Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt obtained the first one produced and presented it to her husband, Colonel of the Twenty-second New York Engineers. She has also ordered one for the Royal Horse Guards, London.

SMOKE SAVED LINER ATTACKED BY U-BOAT

American Steamer Outran Submarine After Torpedo Swished Past Her Stern.

PASSENGERS IN GRAVE FEAR

Four Big Mail Steamers Arrive from War Zone—Mrs. Craig Hears of Son's Death.

Four liners arrived yesterday at an Atlantic port with passengers and mails from England and Russia, after being detained from thre eto six days at ports in Ireland, through submarines having laid mines along the channels leading out to the Atlantic Ocean.

The vessels were all armed and were not escorted by destroyers on their way out of port. One of the four, an American liner, had a narrow escape from being torpedoed on the morning of July 11, when she was 202 miles west of the coast of Ireland, according to the officers and passengers. The liner was steaming at eighteen knots in a choppy sea at 11.30 A. M., when the officers on the bridge and the passengers standing on the promenade deck saw a torpedo flash past the stern from starboard to port, missing the vessel by sixty feet. The direction of the missile was from north to south. Nothing could be seen of the periscope or submarine because a dense cloud of thick, black smoke was belching forth from the liner's funnels and hung low on the water.

The vessel continued on her course and zigzagged at full speed, but very few of the passengers went down to luncheon at 1 o'clock, because they feared there might be more submarines about. No incident of a startling nature occurred until 3 o'clock on the afternoon of July 13, when the passengers had an opportunity to see the naval gun crew in action against what was taken to be a big U-boat standing well out of the water.

It was on the port bow and was about 2,000 yards away when the gunners opened fire with the port gun, according to Colonel A. C. Graeme Harrison, who comes from Virginia, and is now in the Fourth Dragoon Guards of the British Army. He said that the liner turned a complete circle, so that all the guns could be fired at the supposed submarine until sixty-two shells had been expended, and then the officers realized it was a cable buoy with a small flag attached which had drifted out of some harbor and was carried out to sea. Nearly all the passengers went below and buckled on their lifebelts after the big guns commenced to boom over the water, and kept them on until dinner time.

Members of the crew of the British steamship Cranmore, who arrived yesterday at an American port on a passenger liner, said their vessel was saved from destruction, after she had been torpedoed, by the appearance of an American destroyer.

The Cranmore, they said, was attacked 180 miles off the south coast of Ireland on the morning of June 7 by a submarine, which fired a torpedo that ripped open five plates forward of the engine room on the port side. The U-boat did not follow up the attack because an American destroyer came to the rescue at a speed of twenty-five knots. After rigging a spare jibsail over the side to check the inrush of water, the Cranmore managed to make Queenstown under her own steam. She left Baltimore for Manchester with grain on May 25.

Another American liner, which had been fourteen days on the voyage from a British port, did not see any signs of submarines or mines, the officers said.

W. Tod Martin, who was one of seventy cabin passengers on a big British liner, said that on the afternoon of July 9, off the Irish coast, they saw a destroyer engaged with what the officers on the bridge took to be a submarine, which disappeared below the surface. The destroyer was about six miles off, and the flashes from her guns could be seen plainly, but it was impossible to tell whether the submarine was sunk or not. The war craft made no signals, and the liner did not stop to inquire, because she was ordered into an Irish port just then by the Admiralty.

Another passenger on board was Mrs. M. Young Craig of New Haven, Conn., returning from France, where she had been to see her son, an aviator in the French Army. She was met at the pier by her husband, John Craig, who broke the news that their son had been killed at the front five days ago. Mrs. Craig collapsed in her husband's arms.

The fourth liner, which flew the Russian flag, came via a British port, bringing about sixty officers and seamen of the Russian Navy on their way to the Pacific Coast. The officers of the steamship sighted several mines on the voyage from Russia to England.

FIND COUNTERFEIT COIN.

Federal Detectives Arrest Three in an East Side Raid.

Officials of the Secret Service, under the lead of Captain John Henry, raided an apartment yesterday on the top floor of 67 Avenue C, and arrested two men and one woman on a charge of counterfeiting. A search of the rooms revealed 2,000 spurious quarter dollars made of pewter, and $50 in genuine currency.

The occupants of the apartment were arrested and held for examination by United States Commissioner Hitchcock. They were Salvatore Riccodono, 29 years old; Frank Pirrone, 28 years old, and Fanny Schwartzbach, 22 years old. In the young woman's possession were found twenty-two of the counterfeit coins, and $134 in good money. Captain Henry reported that Pirrone was arrested recently for attempted grand larceny, and was released on parole, and that Riccodono was tried in the United States District Court last April on a charge of passing counterfeit coin, and was set free.

It was alleged that the prisoners drove a big trade in disposing of the bogus money to pushcart peddlers.

ATLANTIC FLEET TO BE REORGANIZED

Daniels Orders Changes to Meet Expansion of Sea Force to Almost Twice Its Normal Size.

ALL BATTLESHIPS ON DUTY

Superdreadnoughts to Constitute One Division—Grant Is Promoted to be Vice Admiral.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—Reorganization of the Atlantic Fleet has been ordered by Secretary Daniels to meet new problems resulting from expansion of the force to almost twice its normal size for war service.

Details of the steps are withheld for military reasons, but the Secretary announced today that the reorganization plan involved the addition of another Vice Admiral to the fleet, and that Rear Admiral Albert W. Grant, now commanding the submarine force, had been named for the place.

Admiral Mayo will remain in general command, with the immediate authority under him divided between Vice Admiral Coffman, at present second in command, and Vice Admiral Grant. The former is to have direct command of a division containing most of the superdreadnoughts and designated as "Force No. 2," while Vice Admiral Grant will command the remainder of the fleet under the designation of "Force No. 1."

It is understood that the reorganization will not affect the division of the fleet now in European waters under Vice Admiral Sims. At the Navy Department it was indicated today that possible operations overseas were not contemplated by the changes, and that there was little probability that either Vice Admiral Coffman or Vice Admiral Grant would be sent abroad in the near future.

Vice Admiral Grant's appointment leaves no vacancies in that rank, and if additional Vice Admirals are needed a further authorization will have to be sought of Congress. Authority for the appointment of three was granted with the understanding that one would be appointed for the Atlantic Fleet, another with the Asiatic Fleet, and the third with the Pacific Fleet, but so much more importance has been forced upon the Atlantic forces that it was decided to station all three Vice Admirals there. Vice Admiral Grant will be succeeded as Commander of the submarine force by Captain S. S. Robison, now commanding the battleship South Carolina.

"This carries into effect a plan worked out by Admiral Benson and Admiral Mayo, which has been under consideration for several months," said Secretary Daniels, regarding the reorganization plan. "There are now twice as many battleships in commission as we ever had before; in fact, every battleship we have is now in full commission.

"The whole purpose of the new organization is to keep our battleship fleet in as perfect condition as possible, to put it in the highest state of efficiency and readiness for action."

CHEAP PEAS FOR SOLDIERS.

Government Buys from Canners "Much Below Present Market."

WASHINGTON, July 18.—Award of contracts for half a million cases of canned peas, the entire supply needed for the army and navy for the coming year, was announced tonight in a statement by the Public Information Committee with the comment that the price is "much below the present market."

The Government's needs were outlined to representatives of the canners here Saturday by Herbert C. Hoover, Quartermaster General Sharpe, and officials of the Defense Council's Supplies Committee. As a result the contracts have been distributed among concerns situated near army and navy depots.

DOING OUR BIT

How You Can "Do Your Bit"

IN THE present emergency all good citizens desire to aid in the defense of the country. One way to help is to cooperate in the use of telephone service, which is of such vital importance to the Nation at this time.

The following suggestions may be of value as illustrating how you can "do your bit":—

Take good care of your telephone instruments and cords, so that they will not become damaged. A broken instrument or a wet telephone cord may cause serious interruption to your service and require labor and costly materials to repair.

Take good care of your telephone switchboard. With the present scarcity of all materials required in the telephone business, conservation of telephone equipment is essential.

Avoid unnecessary calls and help keep the lines open for important messages.

Avoid especially "curiosity calls" in times of emergency—calls that may seriously interfere with important service.

There are three parties to each telepnone connection: you, the operator and the party called. The cooperation of all three is necessary at the present time to assure high grade service for commercial use and for the National Defense.

GRAND JURY CALLS CRUGER DETECTIVES

Devotes Entire Day's Session to the Testimony of Lagarenne and McGee.

CYCLE MEN SEEK A HEARING

Ready to Waive Immunity, They Want to Controvert Statements That They Indorsed Cocchi.

In a letter sent yesterday to the Board of Estimate District Attorney Swann asks for an extra appropriation of $25,000 to meet the expenses of the special investigation into the Ruth Cruger murder. In view of the fact that the Board of Estimate will not receive the request until today, the District Attorney declined to make public the text of his letter further than to say that the appropriation was requested on the ground that the investigation was an "extraordinarily difficult one" and extended beyond the facts of the murder itself into an inquiry regarding the "neglect and malfeasance on the part of certain members of the Police Department" who were connected with the case.

The District Attorney also said in his letter that part of the appropriation would be used to pay for the services of James W. Osborne, who was engaged as a special Assistant District Attorney to conduct the Grand Jury investigation. It was said yesterday that the police aspect of the case would occupy the time of the Grand Jury for at least a month.

Coincident with the arrival in town last night of Governor Whitman, the report became current that the Grand Jury investigation might be extended to include a survey of the work which the prosecutor's office did in the Cruger case, the intimation being that the entire blame for blunders did not belong to the police.

The two important witnesses before the Grand Jury yesterday were Detectives Largarenne and McGee, whose failure to arrest Cocchi and discover the body of Ruth Cruger immediately after she was slain constitutes the ground for the present investigation into police negligence and inactivity. They occupied the attention of the Grand Jury throughout the entire day. The investigators finished with Largarenne yesterday, but will recall McGee to the stand today.

In the hearing before Commissioner Wallstein, and also on several previous occasions when examined by officials of the District Attorney's office both Largarenne and McGee insisted that they paid comparatively little attention to Cocchi's possible connection with the Ruth Cruger murder because of the assurances they had received from motor cycle policemen who knew him that he was a man of good character and above suspicion. In view of these representations, Detectives McGee and Largarenne said they felt there was no need of wasting too much time in investigating Cocchi or the premises where the body finally was found.

A report published yesterday that Largarenne and McGee had repeated substantially the same story before the Grand Jury caused the appearance in the office of the District Attorney of Motor Cycle Policemen John L. Ochsenhirt and Thomas Kerrigan. They came with their counsel and announced their willingness to waive immunity and go before the Grand Jury and deny the story.

Ochsenhirt and Kerrigan were the men who hurried to the Fourth Branch Detective Bureau on the day that Cocchi escaped to inform the detectives of his disappearance. They arrived at the bureau, however, almost simultaneously with Mrs. Cocchi, who came to announce the disappearance of her husband, and actually did so, according to the information of the District Attorney, fully five minutes before the policemen made their report.

In offering to go before the Grand Jury yesterday the motor cycle policemen told Assistant District Attorney Talley that they knew nothing of Cocchi's character, and that they never had had any dealings with him which would enable them to judge what sort of person he was.

District Attorney Swann announced yesterday that a certain amount of light had been thrown upon the identity of Mrs. Louise La Rue, who jumped from the window of her apartment on June 15, to escape violence at the hands of men presumed to have been friendly with Alfredo Cocchi, by the receipt of a telegram from a Mrs. Charles Merralls of Calexico, Cal., who appears to be Mrs. La Rue's sister. The telegram, forwarded in response to a query sent to Mrs. Merralls by Inspector Faurot, read as follows:

"News received. Please send details of sister, Louise La Rue. Worried."

According to the story of Mrs. La Rue, who is now in the Polyclinic Hospital recovering from the injuries received when she jumped, she was attacked by certain men who sought to avenge themselves upon her for having revealed to Mrs. Humiston information leading to the discovery of the Cruger girl's body.

In order to eliminate all possibility of graft among motor cycle policemen, Police Commissioner Woods yesterday put into force recommendations made to him by Commissioner Leonard M. Wallstein with reference to the future conduct of the Motor Cycle Squad. The recommendations as submitted to the Police Commissioner were as follows:

> The Police Commissioner to designate an official at headquarters whose duty it shall be:
> To examine summons books issued to traffic men and to the various precincts outside of Manhattan. No books to be so issued except upon the return of an equal number of used books.
> To examine all books so returned to see that all books have been filled; that the summonses have been issued in numerical order, and that all entries that have been issued were made in ink, and that the stubs bear the certification of the desk officer.
> To compare the stubs returned in the summons books with the stubs and summonses returned from the Magistrate's Court, and generally to supervise the issuance of summonses by policemen, and to make random tests from time to time by comparing the stubs with the blotter entries or otherwise.
> The Police Commissioner to request the Chief Magistrate to cause to be returned to the Police Headquarters upon the first of each month all summons stubs received from the precincts and all summonses so far as court clerks are able to secure them from defendants.

RATE INQUIRY BROADENED.

New Interests Considered in Southeastern Rail and Water Charges.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 18.—The freight rate inquiry conducted here by Special Examiner Gibson of the Interstate Commerce Commission was broadened today by the inclusion of the City of Atlanta, the Nashville Traffic Bureau, the State Commission of Virginia and the Louisville & Nashville, Southern, Atlantic Coast Line and Alabama Central Railroads, in addition to the Boston Chamber of Commerce and other New England interests and the Ocean Steamship Company.

The inquiry now embraces a general investigation of all rail and rail and water rates to Southeastern territory, both as to class and commodity, from Eastern cities and interior Eastern points.

C. E. Bell, general freight agent of the Southern Railway, declared on the stand today that freight rates from Philadelphia and other Eastern ports to New Orleans, Mobile, and other Gulf ports, were controlled by cheap all-water competition.

The Virginia Commission protested against discrimination in favor of Baltimore as against Richmond and Norfolk, alleging that there is not sufficient difference in the rates considering the shorter haul from Southeastern points. Eastern trunk line rates from Gulf ports to Eastern ports, it was declared, have consistently taken account of distance and direct hauls, the latest revision making the first close rate to Baltimore $1.15, New York and Philadelphia, $1.17, and Boston $1.23, an advance of five cents per hundredweight for each under the last revision.

The all-water rate from Gulf to Eastern ports has been advanced from 80 cents to 92 cents. Baltimore's third class water and rail rate is $1.

The Sign of a Reliable Dealer and the World's Best Gasoline

The sign of a good supply dealer is service. And the sign of service is the Red, White and Blue SOCONY Sign. It marks a safe place to stop. The dealers listed below display the SOCONY Motor Gasoline Sign. Gasoline bought from them is sure to be the full-powered uniform "quality" gasoline—"So-CO-ny." Ask for it by name.

GIANTS GIVE CHICAGO CUBS THEIR THIRD SUCCESSIVE BEATING OF THE SERIES

GIANTS AGAIN JOLT UNFORTUNATE CUBS

Chicago Team Plays Placid Brand of Ball and Polo Grounders Win, 4 to 2.

ZIM WAXES VERY WROTH

Heinie Brandishes His Fist in Manner McGraw, Thinks Better of It, but Is Banished by Byron.

Heinie Zimmerman bloomed into a pink rage up at the Polo Grounds yesterday when Umpire Lord Byron called him out when he tried to steal home in the eighth inning. Red-hot sparke flashed from Heinie's eyes and his clenched fist started in the general direction of Byron's nose. Nearer and nearer the fist of Zim approached the umpirical frontispiece. Byron didn't move. He stood with head erect under fire and waited for the terrible blow to fall. The crowd sat back and gasped, anticipating the impending collision, and then——

Well, Heinie pulled his punch and it didn't land on Byron's face. Visions of $500 fines and a hot Summer out of work probably loomed up before Zim and had something to do with quelling the threatened punch. Zimmerman was ejected from the game, and maybe the National League will punish him by sending him to bed without any supper.

The Giants didn't need the run which Heinie made all the rumpus about, for they won 4 to 2 without any exertion. The Cubs are beginning to show that they lead the league in taking punishment, or, perhaps, they have the seasons mixed and are hibernating. Hardly a day goes by but that somebody beats them. The Chicago players contributed their usual number of errors. If it is human to err the Cubs are the most human players on this continent.

The Canadian Kilties, with their bagpipe band, trooped into the park about the second inning and broke up the game for about ten minutes. The bagpipes whined and moaned and everybody got up and cheered, and a regiment of National Guardsmen whooped it up for the visitors and there were heaps of excitement. The tune the Kilties played was pages long and the pipers showed that they had more wind than a Kansas cyclone.

Kilties Take to Peanuts.

While the Highlanders munched away on the peanuts Harry Stevens gave them the American soldiers entertained them by singing "Where Do We Go from Here?" That song set the Cubs to thinking about where they would go after they land in last place. Just now Moose Mitchell's Chicago team, which looked so promising a while back, is the fastest growing club at large. But unlike most things that grow, they are growing downward instead of upward.

Pol Perritt pitched for the Giants and his support was decorated with three double plays which snuffed Chicago hopes. Shuffling Phil Douglas, the best of the Cubs' pitchers, was picked by Mitchell to get at least one game in the present series, and he did well enough until the fifth, when the Giants reeled off four hits in a row and gathered enough runs to put the game on the shelf.

The Cubs started out as if they were going to do something, but, after getting a run in the first, the Giants came right back and tied the score in the same inning, and after that the Cubs accepted defeat as the natural course of events.

The only time that Perritt was in danger was in the first of the eighth, when the Cubs clustered a trio of hits off his service. The best they could get out of the series of raps was a run, although a double play served to save Pol from considerable embarrassment.

Captain Charley Herzog is out of the game for a few days, as an injury to his back which he received several weeks ago is again bothering him. The Giants feel safe in giving their star second baseman a layoff while the opposition is only lukewarm. Lew McCarty, who broke his leg in Cincinnati, is back, but is still hobbling around on crutches. He expects to be back in harness before the season is over.

Cubs Score at Outset.

Eddie Flack opened the matinée with a two-base drive to left. Mann sacrificed and Flack counted on Doyle's hit to centre. The Giants got the run back in their portion of the same stanza. Burns singled to left, went down on Kilduff's out, and took third on a passed ball. After Kauff fouled to Deal, Zimmerman pumped a single to centre, scoring Burns.

With one down in the fifth, Rariden singled to right and was forced at second by Perritt. Burns singled to centre, and when Kilduff rapped a hit to left Perritt scored. Burns went to third and Kilduff to second on the throw-in. Kauff punched a single to centre, sending Burns and Kilduff over the plate.

Harry Wolter batted for Douglas in the eighth and singled to right. He hopped around to third on Flack's single to right. Mann hit into a rapid double play, Wolter being held at third. Doyle smashed a single to left and Wolter scored.

Kauff opened the eighth with a single to right and Zimmerman rapped one to left. Kauff tried to stretch his way to third, as Mann juggled the ball, but he was thrown out at third, Zim going to second. Heine went to third on Fletcher's out at first, and while Robertson was at the bat he attempted to steal home. Byron called him ou, while Zim ferociously claimed that Wilson did not touh him with the ball. Zim's pugilistic uprising resulted in his expulsion.

STAEHL WINS CYCLE TITLE.

Clinches National Amateur Laurels by Sprint in Stretch.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWARK, N. J., July 18.—John K. Staehl, a Newark boy, clinched the national amateur bicycle championship here tonight by winning the two-mile title race. He finished with a strong sprint in the home stretch, nipping Gus Lang at the tape; Chris Dotterweich was third, and Harry Hoffman of San Francisco fourth. There is still one race to be decided, but this will not affect the final outcome of the championship.

Arthur Spencer, the newly crowned professional national champion, easily disposed of Alfred Goullet in two straight heats of a one-mile match race.

ROBINS HAVE RICH INNING.

Score Five Runs in Third and Beat Cardinals Easily.

Brooklyn played better baseball than usual in yesterday's encounter with the Cardinals at Ebbets Field. As far as superlative pitching is concerned, Larry Cheney certainly earned the right to a shutout, but Zack Wheat made this impossible when he heaved a wild throw to second in the ninth inning. The Cardinals hadn't been overalert up to that time, but Hornsby, who was on second by reason of a neatly placed double across the third sack, which trickled away toward the left field bleachers, raced home when Wheat blundered after a fine catch of Paulette's fly. The game closed with the score 5 to 1 in favor of Brooklyn.

The Dodgers tore the lid off the game in the third inning, when they broke loose with a five-run total. Larry Cheney struck out, just as Leon Ames had done a moment before on Cheney's pitching. Olson smashed a single at Hornsby, which the Cardinal short stop headed off, but could not get to first in time to catch the runner. Daubert hit to Betzel, who tried to catch Olson, and, failing, both men were safe. Ames delivered a pass to Myers, which crowded the bases.

Into this turmoil came a hit by Stengel, which amounted to a bunt, although the Dodger swung at the ball hard. Olson was squeezed across and the bases were still full.

Wheat forced Stengel and Daubert raced home, Myers taking third. Cutshaw, who has an inherent ability to hit when hits are needed, dropped a hit just beyond Betzel's reach, and Myers galloped to the plate, while Wheat perched at third.

Cutshaw stole second, which indicates how much asleep were the Cardinals. Ames stopped Snyder's throw to second, never dreaming for an instant that it was intended to catch the slow-moving Cutshaw. Mowrey took first on Ames's continued inability to find the plate and filled the bases. Miller cracked out a single that didn't have even a speaking acquaintance with Hornsby and Wheat and Cutshaw ambled along the worn path to the plate. It was now up to Larry Cheney, who had opened the inning with a strikeout. The Dodger twirler didn't fan the air this time. Instead he hit to Hornsby, who tagged out Miller at second.

YANKEES LAND ON INDIANS IN TENTH

Home Run Baker's Bat Figures Prominently in New York's 12 to 7 Victory.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 18.—A batting rally in the tenth inning, during which the Yankees landed on Stanley Coveleskie for six hits and five runs, gave Bill Donovan's team a victory over the Indians here this afternoon by a score of 12 to 7. In this big inning the Yanks batted around, Maisel opening and closing the frame with grounders to Chapman.

Ineffective pitching had twice enabled the Indians to erase leads which the New Yorkers had picked up. Before the Yanks had been retired in the first inning, they had rung up a three-run lead for Ray Caldwell, but Slim did not last to the close of the inning. He started by fanning Wambsgans, and Chapman reached first on an error by Pipp. After Speaker had doubled and Roth had followed with a single, Donovan decided that this was not Caldwell's day, and he put his case in the hands of Ray Fisher. The Indians chased Fisher to the showers in the seventh, and Allen Russell came on to stop them dead until the Yanks had clinched the game.

The all-round work of Frank Baker, who seems to have discovered the fountain of youth, stood out in this latest victory. He pounded out four hits during the afternoon, and these blows figured in six New York runs. In the first inning, after driving in a run, he stole second and later stole home, and in the tenth he made a spectacular one-hand catch of Graney's low drive.

The tenth-inning rally developed unexpectedly. Maisel had been retired on his grounder to Chapman, when Peck bounced a single off Evans's shins. Pipp was safe, when Coveleskie, who covered first, muffed a throw from Wamby, and Peck reached second. Baker lined a single into right field, filling the corners.

Donovan decided it was time to introduce Armando Marsans into the Yankee squeeze-play club, and the Cuban delivered with a perfect bunt, scoring Peck and leaving the bases still filled, as Marsans beat out the bunt. Chapman got Miller's drive and forced Pipp at the plate. Nunamaker beat out a slow roller to third and Baker counted. Russell got a hit to deep short, so deep that Chapman could make no play, and Marsans scored. High followed with a single to centre, scoring Miller and Nunamaker. Maisel ended the inning with a grounder to Chapman.

WILL RESUME ALL SPORTS AT CORNELL

Student Committee Advocates Intercollegiate Competition Next Fall.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., July 18.—Intercollegiate athletics will be resumed at Cornell University next Fall with the approval of the Faculty. The Committee on Student Affairs today formally went on record as approving the purpose of the Athletic Council to resume such activities next Fall, and it is now safe to say that, regardless of the action of Harvard, Yale, or Princeton, Cornell will play football and other sports in the coming year.

Graduate Manager Kent today said that it was improbable that Cornell would suspend the freshman rule. He intimated that the policy of barring freshmen from playing on 'Varsity teams would be continued and that the membership of the teams would be recruited from the three upper classes.

Mr. Kent also declared that it would be Cornell's policy to broaden as far as possible the scope of athletics so that a larger number of men than heretofore may take part in them. Cornell will not seek to turn out specialists, highly trained men in various teams, but will, on the contrary, make every effort to provide athletic activity for the students. The idea of sport for the sake of healthy exercise and physical training of young men will be emphasized rather than specialized athletic for the few.

The Athletic Council was influenced in its decision to restore intercollegiate contests because it recognized that such contests prove a common bond of interest for the undergraduate body.

YALE SCHEDULE CANCELED.

Announcement Made That There Will Be No 'Varsity Football.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 18.—Yale's football schedule for the coming Fall has been canceled. The usual list of games was arranged last January and there has been some delay in formally writing to Yale's rivals and asking, in view of the war situation, whether the games cannot be given up. Only two of Yale's opponents, Princeton and Harvard, have taken similar action.

Yale has not yet received formal response from either Harvard or Princeton relative to its proposal that freshman games be played this Fall. Yale plans to arrange a light schedule for the 1921 eleven and would be glad to close it with a game against Harvard and one against its Princeton class rivals.

Professor Robert Corwin, Chairman of the Yale Board of Athletic Control, has just returned from Boston, where he met Dean Briggs, who holds the similar position at Harvard, and the athletic situation was discussed exhaustively. Dean Briggs appeared informally to be pleased with the idea of a freshman game with Yale, but Harvard's official action on the matter, like that of Yale, will probably depend on the military situation when college opens in September.

SEVEREID'S ERRORS FATAL.

Two Blunders in Succession Let Red Sox Beat Browns, 1 to 0.

ST. LOUIS, July 18.—A fumble and a wild throw by Severeid in the second inning were responsible for St. Louis's loss of today's game to Boston, 1 to 0. In this inning Scott singled, Agnew tapped in front of the plate and was safe on Severeid's fumble. Severeid then threw the ball to right field and Scott scored.

Mays allowed only four hits, two of which were made by Sloan. In the eighth, when the locals had the bases filled, Mays fanned Sloan, retiring the side.

NEW STANDS FOR TOURNEY.

Start Preparations for National Tennis at Forest Hills.

Preparations for the national singles tennis tournament at Forest Hills, which this year replaces the national singles championship, are already under way and the United States National Lawn Tennis Association is bending every effort to make the event not alone a success financially, but one which will be remembered as having developed some play of an exceedingly high calibre.

Harry Parker, Treasurer of the committee which will have charge of the event for the West Side Tennis Club, will open his office at the Hotel Vanderbilt today. The Board of Governors of the West Side Tennis Club, at its last meeting, appointed a committee to take charge of the tournament, which will begin on Aug. 20. This committee is made up of Julian S. Myrick, President of the West Side Tennis Club; Raymond D. Little, Harry Parker, William A. Campbell, Dr. T. B. Barringer, John A. Tompkins, Edward C. Conlin, C. G. Holymun, Elon H. Hooker, Lyle E. Mahan, and O. L. Becker.

It has been decided to erect one stand having 3,500 reserved seats. Season tickets will be $7.50, and daily admissions $2. Seats will be allotted in the order of applications, which must be accompanied by check and sent to Harry Parker, Treasurer, at the Hotel Vanderbilt. No single tickets will be sold except on the day of the match. The net proceeds will be devoted to the ambulance fund being raised by the National Association, neither the association nor the club receiving any of the profits.

Added to the interest in the meeting of so many ranking players will be that occasioned by the five matches between Miss Molla Bjurstedt and Miss Mary K. Browne. In November, 1915, Miss Bjurstedt defeated Miss Browne, but in March, 1917, Miss Browne was the victor. They met both times in California. Because they seem so evenly matched their series at Forest Hills is bound to attract much atention in the tennis world.

LEGAL W. FINISHES IN VAN.

Wins 2:16 Trot at Parkway Track in Straight Heats.

With straight heat victories ruling in the three events on the program, the second day's racing of the Parkway Driving Club's harness meeting held yesterday on the one-half mile track at Ocean Parkway and Kings Highway, Brooklyn, was a striking contrast to the events of the opening day. Despite the convincing results of the various heats good sport was seen by large crowds, which packed the lawns and grand stand.

Nothing of an adverse nature happened save for a spill in the third heat of the 2:16 trot for a $1,000 purse, and this, fortunately, did not result in anything more serious than a badly damaged sulky. This event was the day's feature, and Tom Berry drove Legal W. under the wire a winner in three heats. In each heat Berry's advantage as the field passed the judges' stand was ample, and, with the exception of the final heat, Legal W., holding the pole position, came home in better than 2:16.

In the final heat of this race Driver Tyson, behind the Stoeckle Stables' Zombro Rex, was thrown from the sulky as the field was entering the stretch. Zombro Rex was closely followed by the Consewogue Farm's Silvermine. The latter horse, as Driver Tyson left his seat in the sulky, reared up on his hind legs and threatened to become unmanageable, but his driver, Crossman, gained control over the spirited animal and brought it home in eighth place. Zombro Rex finished the heat with the right wheel of its riderless sulky smashed completely, and was placed ninth.

RIDGEMARK SCORES UPSET.

Six Harness Races Run Off at North Randall Meeting.

CLEVELAND, July 18.—Ridgemark was the big surprise in a day of surprises at the North Randall Grand Circuit meeting today when Trainor piloted the bay son of Wilask to the front and captured the $3,000 Ohio Stake, the feature of the card.

Six races were run off without a hitch. The biggest crowd of the meeting so far was out, and the betting ring was jammed. Ridgemark, a rank outsider in the betting, paid the best price in the mutuels so far, those backing him to win getting $141.80 and the place price being $39.90.

REACH GOLF SEMI-FINALS.

Women Players Advance in Van Cortlandt Park Play.

Play in the women's golf tournament at Van Cortlandt Park advanced to the semi-final round yesterday. Those who still survive are Mrs. M. S. da Costa and Mrs. G. Schwab, in the upper half of the draw, and Mrs. W. G. Mulock and Mrs. L. M. Jardine in the lower half.

The closest match of yesterday's round was that between Mrs. Mulock and Mrs. Taylor. This was not decided until the home green was reached. They were all square at the seventeenth and Mrs. Mulock finished 1 up. Even with her low handicap, Mrs. da Costa was able to dispose of Mrs. T. Munro without great difficulty. Her victory was registered at 5 and 4.

The summaries:

Third Round.—Mrs. M. S. da Costa, 24, defeated Mrs. T. Munro, 30, 5 and 4; Mrs. G. Schwab, 30, defeated Miss M. Allison, 42, 4 and 2; Mrs. W. G. Mulock, 28, defeated Mrs. A. Taylor, 32, 1 up; Mrs. L. M. Jardine, 38, defeated Mrs. T. A. Stoutenburgh, 35, 4 and 2.

SPECTATORS HOOT JUDGES AT RACES

Disapproval of Decisions at Empire City Track Causes a Demonstration.

Empire City had its most tempestuous day of racing yesterday. Five favorites were beaten, three of them at odds on, and in two instances the decisions of the judges were noticeably disputed by the crowd on the lawn. In the last race, when James Butler's Bantry was declared a winner over the 7-to-10 favorite, Dr. Johnson, the demonstration approached a disturbance.

The crowd surged around the judges' stand, some hooting and booing, while others showed their approval of the decision by clapping. These untoward happenings rather overshadowed the racing, which was of great interest, as it marked the further slipping back of the old champion, Roamer.

With only five fair-class performers against him, Roamer was considered a sure thing in the Mount Vernon Handicap at a mile. The son of Knight Errant ran out in front all the way to the stretch, where he was passed by St. Isidore, an added starter, which carried the colors of the Brighton Stable. St. Isidore drew clear to win by a length and a half. Daddy's Choice, on the rail, and Wistful, on the outside, closed so fast that the three horses following St. Isidore were noses apart as they crossed the line. Daddy's Choice was placed second and Wistful third, Roamer being dropped back to fourth.

John O. Whitlow's crack Western three-year-old Westy Hogan was made an odds-on favorite for the six-furlong dash and, after closely following the pace set by Bedtime Stories, fell in behind Riverdale at the stretch turn. Connelly started to make his run on the outside and then cut across the track to the inside, losing so much ground that he failed by a head to reach Riverdale.

The first instance in which the spectators evinced disapproval of the judging was in the fifth race. Jefferson Livingston's Sosius shot up on the inside, while the favorite, Intone, was well on the outside of the track. The verdict was in favor of Sosius. In the sixth race, which caused the greatest demonstration, Bantry shot through on the rail and saved much ground, while Dr. Johnson was forced by Star Class to run very wide.

In both these cases the positions of the horses on the track were similar to those in other recent cases where the judging has been criticised. The persons on the lawn as well as the callers in the press stand are so placed that the angle created when two horses are far apart is decidedly in favor of the outside horse. In these disputed decisions it is noticeable that, though the callers in the press stand are supposed to make allowance for the angle, the judges have always picked the inside horse as the winner, while the unofficial experts have called the outside horse. The summaries:

ASSAILS THE B. R. T. FOR REFUSING CARS

Counsel for Service Board Says Writ Was Obtained to Delay Supply of Equipment.

PUTS GOOD FAITH IN DOUBT

Mr. Ransom Asserts Service Is 'Outrageously Congested on the Surface Lines of Brooklyn—Denial Entered.

The Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company was attacked yesterday by William L. Ransom, chief counsel for the Public Service Commission, during the hearing before Justice Ordway of the Supreme Court on the writs of cerorari obtained by the company to review the commission's order that the company increase its equipment by adding to it 250 cars for use on its surface lines. A decision by the Court of Appeals was to the effect that the courts had no power to review any action by the commission except where legal questions alone were involved. Recently Commissioner Whitney declared that the company knew very well that it had no standing in court and that its action was merely for the purpose of delay.

In his argument for a dismissal of the writs Mr. Ransom submitted affidavits made by Mr. Whitney and by James B. Walker, Secretary of the commission, for the purpose of proving the fact that the B. R. T. Company was not acting in good faith.

"The company knows that these new cars are needed," said Mr. Ransom, "that its service is outrageously congested, that conditions on many street surface lines in Brooklyn are a scandal, that the Legislature has lately said that the commission has exclusive power to regulate the number of passengers carried on street surface railroads, and that the commission can end these conditions only if an adequate number of proper cars are provided. Almost in the same breath in which the company asks the commission to authorize them to charge passengers an additional fare it flouts the commission's reasonable minimum order for the furnishing of cars necessary to carry passengers on any tolerable basis at all. For the sake of a delay of six months or a year, the company is persuaded to ignore the law and defy the dictates of commonly known facts."

Mr. Ransom protested against such an abuse of judicial processes and constitutional rights. He declared that the voluminous correspondence on the matter clearly proved that the writs were obtained in bad faith, and that no issue was raised on which any court could set aside the order of the commission. He said that the writs were obtained without notice to the commission, and that no opportunity was given to the commission's representatives to be heard.

"The commission," continued Mr. Ransom, "has no desire to be unjust to the company or to any of its subsidiaries. Justice and fair dealing to the company, no less than to the public, is the spirit and purpose of the Public Service Commissions law. The recent management and policy of the company had given reason for hope that there would be no return to old-time methods. It is hard for the commission even now to believe that these writs represent the best judgment of the officers of the companies interested as to what should be done in dealing with the commission and the public.

"If anything a commission orders may be indefinitely delayed by the simple filing of a writ, without even a pretence of concealment of the corporate purpose, the public will of necessity find reason for disappointment in the failure to realize in New York the benefits won by public service regulation in States which countenance no such dilatory writs. The lower courts should refuse to grant or countenance writs of this character."

Arguing in behalf of the company, D. A. Marsh said that additional cars were not needed, and that there would be still less need for them when the new rapid transit lines were in operation.

"It is unreasonable," he said, "to require these companies to go into the present abnormal market and purchase cars. There has probably been no time in our nation's history when prices for labor and material were so much above normal or when deliveries were so uncertain. It should be borne in mind that the credit of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit system, of which these companies are a part, is pledged to the carrying out of rapid transit enlargement jointly with the city, entailing for our system an expenditure of not less than $60,000,000, and inasmuch as this credit must for some time be assured by the earnings of the surface lines, any unnecessary burden now imposed on those lines will be an impediment to the larger plan of transit development.

"The time given the companies to provide the cars is so limited that unless the dates mentioned are to be considered as subject to change, no opportunity is given to exercise a proper and reasonable discretion with respect to market conditions."

Counsel will have until Monday in which to file papers.

Concert for Jewish Relief Saturday.

Announcement was made yesterday by the committee that the following artists would appear at the concert to be given next Saturday night in the City College Stadium for the benefit of Jewish relief: Giovanni Zenatello, Italian operatic tenor; Adam Didur, basso, of the Metropolitan Opera House; George Baklanoff, Russian baritone, and Miss Sophie Braslau, operatic contralto. The symphony orchestra will be conducted by Nahan Franko.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

The bookings for the Manhattan Opera House for the first part of the coming season have been announced. "The Wanderer" will be revived there Aug. 20, and after a brief engagement will go to the Philadelphia Grand Opera House. "Experience" will be revived next for a few weeks, and will be followed by the Oriental fantasy, "Chu Chin Chow." The premiere of this will take place on Thursday, Oct. 18.

Victor Mapes's new comedy, "The Lasso," will be presented at the Lyceum Monday night, Aug. 1[illegible]. The cast includes Shelley Hull, Phoebe Foster, Edward Abeles, Helen Westley, Charles A. Stevenson, Beatrice Noyes, Burton Churchill, Eleanor Gordon, Lillian Cooper, Sam Colt, and Florence Johns.

A jury of well-known artists and illustrators has been appointed by Charles Dillingham to choose the young women for the chorus of the new Fred Stone show. On Aug. 1 all photographs of applicants will be submitted to the committee, who will select the sixty handsomest from the lot.

Margaret Jarman, mezzo-soprano, has been engaged by Henry W. Savage for the role of Therese in "Pom-Pom," in which Mitzi Hajos will appear on tour during the first half of the season.

Maude Hannaford has been engaged to appear in Wilton Lackaye's support in "The Inner Man," when it is presented at the Lyric next month.

Katherine Grey has been engaged to play the role of Rosalie La Grange in "The Thirteenth Chair," in the company that will act the Veiller melodrama on the Coast next season.

MANAGERS COMBAT MUSICIANS' DEMANDS

Refuse to Pay More in Wages and Say They Will Hire Non-Union Men.

The squabble between the musicians and theatre managers that comes every few years when the former announce the adoption of a new scale of wages has been resumed. The United Managers' Protective Association, whose membership includes all of the principal producing managers, at a meeting yesterday decided not to meet the raise in wages announced by the musicians, to become operative Aug. 1.

At a series of meetings held last month the Musical Mutual Protective Union decided to demand a new scale of wages. The prevailing weekly wages and the wages asked for under the new scale for the various kinds of work follow: Dramatic attractions, $24, $28; musical comedy, $30, $35; big time vaudeville, $33.50, $40; first-class picture houses, $38.50, $42; picture houses charging $1 or more admission, $42, $45.

The managers says they will hire non-union musicians rather than pay the advance, while the union musicians assert they will not compromise. Heretofore they have had the backing of the other theatrical unions, and have gradually raised the wage scale, in spite of the protests of the managers. A conference of managers and musicians will be held today in the rooms of the Managers' Association to see if some agreement cannot be reached. The musicians have chosen a strategic time for their demands, since more musical plays than usual have been planned for production the coming season, many managers believing that our entry into the war will make light entertainment popular.

CITY BREVITIES.

Charles Scribner's Sons announced last night that they have purchased "Architecture," a magazine devoted to the interests of the architectural profession.

Edward K. Sumerwell, Chairman of the General Reception Committee, announced last night that a patriotic fete and ball would be given by the Commercial Law League of America at its convention at Saratoga Springs on July 25 in conjunction with the Saratoga Springs Chapter of the American Red Cross.

CHEER 'THE MARSEILLAISE.'

Big Audience at Civic Concert Stirred by Leon Rothier's Singing.

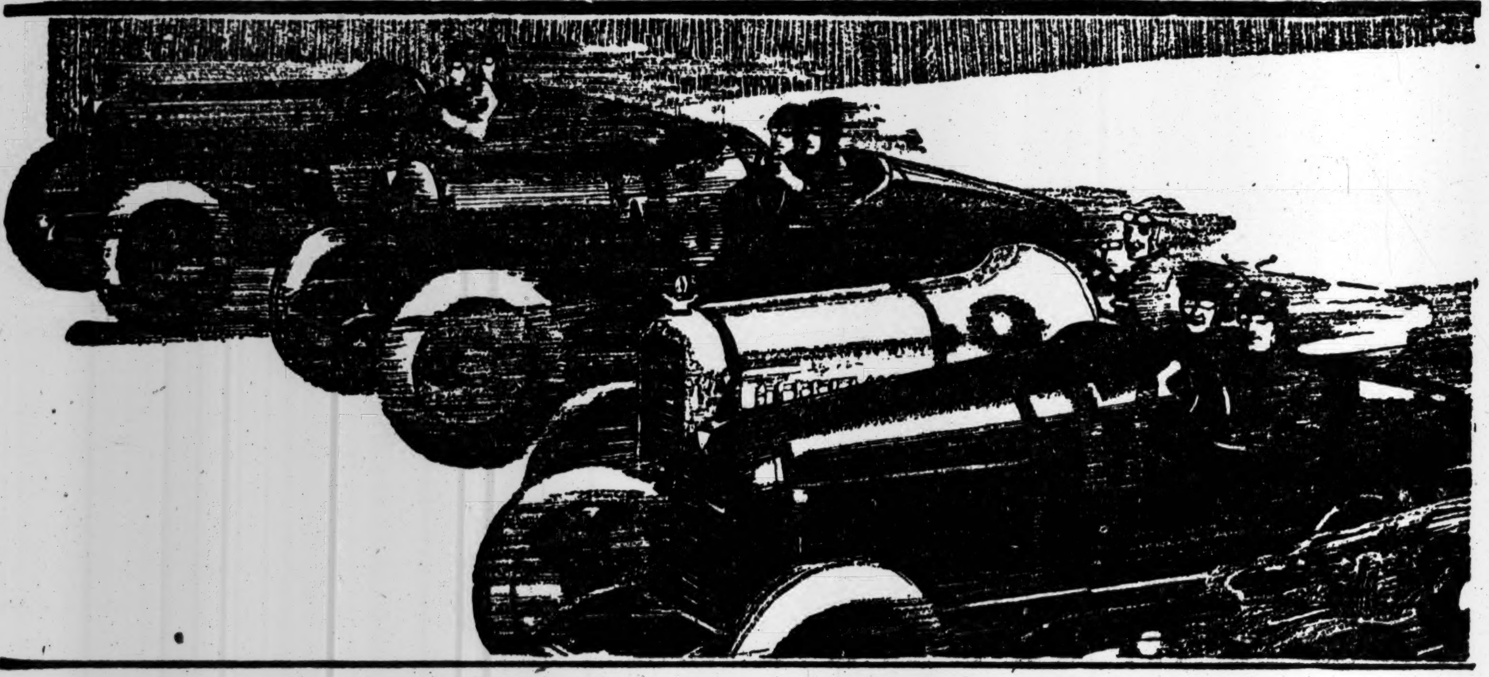
The singing of "The Marseillaise" by Leon Rothier at the Civic Concert last night brought the large audience, an audience that filled St. Nicholas Rink in spite of the extreme heat, to its feet shouting. In reality the crowd did not wait for M. Rothier to begin the stirring anthem, but leaped to its feet with a shout when the singer, bearing a French flag on a standard, first appeared over the heads of the musicians at the rear of the stage.

M. Rothier's other numbers were the Invocation from Mozart's "The Magic Flute" and the Nun's Song from Meyerbeer's "Robert the Devil." The instrumental soloist was Maurice Dambois, who played Boellmann's Symphonic Variations on the 'cello and followed it with an encore. The orchestra, under Pierre Monteux's leadership, played selections by Beethoven, Berlioz, Debussy, and Buzzi-Peccia.

Next Sunday night's concert will be the tenth and last of the series as originally planned. To date funds sufficient to extend the series have not been forthcoming, and unless a guarantee is raised to cover the deficit due to the popular price charged the orchestra will have to be disbanded.

Harris Estate to Stage New Plays.

The activities in which the estate of Henry B. Harris will engage during the first part of the coming season were made known yesterday. A new play by Lee Wilson Dodd, entitled "The Jackknife Man," will be produced shortly with Frank Bacon in the principal rôle. In October "The Claim," a new play by Charles Kenyon, will be produced, and this will be followed by "Playing the Game," a new play by Sada Cowan.



Hudson Wins at Omaha, Tacoma and Uniontown

150-Mile Race at Tacoma
First—Third—Fourth

Eleven cars started. Three Hudson Super-Six Specials were entered and all finished. Patterson first—Roades third—Malcolm fourth.

Patterson led at 50 miles, 100 miles and finished a minute and twenty-three seconds ahead of the second car.

Roades and Malcolm each drove Hudson Super-Six Specials which were stock cars they had converted into racers. They are professional drivers who enter and drive their cars independent of factory assistance.

Two Races at Omaha
First in one—Second in other

Ralph Mulford averaged 101.26 miles an hour in the 150-mile Championship event.

There was a field of 14 starters.

Mulford made one tire change.

In the 50-mile race he finished second, 42 seconds behind a Hoskins Special.

Two tire changes in this event cost him first place.

At Uniontown
First in one—Second in three

The principal event at the Uniontown (Pa.) meet was run in three heats.

Ira Vail was the Hudson Super-Six driver. He finished first in the 29-mile heat—second in the 10-mile and second in the 50-mile heats.

A tire change cost him the 50-mile heat by one second.

Super-Six Specials Defeat Rival Racers in Every July 4th Championship Event—More Proofs of Endurance

Championship Speedway Races again reveal the mighty endurance of the Hudson Super-Six.

In the three July 4th events, Hudson endurance defeated the fastest cars known to racing.

In a field of 28 starters at Cincinnati, Memorial Day, the four Hudson specials finished first in the Free-for-all; Second, Seventh and Ninth in the 250-Mile event.

At Chicago, Ralph Mulford on June 16th established the American Speedway records for 150 miles and for 200 miles at an average of 104 miles per hour.

Made Stock Car Records Last Year

Last year Super-Six stock cars and stock chassis made new and important records for endurance, power and speed. Those were non-competitive tests. They were made against the best times of other cars.

They included the fastest stock chassis mile—the 100-mile stock car record—the one-hour stock car record and the 24-hour stock chassis record. These were officially timed by the American Automobile Association.

Then in addition to these, a seven passenger Hudson Super-Six Phaeton broke every transcontinental automobile record. It did it both ways in the only double, twice-across-America run ever attempted against time.

All Hudson records are the result of Hudson endurance.

Cars may be built lighter and have more power, weight considered, just as most of the racers are, but none have proved an equal degree of endurance.

That is why Hudsons win.

It is why so many professional race drivers have adopted Hudsons in their speedway races.

In the three July 4th races you will note some of the Hudsons were rebuilt stock cars. They were made suitable for racing because their owners had confidence in them to win prizes.

The cars were entered independent of any factory influence.

You Too Can Rely on Hudson Endurance

In converting Hudson Super-Six stock cars these men made no change in the principle that accounts for Hudson endurance. They merely made such changes as can be made to any Hudson Super-Six. They did not have to do anything to increase the endurance quality of the cars. That quality is built into every Hudson Super-Six.

You, of course, are not interested in owning a racing car, but when racing reveals a quality so important as that of endurance, as it does with the Hudson Super-Six, then you are interested in its performance.

The speedway shows, in a few miles, weaknesses that it might require thousands of miles of ordinary service to reveal. You are not interested so much in what the performance will be in a car you buy in its first few thousand miles.

You want to know what you can depend upon after the car has seen thousands of miles of service. Look at these records and you will see what you may expect of the Hudson Super-Six.

The speedway test of 150 miles is more trying than the thousands of miles you will drive with your car.

You want to know what the car you buy now is likely to cost in maintenance. You want to know how much time it will be in the repair shop after a half season's use. Do not these proofs persuade you to buy a Hudson Super-Six? They should. 37,000 have already bought and they have added to these records their own experiences with the Hudson Super-Six.

There are eight body types on the Hudson Super-Six. The Phaeton 7-passenger car sells at $1650 at Detroit.

AGAINST AMERICA.

Unwelcome as the fact may be, it is no longer possible to doubt that there are in the United States Senate men who intend to do all that in them lies to make the war a failure. Whatever their motive may be, they intend to work against the interests, the welfare, and the success of the United States in its life-and-death grapple with Germany. Each war measure that comes up is to be thwarted, hindered, and, if possible, emasculated. When open opposition will best serve their turn, that will be their course; when that is not safe, they will raise side issues and insert amendments which are not relevant, for the purpose of dividing the counsels of the people.

The Food Control bill has been dealt with in both these ways, and now the announcement that the Aviation bill is to meet with open opposition puts beyond a doubt the suspicion which the course of these men had already raised in the mind of the public. When the War Revenue bill came up, the method of obstruction by entanglement was adopted. The same course was followed with the Food Control bill. Irrelevant and exciting questions, of which the most effective was liquor prohibition, were introduced, and irrelevant amendments inserted, the obvious purpose being to raise up with each amendment new enemies for the measure as a whole. That stage has been passed, and now there is a change of tactics; the measure is being opposed in the open, sometimes, as in the instance of the preposterous attack on Mr. Hoover, on the most flimsy and trivial grounds.

The bill to give the United States a great air service is now to be opposed, and apparently the tactics of open opposition are considered the most effective in this case. The aim is not to defeat the measure, of course, but to delay it as long as possible, so as to keep that branch of the army from inflicting any damage on Germany until the last moment to which opposition can be prolonged. Similarly, it was never expected that food control could be defeated, only that it could be delayed until its effectiveness as a war measure could be lessened as much as possible, and so that those who are making their profits out of high prices would gain as much time as possible for their speculations.

Since we are in this war, we must win or Germany must win; there is no other outcome. Anybody who labors against our military preparations works for our defeat and for Germany's victory. The Senators who have taken this course of action must be presumed to know that. The country will care very little what reasons they may allege for their course, and very much for the obvious effect and result of their work. That result is both sinister and singular. And the country will not forget that the men who now, in time of war, are doing these things, are the men whose course before war broke out was that course which gave most satisfaction to the friends of Germany.

THE MARTYRS.

Sympathy offered to the stout-hearted women who have gone to the workhouse in Washington for displaying their woman suffrage banners and creating a disturbance in front of the White House would be an impertinence, an affront. Admiration, not sympathy, not pity, is the martyr's crown. Justice, and it was never more just, gave to these women the choice of paying a fine of $25 each or going to the workhouse for sixty days. They elected sixty days in the workhouse, so their detention is voluntary. Their attitude is that they suffer an outrage because of their zeal for a noble cause.

This is not the attitude of society, of the vast majority of their countrymen and country-women. Irrespective of the merits and nobility of their cause, their behavior was not merely unlawful, it was scandalous and offensive to the country, it aroused the indignation of right-thinking men and women. We are at war, the greatest responsibility rests upon the Chief Executive of the nation, the people instinctively feel that to subject him at the present moment to any propagandist pressure or annoyance is an act verging upon disloyalty. These women did what the law forbade them to do, they defied the command of the police authority. It is right they should suffer the penalty of their misdoing, and, in view of the unseemly and disgraceful character of their demonstrations in front of the White House as well as their obvious pride in what they call martyrdom, sympathy for them would be misplaced.

The women suffragists of England for some years sought to force their cause upon the attention and acceptance of Englishmen by disorderly behavior. When the war began they adopted saner, wiser, more effective tactics. They did noble service for the nation, they made Englishmen feel that they were worthy of the ballot, and they got it. These misguided propagandists in Washington are doing their utmost to convince the country that they ought not to have the right to vote. Like the I. W. W., a good many of the Socialists, and others engaged in class war, these women put the success of their cause above everything else on earth, even above the interest of the nation, confronted by the perils of the great war. This is denial and repudiation of the very essence of patriotism. To obstruct the Government in preparing for war and in the conduct of war is evidence not of fitness, but of unworthiness, to have a share in directing its policies.

THE FUSION TICKET.

The Fusion Committee has renominated and the citizens will re-elect next Fall Mayor Mitchel, Controller Prendergast, President of the Borough of Manhattan Marks, and President of the Borough of Brooklyn Pounds. "Their record is their platform." For President of the Board of Aldermen, Fire Commissioner Adamson is nominated, whose work in the Fire Department is his more than sufficient platform. It is a ticket not of promises, but of tried, successful, fruitful achievement. Doubtless the candidates yet to be selected for Presidents of the other three boroughs will be worthy of their company.

"We have had the best administration under Mayor Mitchel the city "has known," says Mr. Hughes, writing there a majority opinion. "The "Republican Party could not afford "to be responsible for the defeat of "Fusion," Mr. Hughes adds. Governor Whitman supports Fusion. Most of the Republicans will.

Lest any Republicans should wander in the darkness, a petition will be circulated to give all the Fusion nominees a place on the official ballot. Thus, whatever little games may be dealt in the primaries, all the Fusion candidates will be before the voters at the election. If amateurs, the gentlemen of the Fusion Nominating Committee were not born yesterday; some of the wisdom of the serpent is in them. We will leave it to the Hon. Jacob Livingston if that isn't so.

It is a pleasure to notice, among the organizations represented at the meeting of the Nominating Committee, some of the best and strongest of the labor unions. They approve the running of the city for the benefit of its citizens, not for the benefit of politicians.

Tammany is contributing, through Senator Wagner, its mite, unconsciously, to the Fusion cause. With noble vocipotence he bewails Fusion administration as a cloak for Republicanism, a tool of all the Octopuses, "not a democratic form of government." The record of that administration is a fact. Against it Tammany has nothing but ancient Populist rhetoric and the vain nostrums of a dishonest socialism.

SPEEDING UP THE RAILWAYS.

The Chairman of the Railway War Board announced yesterday that passenger trains aggregating over sixteen million miles a year had been saved by its processes of operating the railways as a unit. In this manner over a million tons of coal had been made available for other uses of which the country stands more in need. Train crews and motive power also had thus been practically created, and the general situation of tension in transportation is thus undergoing relaxation. On a single railway, over three million miles of passenger train service had been stopped, and there are several which saved a million miles each. This is good news. It spells profit for the railways, with the minimum of inconvenience to the public. It is hard to believe that any necessary travel accommodations have been withheld, for the amount of complaint is small. In other countries there have been both reduction of accommodations and increase of fares, and complaint has been great.

Our freight service has been increased, with the assistance of methods of administration of equipment obviating the necessity of decrease in accommodations. Shippers are co-operating in quicker loading and unloading, and thus setting cars free for other users. Carloads have been increased, and engine power which had been wasted has been put to hauling longer trains. The capacity of 779,000 cars has been added without buying the cars, and three billion ton miles have been added within a single month. No nation outside of the United States has a total service equal to the addition to the railway facilities of this country.

There are those who will wonder why this was not done before, and who will regard it as implying the vindication of the Interstate Commerce Commission in its advice that the railways should not ask higher rates until they had made better use of the earning power of their existing facilities. That leaves out of account that the railways are now being helped where they were hindered, and that their prospective profits will come from withholding many free or unnecessary services which their customers were constantly asking and getting without any increase of rates. Free storage, lighterage, frequency of train service, luxury of travel were among forms of competition of service which succeeded competition in rates. That form of competition has been checked, if not stopped, with the result that the customers of the railways are getting a larger aggregate of service of a lower standard of accommodation. The luxuries have given way to necessities, and a great deal is being endured which would have aroused spirited protest under other conditions.

This intensive development is not lightly to be criticised. The addition of the theoretical equivalent of 35,000 miles of railway is a blessing, however accomplished, under conditions of restraint of trade processes. But it is not to be overlooked that there is also need of extensive development of our railway systems. New territory needs to be opened for our growing population, and new farms made accessible for the increase of our food supply. Of this there is not a trace. Also it is to be remembered that, instead of increases of rates, trade is submitting to embargoes as a method of breaking congestion which would have been better relieved by improvements of terminal facilities. In other words, railway customers are eating "war bread." When conditions become normal, will they demand their old superfluities, given by the railways to maintain their volume of trade? Or will the railways feel emboldened to withhold their gratuities, a species of rebate from one point of view, and devote their economies to developing their systems, instead of getting funds by an increase of rates? So long as the roads are choked with traffic, their condition is not likely seriously to deteriorate, and may be expected to improve. But when conditions become normal and the railway customers become aggressive, or even hostile, instead of co-operators, it will be necessary to turn a page either forward or backward.

NO FOOD FOR THE ENEMY.

Twelve Dutch ships and one Norwegian, with cargoes of wheat, corn, oats, and oilcake, started from an American port last Friday to cross the Atlantic, thus avoiding the export license rules which were to be in force two days later. It is understood that they had no safe conduct letters from the British Government. Dispatches from Washington say that if they pass the British blockade the neutrals will gain nothing by this venture, because the cargoes will be charged against the total for which licenses are to be granted. This indicates that our Government intends to permit the shipment of some specified quantity of foodstuffs to those countries, from which Germany has been receiving, and still receives, an essential part of her food supply.

The question whether Holland, Denmark, Norway, and Sweden should have any more wheat and feed for livestock from this country is one of the highest importance. Germany's need of food imports from them is greater now than it has been at any other time during the war. Mr. Pollen, the British naval expert now in Washington, said in last Sunday's Times:

> If all the Scandinavian countries are rationed down to their own absolute necessities, with nothing left over to ship to the enemy, either across the border from Holland and Denmark or through the sound from Sweden and Norway, Germany cannot possibly go on.

Germany's food supply is very low, and the crops now to be harvested are small. Gloomy testimony about them in the Dutch and Danish press caused the Berlin Government to misrepresent their condition some weeks ago. But the farmers denounced this misrepresentation, and partial failure of crops has since been admitted. Hope that a separate peace with Russia might open the door for imports from that country has come to nothing. Realizing that our Government's action may deprive her of what she must have, if she continues to fight, Germany says in her press that we are trying to "crush and annihilate" the neutrals. These countries, by sales to our enemy, have been robbing their own people. A large part of the food exported has been needed at home. There is proof of this in the riots at Rotterdam and Amsterdam, and the protests of Scandinavian workingmen. In Denmark last week it was proposed by a Minister that the Government should take control of the harvest, to prevent famine. There is no fodder for the country's cattle. While it was available, thousands of cattle were sent to Germany every month. Holland wants American fodder to be used in making meat, butter, milk, and cheese for the Germans. In all these countries a small part of the population has profited greatly by reason of the German trade, while the majority have suffered on account of high prices and a reduction of supplies. And much of this export trade has been carried on in violation of agreements with the Entente Allies.

We should compel the neutrals to be satisfied with the cargoes now crossing the ocean. No licenses should be granted for the shipment of American wheat, fodder grain, or oilcake to them. By their exports to our enemy they have prolonged the war. We must not help them now to delay the coming of peace. We have soldiers in Europe. American food must not be used to nourish and support those who will strive to kill them.

CHANGES IN THE BRITISH CABINET.

British public opinion, always prone to criticism of the Government, has been made especially savage by the submarine campaign and the air raids. Some of the present changes in the Ministry seem curious if regarded as sops to that criticism. In the pitiless necessities of war one might suppose that a Minister, tried and found wanting, would be "scrapped" for good. Mr. Austen Chamberlain was not actually forced out of the India Office by the report on the Kut-el-Amara campaign. He resigned voluntarily. It was the honorable thing for him to do, though his responsibility was official and technical rather than personal, but he had his hand in a disaster, and he refused to remain in office. His successor, Mr. Edward Samuel Montagu, Minister of Munitions in the Asquith Cabinet, is an able man, who has been Under Secretary for India, and who, it was thought, would become Minister of Reconstruction, as he has been head of the Reconstructive Committee, now promoted into a Department. This shifting of men from the posts for which they were originally intended is rather humorous and recalls Trollope's Parliamentary novels. Winston Churchill was to be the revivifying genius of the Air Board, but too many unextinguished enmities forbade that, for the present. So he displaces Dr. Christopher Addison as Minister of Munitions, and the displaced doctor is made not Minister of Health, a yet-to-be-created post which had been allotted to him, but Minister without portfolio in Charge of Reconstruction. If this seems rather a haphazard way of partially rebuilding a Cabinet, it is the habitual British way, the way of compromise and adjustment.

Mr. Winston Spencer Churchill, with the glories of Antwerp and Gallipoli thick upon him, might seem a singular addition to a Cabinet which Mr. Chamberlain leaves for a milder failure; but Mr. Churchill is an indefatigable, robust, active figure, with a dangerous "nuisance value" in the House of Commons, with a considerable focus and following. He is a forcible and unsinkable personage, whose inexhaustible energy is sometimes unfortunately directed, and whose sometimes unhappy language recalls his gentle ancestress, Sarah Jennings, Duchess of Marlborough. He has his chance of rehabilitation now. There must be some vital force in a man who has broken into the Cabinet again after his performances at the Admiralty.

Sir Edward Carson, the reason for whose loud and majestic indispensability is hidden from American eyes, has been a competent and successful First Lord of the Admiralty; why is he not retained in that office? If he hasn't been, why is he rewarded with a seat on the War Board, Mr. Bonar Law politely retiring? To be Chancellor of the Exchequer and leader of the House is enough work for any man, but recognition of the fact was delayed until Sir Edward had to be provided for. And why does he have to be provided for? The Sinn Fein seems to be at least prosperous enough in Ireland without any further encouragement by the Cabinet.

The War Cabinet consists principally of Mr. Lloyd George, so that the insertion of another Conservative there to reinforce Lord Milner and Earl Curzon may be unimportant. The Liberals and Radicals may have a different opinion.

Sir Eric Geddes, late Controller of the Navy, the new head of the Admiralty, a railroad man with four years of American experience, has done notably well everything he has taken hold of since Lord Kitchener set him to work. He seems to have a genius for administration, an almost infallible eye for competency, a gift of getting the best out of men. He is young. He doesn't care a rap for precedent and red tape. He will have no barnacles on the Admiralty.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Mrs. Humiston on the Police Department.

Mrs. Grace Humiston, whose brilliant achievement in the Cocchi case and whose long intimate knowledge of police conditions make her an impeccable witness, is far from joining in the hue and cry with which the enemies of Mayor Mitchel's administration are pursuing the Police Department. Nobody knows better than Tammany, with its wealth of experience, how insincere and trifling is the talk about "graft" in that department, so admirably managed and disciplined by Commissioner Woods. Some dishonesty there must always be in so large a force, but the present Commissioner seeks to punish it and root it out, instead of protecting it and sharing in it, as was the good old Tammany plan. And what a falling off from the cornucopia of "pantataism" to this "monkey wrench" business!

Mrs. Humiston tells The World that she has known the Police Department for years, that "it has never been better managed, even under Commissioner Bingham, and there has never been less graft than today." She notes the unfairness of condemning the department on account of a few rotten apple "grafters." As to the Cocchi case she says:

> In simple faith and sincerity I wish to state that Commissioner Woods has at all times (even when he disagreed entirely with my theories) aided me with all the power and all the moral support at his command. Under the most trying circumstances, and even when he had everything to lose and nothing to win, he has always been a real man, and every citizen of New York should know this and give him the meed of praise that I know to be his due.

Final testimony from the best source, corroborating the belief of all the fair-minded.

Prohibition in Ponce de Leon's Rich Harbor.

The great majority, more than 38,000, by which Porto Rico has "gone dry," is more than a little surprising, gratifying as it must be to the Prohibitionists to see the "bone-dry" wave mighty on the Caribbean. San Juan ratified Kansas by more than two to one, and all the other cities of size put themselves on virtue's side.

Should the prohibition triumph be attributed to the sympathy of the Porto Riqueños with the sweep of prohibition on the mainland, or a tenderness to prohibition as a "war measure," an economic help, not a means of social salvation? The Porto Rico natives, or most of them, are not in a position to waste money; and, unless they have very recently deteriorated, they are one of the soberest of folk, true inheritors of the Spanish sobriety. The rum of the country is a little too keen for unaccustomed palates; and the climate doesn't invite to alcohol. It is said that if a Porto Riqueño wishes to get drunk he performs the rite in the seclusion of his home. A public exhibition would be an ineffaceable disgrace. "Borrachon," "soak," is the most vigorous and undeserved epithet to "hurl" at an enemy. The sociological eye finds small alcoholic iniquity in Porto Rico. The stranger in the gates may sin, but surely not, of these, the blameless East Indians; nor is the West India negro given to strong potations. The harmless, unnecessary bottle of Spanish or French wine in the hotels cannot be blamed. Have the Porto Riqueños, one of the quietest and most courteous of peoples, guiltless in their own case of the "evils of drink," philanthropically or humorously sought to save the other Americans in the island? 'Twere to consider too curiously to consider so. In these canicular rages it is more grateful to think of flower-rich cool patios, the voice of fountains, and a long, long temperate "horse's neck" of a drink.

Criticism of the Law and Breaking the Law.

The District Attorney and the Magistrate who prosecuted and sentenced a pamphleteer who suggested that the Government was not living up to the Constitution have been set right by Justice Hendrick of the Supreme Court. Ninety days in the workhouse is too severe a punishment for that offense, whether the writer were right or wrong. The prisons would hardly hold the persons guilty of that offense. Justice Hendrick said:

> The persistence of the representative of the people arises from a misconception of the distinction between an incitement to violate the law and a criticism of the law. * * * Aliens have the right to criticise the law as it exists, the right to agitate for a repeal of the law, just the same as citizens.

That is the doctrine of free speech. The line is drawn against incitements to disobey the law, and even more decidedly against actual breach of the law. That was laid down almost simultaneously in a Federal Court in Baltimore. The charge was conspiracy to cause young men to evade the draft. Judge Ross directed acquittal, saying that it is every man's right to hold and express any opinion he pleases about any law, even to the point of urging repeal. He may make any argument he pleases, and is not responsible for its soundness. The Judge continued:

> But there is one limit; so long as the law is the law, it is the duty of every man to obey it, and he may not, under color or pretense of arguing against the wisdom of the law, or of advocating its repeal, do anything with intent to procure its violation.

That is where the British suffragettes made their mistake, in common with our own distinguished prisoners at Washington. They are not in the workhouse for their opinions, but for acts which stand on the record as a breach of the rules of behavior for good citizens.

The Foreign-Language Press.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Allow me to join your interesting symposium on our foreign-language press by relating a personal experience of mine with my good friend, the late Herman Ridder, who, as everybody who knew him knows, spoke a broken German and would hardly have been able to write an editorial in the language of Goethe and of his idol, Prince Bismarck.

It was ten or twelve years ago. I came to see the editor of the Staats-Zeitung on an important matter. He referred me to the city editor. I began, of course, to speak in German. What was my amazement when the gentleman frankly confessed not to understand German!

May I ask your correspondents not to put in the same class the German sheets and the papers printed in Italian, Swedish, the Slavic and Oriental languages? The latter have a real educational value for their readers, most of whom, with very little school education, come to this country at an adult age and are really taught by their respective vernacular dailies and periodicals the elements of the political-social code of the United States.

The situation is different with the German press. For the last three to four decades there has not been any German immigration which would form a sound, legitimate basis for the 100-odd German dailies and weeklies and monthlies flooding the periodical market. The average German immigrant is fairly educated and picks up the little English he needs in the English press within two to three years after his landing on Ellis Island. In brief, the German press seems to be nothing but the American branch of the Berlin and Vienna Press Bureaus.

VINDOBONENSIS.

THE HERMIT THRUSH.

My greater song is soundless,
As when the forest's pregnant silences
Stir in earth's womb
Music unborn—of souls singing in dreams—
Lifting to skies eternally expectant,
A chant unechoing—endless!

Betimes from the full heart
Bursts forth the uncontainable mag-
    nificat—
A trembling note groping the long-lost key
That tunes with this infinity.
But soundless again I fall,
Silenced by mine own daring,
And deeper sink
Into that brooding womb of listening whispers—
The solitude,
Where God still travails o'er His mighty
    theme,

STEPHEN CHALMERS.

ELKUS URGES RELIEF WORK IN TURKEY

Tells Luncheon Guests of Widespread Misery and Indorses Committee's Work.

CABLE APPEAL FOR AID

Veteran Observer of Conditions Declares 1,500,000 Armenians, Syrians, and Greeks Are Destitute.

Abram I. Elkus, former Ambassador to Turkey, told of the depleted finances of that country and the misery of its people in an address yesterday at the Down Town Association, where he was the guest of Cleveland H. Dodge at a luncheon attended by many prominent men of the city. The former Ambassador said that there was intense suffering among the people, and he urged continued support of the American Committee for Armenian and Syrian Relief, which has been distributing money and food in Turkey.

As this is one of the relief organizations invited to join the centralized plan advocated by the American Red Cross, the high praise paid to it by Mr. Elkus attracted attention. His statement of conditions was confirmed by a cable dispatch from a relief worker in Turkey read at the luncheon, which painted an unusually dark picture of conditions. The number of destitute Armenians, Syrians, and Greeks in Asia Minor, Syria, and Palestine, this dispatch said, was 1,500,000.

"All the people of Turkey, irrespective of race or creed, have suffered severely because of the war," said Mr. Elkus. "Food prices have increased tremendously, and the value of the paper lira, or Turkish pound, has decreased very much in a comparatively short time.

"The Turkish paper pound is nominally worth $4.40. When I arrived in Constantinople about a year ago it was worth in gold $4.20. When I left Constantinople on May 29 it had depreciated to $1.69 in gold; yet when American or other relief money was to be sent to Turkey we had to obtain it by selling drafts on the State Department, and often we had to pay as much as $3.50 for a Turkish paper pound. As a draft on the State Department drawn by me was practically gold, you will see the difficulties under which we were laboring."

Mr. Elkus said that relief work had been carried on both by giving money to the deserving and by feeding those who were hungry. Of the American Committee for Armenian and Syrian Relief he said:

"The American Committee for Armenian and Syrian Relief is known throughout the length and breadth of Turkey, and it is the hope of despairing and hungry people of many faiths, and, in many cases, the only hope.

"I have no reason to doubt but that the Turkish Government will continue to permit the proper distribution of relief moneys and food, as hetofore; in fact, in conversation with some of the Ministers they assured me there was no objection to it if it was properly carried on. Naturally, they would prefer to have it done through the Red Crescent Society, which is the Turkish organization corresponding to the International Red Cross, but I explained to them that these funds were raised with the understanding that they should be distributed through the Relief Committee and its agents, and that seemed to be entirely satisfactory.

"Besides this immediate problem of relief is the one of rehabilitation which is to take place after the war. Relief is merely temporary, and will serve only to keep alive the hungry and the ill fed. After the war there will arise the great problem of putting the people back in their homes, giving them farming tools with which to work, loaning them money with which to buy supplies and agricultural implements, and do all those things which are necessary to make a people self-supporting."

Mr. Elkus said that the success of relief work in Turkey had been due to the faithfulness and disinterestedness of volunteer workers. Most of these were American men and women who served without pay.

"No words are sufficient to pay a proper tribute to these self-sacrificing men and women for their splendid work," he said.

The cablegram dispatch telling of conditions among the war sufferers came from W. W. Peet, in Berne, until recently a resident of Constantinople for 40 years, and was sent to Dr. James L. Barton, Chairman of the American Committee for Armenian and Syrian Relief, by way of Berne, Switzerland. It was as follows:

> Berne, July 17, 1917.
> I estimate the number of deported, destitute Armenians, Syrians, and Greeks, now in Asia Minor, Syria, and Palestine, at one and one-half millions. Demands for help are inexorable. The imperial policy supports the army at expense of other interests. Bread winners generally have perished through massacre, deportation, or in army. Practically all now destitute were self-supporting before war.
> Property taken from these people by military or destroyed in deportations totals millions of dollars. The number of destitute is increased by the deportation of Greeks from the seacoast. Refugees from regions occupied by military are increasing the poverty. Attempts by deported people to engage in self-supporting work are generally prevented. Business paralyzed. Animals requisitioned. Schools and churches generally closed. Buildings used by military. Prices of food and other necessaries of life increased several hundredfold, going higher. Needs greater because needy people are more numerous than last year.
> Extermination or material diminution of Christian races greatly deplored, as the hope of future upbuilding lies with this progressive democratic element, which is most useful for regenerating the empire. American and Swiss missionaries remain on the field for continuing the work for distitute as in the past. They are now imploring that we continue usual appropriations.
> Funds in Constantinople are exhausted; cannot respond. Swiss committee give, as they are able, from slender income. Swiss ready to send helpers if permission can be obtained for journey and work. Expense of sending fifteen person to reinforce work as follows: For travel, $2,000; maintenance, $600 per month. Repatriation now or at close of war requires consent and co-operation of the existing Government. Much territory, desirable for homes, now scene of military activities, is unavailable.
> Expense, on moderate basis, for repatriation, rebuilding homes, seed, animals, tools, necessary for self-supporting life, $8,000,000. Present need is for keeping the people alive. Food, clothing, shelter for the 1,000,000 most needy people, $100,000; supporting 35,000 orphans, $30,000; total needed, monthly, $150,000. As stated in cable of May 21, can forward all funds received.
> W. W. PEET.

Robert S. Lovett, head of the Coordination Committee of the Red Cross; George E. Vincent of the Rockefeller Foundation, Mayor Mitchel, Simon Flexner, Oscar S. Straus, Robert W. de Forest, Vance McCormick, Charles M. Hough, Arthur Curtiss James, Henry L. Coffin, John D. Crimmins, H. P. Davison, V. Everit Macy, and John B. Stanchfield were among those who attended the luncheon.

FRANCE TO CONTROL SHIPS.

Official to Regulate Rates and Utilize the Mercantile Fleet.

PARIS, July 18.—Anatole de Monzie, the newly appointed Under Secretary of Maritime Transports, has obtained the Cabinet's approval for the institution of a general control over the mercantile fleet. The decree instituting the measure refers to the increasing diminution of tonnage, due to the submarine war, as necessitating intense rational use of the whole mercantile fleet.

The decree authorizes the Under Secretary to undertake all means to control freight rates and to utilize ships. Every ship of more than one hundred tons must have a license from the Under Secretary, which must be presented at every port entered, in order that the voyage and cargo may be controlled. M. de Monzie has the power to requisition every ship he considers insufficiently utilized.

REASSURES LOAN TAKERS.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—Secretary McAdoo issued tonight a statement for the purpose of correcting what he characterized as a "misapprehension" regarding conditions affecting the exchange of Liberty bonds and interim certificates of different denominations.

"It is of considerable importance to numerous people throughout the country who have subscribed for $50 or $100 bonds that this misapprehension should be removed," the statement reads. "In the first place, no definitive bonds have as yet been delivered, and there is no charge whatever for the exchange of interim certificates of different denominations, nor will there be any charge, when the definite bonds are ready, for the issue of such bonds, of whatever authorized denominations may be requested, against surrender of an equal aggregate amount of full paid interim certificates of whatever denomination. There will be no charge, for instance, for the exchange of ten $100 certificates for one $1,000 bond, nor for the exchange of one $1,000 certificate for ten $100 bonds. Consequently there is no possible reason for any difference in price at the present time on account of the different denominations of the interim certificates.

"In the second place, the provision of Department Circular 78, dated May 14, 1917, in relation to the interchange of bonds of different denominations, is to the effect that such interchange will be made 'upon payment, if the Secretary of the Treasury shall require, of a charge not exceeding $1 for each new bond issued upon such exchange.' The Secretary of the Treasury has not determined whether, when the definitive bonds have once been issued, to require the payment of any charge for the exchange of bonds of different denominations, nor, if required, what the amount of the charge shall be; but in any event the charge cannot exceed $1 for each new bond issued upon the exchange. Thus, upon surrender of twenty $50 bonds for exchange for one $1,000 bond the maximum possible charge for making the exchange would be $1, since only one new bond would be issued.

"To summarize: The fact is that at present there is no charge; that there will be none until after the interim certificates have been exchanged, free of charge, for bonds of whatever authorized denominations the holders desire, and thereafter a person making an exchange of bonds, (not interim certificates,) for bonds of different denominations, might, if the Secretary of the Treasury should require it, be obliged to pay an amount which could not exceed $1 for each new bond issued upon such exchange, the amount of which charge would be quite unaffected by the number or denominations of the old bonds surrendered for exchange."

CHANGE IN ITALY'S CABINET.

Admiral Delbono Succeeds Triangi as Minister of Marine.

ROME, July 18.—Vice Admiral Delbono has been appointed Minister of Marine to succeed Vice Admiral Arturo Triangi.

On June 4 Italy heard for the first time that on the preceding day the Italian General Ferrero, commander of the army of occupation in Albania, had proclaimed the unity and independence of that State under the protection of the Kingdom of Italy. Ferrero had done so under the direction of the Italian Foreign Minister, Baron Sonnino.

Sonnino finally explained that the Albanian proclamation had been a necessary preliminary to King Constantine's deposition in Greece. The crisis, however, had revealed the weakness of the purely political coalition, and the King privately hinted to both Premier Boselli and Sonnino, seconded by General Cadorna, that the time had arrived to give the State a genuine "War Cabinet." This was done, proceeding very slowly and secretly, so that none of the factions which surrounded each member could unite and seriously obstruct the program. General Gastano Gorandina was selected as Minister of War, General Dall' Olio as Minister of Armaments and Munitions, and Ricardo Bianci as Minister of Transportation, to succeed Enrico Arlotta, then with the Italian mission in the United States, and now Minister without portfolio. On June 17 Vice Admiral Arturo Triangi quietly took over the portfolio of Marine from Admiral Thaon di Revel, but it is understood that he did so only temporarily until a stronger man could be found. Vice Admiral Delbono, who now succeeds him, is little known outside of Italian naval circles.

ALBANIANS SEEK TERRITORY

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 18. — Word reached Washington today that leaders of the Albanians have appealed to the Italian Government to represent them and their interests at the Allied Conference which is to be held soon in Paris.

The Albanians asked that Italy prevent any attempt to diminish the importance of the Albanian race and population on the eastern shore of the Adriatic, and that the Italian representatives at the conference be instructed to insist upon the restoration to Albania of the land betwen Antivari, Prevesa, Podgoritsa, Uskub and Kumanovo, and Florina down to the Vardar River. This so-called restoration would require a rectification of the southern boundary of Albania as established by the London Conference in 1915, which was not satisfactory to the Albanians.

Whether or not the Allies will grant the Albanian request was thought today to depend chiefly upon the attitude of Greece, and it is believed that Greece will oppose the demand. Greece, on the contrary, desires Northern Epirus, which is included within the Albanian territory, asserting that it is populated largely by persons of Greek nationality. Greeks assert that most of the difficulties which have been experienced in the present southern part of Albania have been occasioned by the restlessness of the Greeks under foreign rule.

Italy, it is understood, will not clash with Greek aspirations, but as protector of Albania will look after the latter's interests.

APPEAL FOR FRENCH BABIES

Mutualite Maternelle Asks Aid of American Mothers.

An appeal to the American people to aid in the work of the Mutualite Maternelle de Paris has been issued by A. Paul Deschanel, President of the French Chamber of Deputies. The object of the society is to aid the wives of French soldiers and to care for their young children so that infant mortality may be reduced. Before the war, the appeal says, the work of the society was carried on without requests for assistance from other nations, but now the increased burdens caused by the war and difficulty of raising money for charity have forced France to appeal to America.

In speaking of the desire to expand the work the appeal says: "We apply once more to all American mothers, kind hearts beating in unison, beyond the ocean, with those of French mothers." J. P. Morgan & Co. have offered to receive contributions for the work of the society, and Charles Henry Meltzer has been appointed agent here.

CURBS ALL TOBACCO SALES.

British Board of Trade Has Authority Over All Dealings.

No tobacco shall be delivered from ship's side except into bonded warehouse, and no delivery shall be taken from bonded warehouse without consent of Board of Trade.

"No person shall buy or sell tobacco without consent of Board of Trade. No person shall sell tobacco, wholesale or retail, at price exceeding prices fixed from time to time by Board of Trade. Previous tobacco restrictions order is revoked."

JAMES SPEYER BARS FLAGS OF THE ALLIES

AN ANTE-WAR AGREEMENT

Use of Buildings Accepted by the League Before America Entered Contest.

The flags of the Allies have flown from the headquarters of most patriotic organizations since the entrance of the United States into the war. A notable exception is the national headquarters of the League for Women's Service at 257 and 259 Madison Avenue, where hang the Stars and Stripes alone.

The reason is that when James Speyer, the banker, gave the National League for Women's Service the use of the two buildings as a headquarters he specified that no flag except the American should fly from his property. It was said by officials of the league yesterday that the arrangement with Mr. Speyer had been made by Miss Anne Morgan before the United States entered the war. The league moved into the Madison Avenue buildings on April 27. The United States declared war on April 7. It was said that Mr. Speyer gave the use of the buildings about four weeks before the league moved in. It was also said that the conditions under which the buildings were used had not been altered and that the matter had not been considered.

Mr. Speyer is in Santa Barbara, Cal. In response to a message from The Times he sent a telegram last night in which he said:

> I beg to refer you to Miss Maud Wetmore, President of the league, who will confirm it was understood that none but our own national colors should be displayed from these Madison Avenue houses.

It is known that there had been some gossip directed at the league because of the conditions under which it occupies the buildings, but the officials of the league have taken the stand that their work is patriotic enough to speak for itself and they are very grateful to Mr. Speyer for the quarters, which used to be the banker's home.

Mrs. Coffin Van Rensselaer, speaking for the league in the absence of Miss Wetmore, who is in Newport, yesterday confirmed the condition Mr. Speyer had imposed upon the league when it took his buildings.

"The negotiations with Mr. Speyer were conducted by Miss Anne Morgan, who is now in Europe," said Mrs. Van Rensselaer. "Mr. Speyer donated the building so kindly before the United States entered the war. As I understand the situation he said that he was willing to give the National League for Women's Service the use of his property, understanding fully what our work was, but that he didn't wish the flag of France flying from his property, or he may have said the flags of any other nation than America. We knew how the sympathies of Mr. Speyer were at that time; that he was not for the conquest of Germany at that time, and we thought he had a perfect right to impose that restriction. He saw no reason why this, an American organization, should fly any other than the American flag.

"Since we have moved into the quarters which Mr. Speyer so kindly gave and prepared for us, we have respected his request. It was the courteous thing to do. We have continued to occupy the quarters without any negotiations with Mr. Speyer, and the question of flags has never been seriously mentioned until now. I do not think it makes any difference. I think it is a very picayune thing to lay emphasis on. It can only hurt Mr. Speyer's feelings and injure the work of the league.

"I shall make it very plain to Mr. Speyer that the league has nothing to do with the publication of this and that it is no party to any criticism of him. I am sure he is a patriotic citizen. He has helped our cause immeasurably by giving us the use of these buildings. I am sure the whole thing has been started by some disgruntled person with an ulterior motive."

Mr. Speyer is a member of an old German banking family. He was born in New York City in 1861, the son of Gustavus Speyer, one of the founders of the New York house of Speyer & Co. As a boy he was sent to Frankfort-on-Main, Germany, where at the age of 22 he entered the banking house of the Speyers in that city. In 1885 he returned to the United States and became the head of the American banking house of Speyer & Co., now at 24 Pine Street, being as well a partner in the London banking house of Speyer Brothers and of the firm of Lazard Speyer-Ellissen of Frankfort-on-Main. The firm of Speyer & Co. was instrumental in the civil war in opening in Europe a market for the United States Government bonds. At the beginning of the present war the Speyer banking house, with its London, New York, Paris, Berlin, Amsterdam, and Frankfort branches, was one of the foremost financial institutions in the world. It is more than 200 years old.

Mr. Speyer was decorated by the German Kaiser in 1912 with the order of the Red Eagle. It was announced at the time that the decoration was given to Mr. Speyer for his work in promoting cordial relations between the United States and Germany.

Mr. Speyer's brother-in-law was ennobled by the Kaiser under the name of Eduard Beit von Speyer. Arthur von Gwimmer, a relative of Mr. Speyer, was a member of the Prussian House of Lords. Mrs. James Speyer, a native of America, is well known for her work on behalf of animals.

Sir Edgar Speyer, a brother of James Speyer, left England in June, 1915, after there had been much criticism of his being a member of the British Council. He came to America, and is now at Bar Harbor. Sir Edgar is a native of the United States. The Anti-German League in 1915 brought before the Lord Chief Justice an action against Sir Edgar's retaining his seat. The matter was thrashed out in court, it being decided in December of 1915 that he had a right to the seat. But he was then in this country and stayed here. The King did not act on his resignation following attacks which had been made upon him by factions which considered him pro-German. Sir Edgar was a leader in financial circles in London, having played a large rôle in the financing of the underground railways. He was made a Privy Councilor in 1909 and a baronet in 1912.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 18.—Miss Maud Wetmore would not discuss tonight the report that Mr. Speyer had made it a condition of lending his former home to the League for Women's Service that only the American flag must be flown from it. She said she was preparing a statement which might be ready tomorrow.

NO COMMENT BY CROPSEY.

Justice Declines to Discuss Mitchel as a Candidate.

Supreme Court Justice James C. Cropsey of Brooklyn declined yesterday to discuss the action of the Fusion Executive Committee in deciding to run Mayor Mitchel and Controller Prendergast for re-election next November, even if they do not win in the Republican primaries. He also maintained silence as to whether he would be a candidate for the Republican nomination. Republican Executive Chairman Jacob A. Livingston of Brooklyn, who started the Cropsey movement, was still busy yesterday circulating petitions calling upon the Justice to enter the race.

"The Legislature in 1913," said Mr. Livingston, "amended the election law so as to provide for direct nominations. In keeping with that amendment we began getting sentiment as to proper persons to propose for nomination in the Republican primaries. We are engaged in doing just that. When our work has been completed we will present the petition to the candidate for whom it is signed. I do not propose to speak for the 110,000 enrolled Republicans in Kings County, nor do I believe that any other person in any other county can pretend to do so."

SENATE INSURGENTS BLOCK AVIATION BILL

DRAFT FEATURE ATTACKED

Vardaman Insists Conscription Is Un-American—Possibility of Graft Is Suggested.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—The Administration's $640,000,000 Aviation bill struck a snag today when Senator Chamberlain of the Senate Committee on Military Affairs attempted to have it put through the Senate by unanimous consent. Senators Hardwick of Georgia and Owen of Oklahoma objected to its being voted on, and under the rules it had to go over.

The delay in reaching a vote on the bill, which is backed by more than two-thirds of the Senate, is expected to hold it up for only a few days at the most. Senator Chamberlain cannot call it up again until early next week, when its passage is practically assured.

"The War and Navy Departments want this bill to pass so as to rush work on airplanes, which, they say, will play a vital part in the winning of this war," said Senator Chamberlain in bringing up the measure. "I believe the whole country wants it and that debate is useless."

Senator Hardwick insisted that debate was not "useless," unless the bill was amended so as to prevent resorting to the selective draft in getting aviators wanted in the flying service. He offered an amendment to that effect.

Senator Owen offered an amendment to put authority to handle the $640,000,000 appropriation embraced in the bill with a Government commission.

"That's a big sum of money, and I don't hesitate to say that graft might creep in unless great care were used in handling it," declared Senator Owen. "We must throw ample safeguards around the expenditure of these huge sums for war uses."

Senator Vardaman of Mississippi spoke against drafting men for the air corps.

"I cannot support any bill that embraces conscription service," he said. "I dont want to delay the passage of this bill, but intend voting against it unless it is altered so the air service men shall be confined to volunteers.

"It is gratifying to me to read that our brethren in Canada are opposing conscription. It is a manifestation of independence and patriotism. I say it was an unhappy day when America came to conscription. It's un-American. I am against conscription as I am opposed to bridling freedom of speech or the press. I am against anything that operates as a padlock upon the freedom of Americans."

Senator Owen read a newspaper article which estimated that the $640,000,000 appropriation would provide for only 22,000 war planes and wanted the Senate to investigate how the money was to be spent before passing the bill. Senator Chamberlain challenged the newspaper estimate as incorrect, saying the Government could build many more than 22,000 machines with the money. He impressed the urgency of aviation development without delay.

Senator Reed, a member of the Military Committee, said there were provisions to which some committee members objected. After a discussion it was concluded the bill should be reported without amendments and that the Senate should pass it that way. Senator Weeks said he understood there were sufficient aviation corps applications to meet requirements and he doubted if draft would be necessary.

When Senator Reed suggested that with further discussion action might have been procured today Senator La Follette emphatically interjected: "I do not think so."

Senator Jones of Washington said he feared a great part of the money would be spent in organization; the bill authorizing many Generals, brigades, and regiments.

The delay in the Senate on the Aviation bill was displeasing to members of the House Committee on Military Affairs, to whom Secretary Baker recently furnished highly confidential information concerning the aviation program and the need for expediting construction of airplanes. That America's chances of winning the war may be lessened by an appreciable delay was the fear expressed by House members.

Representative Julius Kahn of California, ranking Republican of the House Committee, was outspoken in his views. When he was asked if the War Department's plans were such that a delay in legislation might make difficult the control of the air, he said:

"That is quite true. In the Committee on Military Affairs we are in possession of startling information, and I may say that any one who attempts to stop the progress of the Aviation bill cannot know what the results may be. Furthermore, there should be no discussion of the details. The House did a remarkable thing in passing this greatest single defense measure without discussing the details of the military plans, which under no circumstances should become known."

Members of the House Committee feel that any attempt to delay the Aviation bill amounts to a delay in winning the war, and they are exceedingly hopeful the Sente will not engage in a protracted debate on the measure which the War Department declares to be of immediate necessity.

ARCTIC EXPLORERS REPORT.

Crocker Land Expedition Cheerful on Bread Like Cement.

Word has been received of the Crocker land expedition in the Far North by Henry Fairfield Osborn, President of the American Museum of Natural History, in letters from Dr. Edmund Otis Hovey, dated Nov. 16, 1916, who led one of the relief expeditions to bring back the party which is in charge of Duncan B. MacMillan. This expedition was sent out in 1913 under the auspices of the American Museum of Natural History, the Geographical Society, and the University of Illinois. It has been one of the most costly scientific expeditions on record, owing to the fact that three relief parties have been sent out for it.

"If no relief comes next year," says Dr. Hovey, "we shall be unable to heat the house, our supply of white man's food will be exceedingly limited, if not exhausted, and we shall be obliged to distribute ourselves among Eskimo igloos, here and elsewhere, and live with and like them.

"Our white biscuit (army bread) is more or less damaged by mold, but Mac and I prefer the whole wheat anyway, and usually leave the white for the Captain and Jot, whose teeth are not as good as ours. The makers of the whole-wheat biscuit evidently wondered if they would hold together and provided for breakage by mixing a little cement, we believe. We feel that the condition of the food is remarkable, because it has been out four years and was stored in New York a year before that. However, we all plan menus of food we shall have when we get home."

MRS. WOODS OPERATED ON.

Police Commissioner's Wife Suffered Sudden Attack of Appendicitis.

Mrs. Arthur Woods, wife of the Police Commissioner, underwent an operation for appendicitis early yesterday morning at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Pierson Hamilton, 32 East Thirty-sixth Street. It was announced last evening that Mrs. Woods was resting comfortably, and the operation was declared to be a complete success.

Mrs. Woods had been at her Summer home at Sterling, N. Y., and came to town on Tuesday for a visit. Shortly before midnight she was taken ill, and Dr. Adrian Van S. Lambert, the Hamilton family physician, was summoned. He diagnosed the case as appendicitis, and advised an immediate operation. Commissioner Woods was with his wife, and it was decided to have the operation performed at the Hamilton home.

Mrs. Woods before her marriage to the Commissioner on June 10, 1916, was Miss Helen Morgan Hamilton, and is a granddaughter of the late J. Pierpont Morgan.

GEN. D. E. AUSTEN BURIED.

Volley Is Fired Over His Grave in Trinity Cemetery.

The funeral of General David E. Austen, former Colonel of the Thirteenth Regiment of the State Militia, who died on Sunday at Mountain Lakes, N. J., was held yesterday afternoon. Military services were held at 1:30 o'clock in the armory of the Thirteenth Regiment in Brooklyn, where the body lay in state. The eulogy was pronounced by the Rev. Dr. Nehemiah Boynton, Chaplain of the regiment. To the beat of muffled drums, the Thirteenth, with a detachment of the Forty-seventh Regiment, marched with the cortège from the armory, at Sumner and Putnam Avenues, to Hanson Place and Flatbush Avenue.

The body was taken to Grace Church, Manhattan, where the Ninth Coast Defense Command was drawn up as a guard of honor. Following the services in the church, the burial took place in Trinity Cemetery, Manhattan. A detail from the Seventh Regiment fired a volley over the grave as the body was lowered.

EXPLAIN THE DELAY IN RED CROSS GIFTS

SOME ARE NOT YET DUE

More Business Men Volunteer to Help the New York Chapter's "Pay Day Campaign."

The War Fund Committee of the Red Cross in New York City yesterday received $24,916 from shareholders in corporations which declared special Red Cross dividends in the $100,000,000 campaign, raising the total received from this source to date to about $300,000. While this is not as much as had been expected, or desired, the committee, it was said, was not discouraged. Its members expressed confidence that in the end these shareholders would be found to be doing their part toward alleviating suffering among the wounded and in furthering the humanitarian work of the Red Cross, and that when the books finally were closed very few of them would be shown to have withheld the money tentatively pledged by the Directors of corporations to the war fund.

This explanation was inspired by the fact that reports have been published which indicated that only about 7 per cent. of the dividends declared by the corporations were being turned in, and that there was great danger that the war fund, which appeared to be $114,000,000 from the figures, would actually shrink far below the $100,000,000 needed by the Red Cross to put into effect its great plan of rehabilitation and relief. In the absence of Seward Prosser, the head of the committee who is in Massachusetts, no formal statement could be obtained on this matter from Red Cross officials, but one of those who has been close to Mr. Prosser in the work explained the attitude of the committee as follows:

"Were the rest of the corporation dividends to come in as slowly and on as low a percentage basis as they have come up to the present time it would be a serious thing for the fund," he said, "but I do not for a moment think they will. I do not think the percentage of slackers among shareholders in corporations is that great. The dividends have been slow in coming in because they have been coming in in a roundabout fashion.

"Some of them, instead of being sent to the committee headquarters direct, have been turned in to local chapters, and still others have been sent in in the form of checks, with no reference to the fact that they represented special Red Cross corporation dividends. I predict that from now on these dividends will come in much faster. We have sent out letters informing the shareholders of the imperative necessity for promptness in turning in the money, and they will bear fruit.

"Furthermore, many of the dividends are not due yet, and when they are I am sure most of them will be sent to the Red Cross."

According to this representative of the committee, the total of corporation dividends credited to the New York office of the Red Cross was $17,000,000 in round numbers. The corporation dividends declared throughout the nation reached $29,800,000 in round numbers. The percentage of returns from shareholders in other cities was said to be about the same as in New York.

Of the $24,916 paid by the shareholders to the New York office yesterday, $20,751.50 came from the Anaconda Copper Company. This company declared a special Red Cross dividend of $1,165,000, and of this only about $25,000 has been received thus far. The committee also received yesterday $876 from the shareholders of the Home Insurance Company; $2,775 from the shareholders of the Mechanics and Metals National Bank, and $515.50 from shareholders of the firm of Gaston, Williams & Wigmore.

Including these amounts, the total actually received by the New York Committee thus far, including the cash pledges which bear the signature of the donors, about which there is no question, is $22,260,756.61. Since July 1 the committee has received $638,751.96 in cash contributions, $347,324.95 in payment of pledges, and $6,000 in Liberty bonds.

The resignation of Harvey D. Gibson as Chairman of the New York County Chapter of the Red Cross was read yesterday at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the chapter.

Mr. Gibson was recently appointed general field head of the Red Cross, with headquarters at Washington. No successor to him as head of the New York chapter was elected. Leo Arnstein will serve as Acting Chairman until the election is held.

It was announced at the meeting of the committee that Mrs. William Church Osborn had given her house at 38 East Thirty-sixth Street for the use of staff officers and other important visitors to New York in behalf of Red Cross work. Breakfast will be provided for those who avail themselves of the use of the house. It was also announced that Mr. and Mrs. Otto H. Kahn had given the use of their residence at 8 East Sixty-eighth Street for French soldiers and sailors while in New York. Mr. and Mrs. Henry P. Davison have offered their house for a similar use by French staff officers while in the city.

Clarence Schmelzel, Republican leader of the Twenty-seventh Assembly District in Manhattan and member of the importing firm of Ross W. Weir & Co, has abandoned his business temporarily to assist the New York chapter in its Pay Day Campaign. He is assisting the Membership and Special Fund Committee, of which Edgar J. Marston is Chairman. Additional enlistments in the Pay Day Campaign, which seeks to secure pledges of one day's pay from every worker in New York City, were announced yesterday. Among them were Rossiter Kellogg of 120 Broadway, who will organize the machine tool industry; Douglass Alexander of the Singer Manufacturing Company, who will organize the sewing machine industry; J. R. Klotz of 120 Broadway, who will organize the coal tar products trade, and William Bayne, who will organize the coffee trade. Earl E. Babst, President of the American Sugar Refining Company, will devote himself to the sugar trade, and Louis Runkel of Runkel Brothers, to the cocoa and chocolate industry. The Amalgamated Lithographers' Union No. 1 is taking an active interest in the Pay Day Campaign, and its 118 delegates will meet tonight to devise plans for recruiting members.

WOMEN BESIEGE CENSOR.

More Than One Hundred Seek Enlistment for Cable Service.

More than 100 women who desire to assist Commander A. B. Hoff, U. S. N., the official cable censor at New York, in carrying out the new regulations regarding the outgoing cables from the United States applied for enlistment in the navy yesterday as chief yeoman and yeoman. The women who are accepted will have the rank and pay of the grade in which they serve. At the headquarters of the Naval Reserve, 26 Cortlandt Street, the offices were crowded with women anxious to enlist in the service of the country. Lieutenant Wright said at noon that the required number of stenographers, bookkeepers, typists, and clerks had been recruited, and that the waiting list numbered more than 100 women.

Lieutenant Wright added that while the clerical and stenographic force had been recruited, there are positions open for women who can qualify as linguists. These women will also be enlisted in the Naval Reserve as yeomen and will receive a monthly salary of $74.

C. VANDERBILT, JR., ENLISTS.

Son of Colonel, Now 19, Is Private, Assigned to Ammunition Train.

Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., son of Colonel Cornelius Vanderbilt of the Twenty-second Regiment of Engineers, has enlisted as a private in the New York National Guard, and will be mustered into the Federal service for fighting in France. He has been assigned to the ammunition train under command of Colonel Frank H. Hines, but it is probable that he will be transferred to the headquarters troop of military police and dispatch bearers, also under command of Colonel Hines.

The enlistment of young Vanderbilt, who is 19, is the end of a long struggle with his mother for her permission for him to accompany his father to France. He was in the naval training school at Newport last year, but thought he would prefer to be a soldier. He made great efforts to reach the border last Summer when his father was stationed there, but his mother would not consent.

GIVE BRIDE LIBERTY BONDS.

Miss Alice Peltz Weds Lieut. W. H. Wells of 47th N. Y. Infantry.

The marriage of Lieutenant Walter H. Wells, Forty-seventh New York Infantry, and son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert W. Wells of Elmhurst, and Miss Alice M. Peltz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Peltz, also of Elmhurst, L. I., took place at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the East Room of the Waldorf-Astoria. The bride's only attendant was her sister, Miss Florence E. Peltz, and the best man was Lieutenant Albert Smith, Forty-seventh New York Infantry.

The Rev. Percy F. Edrop, chaplain of the Forty-seventh, performed the ceremony. After a brief furlough Lieutenant Wells and Mrs. Wells expect to go to the point where he is stationed in this State, his regiment having been mustered into the Federal service directly after war was declared here. Mrs. Wells's father has for more than twenty years been a member of the staff of The New York Herald. The bride's gifts from both the bridegroom and her parents were Liberty bonds.

TURMOIL IN SPAIN IS MORE MENACING

Government Takes Steps to Prevent Assembling of Rump Parliament Today.

MEMBERS PREPARE TO MEET

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MADRID, (via London) July 18, [Dispatch to the London Daily Chronicle, transmitted indirectly].—Since the last republic, Spain has never passed through a crisis so grave and menacing as this, or more obscure. Senor Dato, the Prime Minister, is a patriotic politician, whom every one thought weak, but who has been showing that he has plenty of energy. Lovers of Spain, however, would like at this moment not too much energy, but rather clear sight and firmness without useless severities, which only help to make the situation more critical.

Official declarations to the effect that there is nothing alarming are contradicted, by the fact that the censorship is more implacable than the Spanish press was ever subjected to before. A good deal of the present uneasiness of public opinion is due to the forced silence of the newspapers.

Fifty per cent. of Spaniards hold that their country is and must remain outside of the war, yet 90 per cent. of the population is suffering all the privations of combatant countries. Since last month the situation has become one of extreme delicacy. The demands of the army, which were fair enough on the whole, have been satisfied for the moment, and various demands of railway men and State employes have been at least listened to. No doubt this sort of trouble will be settled when the Government has the necessary millions in its possession, but the real evil will still subsist if present methods are continued.

Regionalism Now Chief Issue.

At this moment "regionalism" overshadows everything. The desire of the provinces of Vizcaya, Aragon, and Andalusia for home rule is becoming the dominant queston. On Monday last deputies representing Vizcaya, Guipuzcoa, and Alava in the Cortes met at Vittoria and proclaimed the necessity of a grant of autonomous government to the Basques.

In Catalonia the problem is much graver and seems to threaten a violent outbreak. A collision has taken place between the Madrid Government and the Catalan M. P.'s; the first result has been a miracle—to create a party tune of "sacred union" in Catalonia. The radical leader, Señor Lorroux, and Señor Cambo, head of the Catalan League, who but yesterday were bitter enemies, are today working together in full accord.

Call Rump Parliament Today.

The Catalan representatives, supported by the whole public opinion of the Catalian provinces, have met at Barcelona and decided to make an appeal to all members of the last Cortes to come to Barcelona on Thursday and hold a "consultative" sitting of the Cortes there. Catalans say their invitation is only for an unofficial assembly of the members of Parliament, but the Government is opposed to any such meeting and is prepared to prevent it even by force. Already many provincial M. P.'s have left for Barcelona, among them Señor Melquiades Alvarez, leader of the Reformist party, and Señor Iglesias, the well-known leader of the Socialists.

All Spain is awaiting Thursday with intense emotion. If an irregular session of the Cortes is prevented without violence, the Dato Cabinet will emerge with increased prestige. Every moment now is full of gravity. The feeling in Catalonia is one of wild excitement.

Señor Cambo has proposed a national Cabinet of concentration, but the Prime Minister refuses this. Rapid developments are to be expected.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Sentiment Depressed by Uncertainties at Washington—Steel Trade Slow.

The waiting attitude induced by uncertainty over the outcome of the vexatious discussions, in Congress and out, is becoming more pronounced day by day. Yesterday much was heard in the financial district of the inadvisability of proceeding at this time with any new plans for expanding enterprises or attempting any long-term financing. The chief factor in the situation, as Wall Street views it, is the matter of price fixing, but the failure to agree on the new taxation program is a close second in holding up new financing. Business in many lines is naturally affected by doubt as to the ultimate policy which will be adopted by Congress and is slowing down pending the final decision. The steel trade, so far as development of new business goes, has almost come to a standstill. With the Administration authorities endeavoring to get producers to agree that private consumers shall have the benefit of any low prices made for Government purposes there has been brought about a postponement of all but the necessary buying until the Federal Trade Commission shall have finished its inquiry into costs. Mill output has been at a less rate in July than in June, and June showed a considerable falling off from May. The Iron Age states that a direct result of the conference at Washington last week between Government heads and the committee of steel manufacturers has been an abrupt checking of business in iron and steel. The investment market outside of municipals and other tax exempt issues is very dull owing to the unsettled question as to what the net yield of taxable securities will be after the income tax has been talked into final shape. As a result, corporations are having recourse to the market for short-term issues on a large scale.

Yesterday's stock market was rather dull and heavy with some considerable declines in issues picked out by professional traders for attack on unexpected unfavorable developments. American Hide and Leather preferred lost 6⅛ on a rumor that the dividend will be reduced or omitted, while St. Paul lost 5¼ for much the same reason. Directors of the latter company are to meet on July 26 to act on the dividend and, although the earnings outlook is more favorable with the prospect of a big crop movement, there is an expectation in banking quarters that the directors may lower the rate. General Electric lost 4¼ points on announcement of the company's forthcoming sale of $15,000,000 of short term notes, while Delaware & Hudson, which is also to make use of three-year notes in lieu of a bond offering, declined 2 points. Maxwell motors common continued its slump, closing off 3¼ points at 33½, after selling at one time at a new low record at 31¾. The second preferred declined 2½. United States Steel lost 1½, closing at 120⅝. One of the few railroad stocks to move counter to the general current was Denver & Rio Grande preferred, which recovered 3¼ points on an intimation that the company is making good progress in negotiations looking to an agreement with the creditors of the Western Pacific for a settlement of the judgment awarded the latter.

That the investment demand for corporation issues is only holding off until the question of new taxes is settled was indicated yesterday by the prompt response to the offering of $47,500,000 New York City 4½s. Investors are naturally favoring tax exempt municipals now and a substantial part of the new issue has already been disposed of.

LONDON MARKET EASY.

Argentine Rails Buoyant—American Sales Low.

LONDON, July 18.—Money was easy today and discounts were dull.

In the stock market renewed strength was shown by gilt-edged issues on investment buying. Argentine rails were buoyant on rumors of increased freight charges. The market in general was cheerful. Russians were exceptions, being influenced by the latest news and the sharp rise in exchange. Most of the speculative issues were firm. Canadian silver mines were prominent. There were occasionall sales of low-priced American stocks.

Prices Firm on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, July 18.—Prices were firm on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes 60 francs 70 centimes for cash. Exchange on London 27 francs 18 centimes. Five per cent. loan 88 francs 50 centimes.

FAVOR SHORT-TERM NOTES.

General Electric Company Arranges for Sale of $15,000,000 Worth.

Pending the settlement of the income tax question and the reawakening of the market for long-term bonds expected to follow, more corporations are taking care of needs for new money through offerings of short-term notes. The General Electric Co. has arranged with a banking group, including J. P. Morgan, Lee, Higginson, and others, for the sale of $15,000,000 of three-year 6 per cent. notes, which, it is expected, will be offered for subscription on a 6¼ per cent. basis. Considerations which led to the decision to resort to a short-term issue were thus explained by the company in an announcement made yesterday:

> The General Electric Company, whose practice it has always been to maintain a strong position with respect to cash assets, has just arranged a loan of $15,000,000 for three years to provide for the demand of a largely increased business.
> The company expended nearly $9,000,000 upon additional plant facilities during the year 1916, and like expenditures for the present year will be considerably greater. Apart from this, its inventories have naturally greatly increased, and the slowing down of collections in the existing unsettled conditions will result in a more than normal increase in its accounts receivable.
> The quick assets of the company, as shown by its last annual report, excluding securities, amounted to $97,000,000. Against this it had indebtedness, excluding current liabilities, of $12,000,000.

It was also reported yesterday that the Chicago & Western Indiana was in the market for $15,000,000, to be provided through a sale of one-year 6 per cent. notes to J. P. Morgan & Co. and associates. The company has an issue of $13,935,000 of two-year 5 per cent. notes maturing Sept. 1 next, holders of which will have an opportunity to exchange their notes for the higher interest-bearing issue.

To Discuss Shipping Problem.

Representatives of many of the largest civic and commercial organizations in the East have been invited to attend a meeting to be held today at 3:30 P. M. under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York.

"The meeting," said Eugenius H. Outerbridge, President of the Chamber of Commerce, "is for the purpose of considering the extremely critical condition which surrounds the shipping problem, and the question of policy to be adopted by the United States in its building program."

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

To Help Next Loan.

The American Institute of Banking, which is a "section" of the American Bankers' Association, and has a membership of about 22,000 in its seventy-eight chapters, is preparing to co-operate with the authorities in the next Liberty Loan campaign. E. G. McWilliam, the President, has advised all the chapter heads to organize committees, but has placed stress on the desirability of the institute working under the main Liberty Loan committees of each Federal Reserve district, instead of undertaking to run independent campaigns. George E. Allen, the educational director of the institute, after completing the work in New York, started out last night on a visiting trip to all the out-of-town chapters. His first stop will be Chicago, and it is his plan to explain to the various chapters exactly what the institute expects to do in connection with the Liberty Loan campaign.

Conference of Financiers Ends.

The informal conference of representatives of Liberty Loan committees and Federal Reserve Banks of the six Eastern districts, which began on Tuesday, was continued yesterday. Most of the time was devoted to receiving and discussing reports of several sub-committees that had been appointed to consider specific topics. After adjournment it was announced that a report would be prepared for Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo.

Timid Bears.

Depression was so pronounced on the floor of the Stock Exchange yesterday that brokers wondered that prices did not fall away more easily. If the floor traders had shown the courage of their convictions they would all have been sellers of stocks. When a bear got another bear off to one side to compare notes the amount of discouraging information which they exchanged was appalling. Here and there a professional went after a particular issue which he thought ought to sell down, but most of the traders thought discretion the better part of valor. It has happened before, and undoubtedly will happen again, that the best time to buy stocks is when every professional advises selling them.

Two Markets, Two Prices.

Traders frequently have cause to remark that stocks, like anything else, are worth not what the owner asks but what the buyer is willing to give for them. At the weekly auction sale in the Vesey Street Salesroom yesterday 100 shares of Weyman-Bruton common sold at 215¼. This issue is listed on the Stock Exchange, but is not active, and the last sale reported, made at 281, took place on Sept. 5. Recently the stock has been offered at 270, with no bid.

Exchanging Loan Certificates.

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York made public yesterday a telegram it had received from the Treasury Department in respect to the issuance and exchange of interim receipts for Liberty Loan bonds. The message stated that the Treasury would, without charge, issue bonds in whatever authorized denominations that may be requested against the surrender of equal face amount of full paid interim certificates of any denomination. Moreover, it pointed out that no charge would be made for the exchange of interim certificates of one denomination for interim certificates of another denomination. Secretary McAdoo's original announcement states that a charge might be made for the interchange of definitive bonds, but thus far the Treasury Department has not indicated whether or not a charge would be made. The New York Federal Reserve Bank has not yet completed its work of issuing interim certificates, less than one-half of the total required having been distributed to date.

Savings Certificates in England.

More than $400,000,000 has been obtained by the British Government in war savings certificates sold to the small investor, according to a statement made recently in the House of Commons. The certificates were first issued on Feb. 19, 1916, and the figures for the sales are up to and including June 16 of this year. The war savings certificate is issued by the Government and sold for fifteen shillings and sixpence ($3.72.) At the end of five years the certificate is redeemable at £1.

"Financing War by Inflation."

"Financing the war by inflation," says The London Economist, "increases the cost of war, makes the Government borrow in depreciated currency sums that it will some day repay in money, which, we may hope, will have returned to a more normal level of buying power, throws the cost of war on those least able to bear it by putting what amounts to an indirect tax of something like 100 per cent. on many articles of common use, so produces a bad spirit in the country which is full of suspicions of profiteering, turns exchanges against us, and so faces us with a serious problem on the day when the submarine no longer protects our gold store by raising the cost of shipping gold. The system is so foolish and so unjust that it could only be described as criminal if it were deliberate. It is not, of course, deliberate, but has been drifted into owing to the dilatory slackness with which our war finance has been throughout conducted, culminating in Bonar Law's budget with its fresh taxation and borrowing in much the same proportion as Falstaff's halfpenny worth of bread to 'an intolerable deal of sack.' It arises simply because the Government, not having the courage to tax us as we ought to be taxed in such a time, or the energy to take continuous toll of our consuming power by effective appeals to us to save, limps along the line of least resistance by inducing the Bank of England and the other banks to create credits for us against Ways and Means advances, Treasury bills, and other securities that it plants on them. Thus it has developed a convenient system of temporary financing, that was used with good effect in peace times, into an engine of currency debasement, with all its evils and iniquities."

A New View-Point on Old Bonds

Unusually low prices for high-grade listed railroad bonds do not represent loss of confidence on the part of large investors.

Why big investors have been sacrificing securities which have been in strong boxes for years, and how their liquidation offers particular purchasing incentive to the small investor are explained in Circular J-15—"War Tax Opportunities."

STEEL BUYING HALTS PENDING NEW PRICES

QUOTATIONS ARE KEPT DOWN

Much Speculation as to Effect of Price Fixing on the Market for Finished Products.

New buying in the iron and steel trade has been brought almost to a standstill by the announcement that producers will be expected to accept prices to be fixed by the Federal Trade Commission after an investigation into the present costs of production, which prices, in the belief of the President, should also be extended to private consumers. The Iron Trade Review says today:

"While Washington labors with the intricacies of price regulation, the iron and steel market continues to present the appearance of suspended animation. New business, except for Government requirements direct or indirect, has been held up largely. Similarly, the upward climb of prices has been stayed. Whether or not the open trade is to share with the Government the benefit of the lower prices is the crux of the situation from a market standpoint."

The Iron Age says:

"The vague ideas the trade has entertained for some weeks of possible readjustments that would have far reaching effects were sharpened into real prospects by the President's message to business calling for the same prices to the public as those fixed by the Government. Steel producers have expected to accept special prices from the Government and to have its requirements take up an increasing share of their output; but Chairman Gary in his address to the Iron and Steel Institute late in May said that they also expected that as costs of production were advancing the Government would be willing to increase its purchasing prices accordingly. The conference at Washington not only pointed in the other direction, but also foreshadowed an effort by the Government to get like low prices for its Allies.

"The effect on buyers was just what was to be expected. Throughout consuming industries the one policy is the postponement of buying until the Federal Trade Commission's cost-finding inquiry is finished. That a real readjustment of prices will begin in the interval of two or three weeks required by the commission is not likely, since it is well known that first concessions do not produce business, but there has been a tendency to weakening in the past week in pig iron, scrap and coke and the trade has not found it difficult to believe that the crest had been reached and passed.

"There is much speculation as to the effect of Government price fixing on the market for finished products in which its purchases are a negligible fraction of the output, as rails, pipe, and tin plate. For plates and shapes, in which Government requirements will be large, it is recognized that the private buyer would pay dearly if there were no regulation of the price for what remained for general use.

"It does not appear to what extent ore, coke, and pig iron prices are to be subjects of the Government's regulation, since it will not be a buyer of these, having already covered its pig iron wants for the present at a low price. Coke readjustments presumably will come with lower coal, and such readjustment will be welcome, as coke has gone to five or six times the basis of ordinary times.

"A practical effort by the leading producer to hold prices in check has developed in the wire trade. The American Steel and Wire Company, which has continued to sell wire nails at $3.20 while the market has gone to $4, has indicated to jobbers that a reasonable profit to the latter is 50 cents, rather than $1 and as high as $1.50, as charged in some cases. The result has been a readjustment to a $3.75 to $4 basis in jobbers' sales to the retail trade."

TELLS OF LOAN'S PUBLICITY

Guy Emerson Explains Work Done in This District.

Guy Emerson, Secretary of the Sub-Committee on Publicity of the Liberty Loan Committee for the Second Federal Reserve District, issued a forty-eight-page illustrated report yesterday on the publicity work done in connection with the flotation of the first United States Government Liberty Loan of 1917. The pamphlet describes in detail the organization of the Publicity Committee and the various organizations which co-operated with it. In the appendix there appear the names of the men and women who gave their time to the work of the committee, the list including clerks, stenographers, telephone operators, and office boys.

The book also contains fac-similes of the advertisements used by Jay Cooke during the civil war.

Total bank resources U. S.	$32,166,000,000
Total bank resources 2d Fed. Res. District	9,686,000,000
Percentage bank resources in 2d District to total in U. S.	30 1-10%
Total amount subscribed in U. S.	3,035,000,000
Total amount subscribed in 2d District	1,200,000,000
Percentage of amount subscribed in 2d District to total amount subscribed in U. S.	39½%
Percentage of population in 2d District to total population of U. S.	11 4-5%
Total population U. S.	110,000,000
Total individual subscribers in U. S.	4,500,000
Percentage of individual subscribers in U. S. to population of U. S.	4%
Total population 2d District	13,000,000
Number of individual subscribers in 2d District	1,500,000
Percentage of individual subscribers in 2d District to population of 2d District	11½%
Percentage of individual subscribers in 2d District to total individual subscribers in U. S.	33 1-3%

From this it will be seen that, with 30.1 per cent. of the bank resources of the United States and 11.8 per cent. of the population, the Second Federal Reserve District offered 39½ per cent. of the money subscribed to the first $2,000,000,000 of the Liberty Loan and 33 1-3 per cent. of the individual subscribers; 4 per cent. of the total population of the United States subscribed as compared with 11½ per cent. of the population of the Second Federal Reserve District.

COMMODITIES PRICES

WHEAT.

The fact that farmers in the Winter wheat belt are storing their wheat rather than sell it under prevailing conditions has brought about a very tight cash position, and yesterday shorts in the Chicago market took fright and bid prices up 13@19c in an effort to cover. Apparently shorts have been holding out in the expectation of hedging sales against new crop, and are now very nervous regarding developments. The July position showed the greatest strength, while September was up in sympathy. At best, the volume of business was not large, and prices advanced on bids for very moderate sized lots. The reports from Washington that an amendment to the Food bill provides for a minimum price of $1.75 for wheat may have had considerable influence on the market, although farmers are believed to consider $2 a more acceptable figure. The local cash market was strong and nominal, with No. 2 hard Winter wheat quoted at $2.55, free on board, Gulf.

CORN.

The strength in the cash corn market again exerted a bullish influence on prices and early the market worked up 1c to 8½c. Shorts were good buyers and there was more or less buying on further complaints of cool nights throughout the belt. Toward the close there was a partial reaction under profit-taking, and final quotations were ⅞c to 1½c net higher. In the local cash market No. 2 yellow corn was quoted at $2.11¼ nominal, cost, insurance, and freight, New York, while No. 2 mixed was offered on resale at $2.06.

OATS.

The oats market was moderately active and prices were firmer, closing ⅝c to 1c net higher. Shorts were good buyers, and the market felt the influence of the strength in Winnipeg, where there was a good demand on reports of damage by drought to the Canadian crop. The local cash market was strong; standard quoted at 83½c; No. 2 white, 84c; No. 3 white, 82@83c; No. 4 white, 81@82c; fancy clipped white, 88@96c; ordinary clipped white, 81@84c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

The provision market was weak and lower under quite active liquidation, which uncovered stop-loss orders. The hog market was easier, and much of the selling was said to be due to a very slow cash demand. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 29,000; estimated for today, 22,000. Kansas City received 7,000 and Omaha 15,000.

COTTONSEED OIL.

The market for cottonseed oil experienced a violent break during yesterday's session, closing with net losses of 91 to 100 points. There was active selling early on the weakness in lard and owing to the slow cash trade and general heaviness in fats and greases. On the decline stop loss orders were uncovered, and this precipitated a general liquidating movement. Total sales for the day were 53,800 barrels. Range of prices:

COFFEE.

After an easy opening, in which prices were 1 point lower to 1 point higher, with a very small trade, the coffee market developed moderate activity and quite a sharp advance, especially in the late afternoon, when prices sold up 3 to 10 points above the morning low level, with the close generally 3 to 7 points net higher. Sales in the local market amounted to 31,250 bags.

The spot market was steady, with only a moderate demand at unchanged prices, Rio No. 7s being quoted at 9⅝c and Santos 4s at 10⅛c. Cost and freight offers were scarce. A bid of 9.60c for Santos 3s and 4s, London credits, was accepted. Range of prices:

SUGAR.

The sugar futures market opened firm, 5@7 points higher, being somewhat under the influence of the strong spot market at the start. Local trade interests gave early support, which held values within a narrow range up to midday, when profit-taking set in, and prices rapidly sagged off, the close being 1 point net higher to 6 points net decline, the weakness being mostly in the very late positions. Total sales amounted to 17,150 tons, some of which represented switching operations, September to December and July to December. Range of prices:

The market for refined sugar was firm in sympathy with raws, and prices were advanced by one refiner to the basis of 8c for fine granulated. The list, however, still ranged from 7.50@8c for fine granulated. There was a good inquiry reported, and it was said that during the past few days quite a large export business was done, some placing the amount as high as 25,000 tons. Local refiners showed further interest in offerings, and it is estimated that the total sales will run close to 150,000 bags Cubas, from store and in various positions up to late August shipment, at 5⅛c cost and freight, equal to 6.64c duty paid, which is the highest price since October a year ago. There was also a sale of 25,000 bags Porto Ricos at 6.52c cost, insurance, and freight. These sales were thought to have cleared the market of all offerings. Spot quotations follow: Centrifugal, 6.64c; molasses, 5.76c; cost and freight, 5⅛c.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKETS.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday 16,134 packages. General trade quiet. There were some purchases for storage and to fill a navy order, which tended to prevent much change in values for the better grades. There is an increasing supply of lower qualities, and these can be bought somewhat cheaper. Renovated quiet. Ladles and packing stock holding up pretty well, with moderate trade. Creamery, higher than extras, per pound, 38¾@39½c; extras, (92 score,) 38½c; firsts, (88 to 91 score,) 37¼@38¼c; seconds, (83 to 87 score,) 35@37c; thirds, 34@34½c; creamery, unsalted, higher than extras, 40@40½c; extras, 39@39½c; firsts, 38@38½c; seconds, 36@37½c; State dairy, tubs, finest, 38@38½c; good to prime, 36¼@37½c; common to fair, 33@36c; renovated, extras, 36@36½c; firsts, 35@35½c; lower grades, 33@34½c; imitation creamery, firsts, 35@35½c; ladles, current make, firsts, 34@34½c; seconds, 33@33½c; lower grades, 31½@32½c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 33@33½c; No. 2, 32½c; lower grades, 31@32c.

EGGS.—Receipts yesterday, 21,845 cases. General market is quiet and there is pressure to sell the bulk of the supply offering, most of which shows more or less defective quality and deteriorates rapidly with holding. There is continued scarcity of new laid eggs, and any lots that show a good to large proportion of such are taken at sustained prices. Other grades are pressed for sale, with prices in buyers' favor. The greater part of the business in Western eggs is at a range of 32@35½c, some very inferior goods offering lower. Nearby white eggs of strictly fancy quality are in light supply and firm; medium and ordinary lots move slowly at irregular prices. Fresh gathered, extras, per dozen, 38@39c; extra firsts, 36½@37c; firsts, 34@35c; seconds, 31½@34c; thirds and poorer, 27@31c; dirties, No. 1, 31@32c; No. 2 and poorer, 25@30c; checks, good to choice, dry, 29@30c; undergrades, 23@28c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby Western, hennery whites, fine to fancy, 42@43c; ordinary to good, 33@41c; Western and Southern, gathered whites, 35@39c; (State, Pennsylvania, and nearby, hennery brown, 40@42c; gathered brown and mixed colors, ungraded, 35@38c.)

THE COTTON MARKET

Steady Tone Prevails Throughout the Day, with a Net Gain of 9-31 Points.

A steady tone prevailed in the cotton market throughout yesterday's session, with prices in the early part of the day about 20 points net higher in the case of new crop months, with July contracts 30 points higher on covering. In some quarters it was believed that unless the Southern freight situation improved materially, some of the nearer new crop positions would likely show relative strength in the near future. During the midafternoon July contracts were offered at 150 points above October.

The weekly crop and weather report was somewhat conspicuous for the emphasis it placed upon the smallness of the plant over a good part of the belt. It was said, however, that cotton was excellent in Texas, where there is sufficient moisture, this being contrary to many private advices received from that State, which continued to assert that Southern sections were still suffering from drought. So many conflicting reports were received from the Southwest that the trade was more or less confused as to the real situation there, but did not seem to feel that the outlook was as serious as reported by one crop expert, who was quoted as saying that Texas was in the worst condition on record for this date. Those who were trying to anticipate the next Government report favored an increase in condition to around 71 or better. The Eastern belt had further showers and according to the official forecast was to receive more in the next twenty-four hours, which was regarded by many as being unfavorable in view of all the rain that has fallen east of the river in the last few weeks.

The market opened steady at a net decline of 1 to 5 points. It was the quietest opening in a long time and throughout the entire day there was no large trading either way. July in the final hour sold at 26.90, or 36 points over the previous night, which carried the advance in October to 23 points over the close and in December to 24 points. Final prices were a little under the top and from 9 to 31 points net higher.

GENERAL ELECTRIC COMPANY

THREE-YEAR 6% GOLD NOTES

Dated July 1, 1917 Due July 1, 1920

Interest payable January 1 and July 1

Coupon Notes in Denominations of $1,000, $5,000 and $10,000 registerable as to Principal

Apart from these $15,000,000 notes the only debt of the Company is represented by $12,047,500 Debentures.

During the last fifteen years the Company has paid cash dividends at a rate of 8% per annum upon its capital stock, which during that period has been increased, from time to time, from $24,910,000 to the present outstanding amount of $101,512,500.

For the years ended December 31, 1915 and 1916, the Company reported the following figures

Total sales billed	$85,522,070	$134,242,290
Net income applicable to interest	12,307,995	19,160,973
Interest charges	570,086	571,445

Net earnings available for interest in 1916 amounted to more than thirty-three times the Company's interest requirements. While the issuance of the above notes will increase the Company's interest charges $900,000 annually, the Company expects the Income Account for 1917 to show a material increase over 1916.

WE OFFER THE ABOVE NOTES FOR SUBSCRIPTION AT 99¾ AND INTEREST TO YIELD ABOUT 6.10 PER CENT

Subscription books will be opened at our offices, at 10 o'clock A. M., Thursday, July 19th, and will be closed at 3 o'clock P. M. the same day, or earlier in our discretion.

The amount due on notes allotted and the date of payment will be given in the notices of allotment.

The right is reserved to reject any and all applications, and also, in any event, to award a smaller amount than applied for.

Temporary notes will be delivered pending the preparation of the definitive notes.

J. P. MORGAN & CO. LEE, HIGGINSON & CO.

The foregoing figures are based on statements believed to be accurate, but are not guaranteed.

Dated July 19, 1917.

Short Term Notes

We believe that to-day the short term notes of prosperous American corporations are a most attractive form of investment, because they offer:

(1) A maximum of safety,
(2) Ready marketability,
(3) High income return,
(4) Suitable maturities.

Probably no class of securities has a more active and stable market, and as maturity date approaches, they are generally in great demand by banks, which buy them just as they would commercial paper. This demand usually has a tendency to bring the market price to par, or slightly above, some months before maturity. As money rates seem to show a tendency to decline, it does not seem unreasonable to expect that this will soon be reflected in higher prices for these earlier maturities.

The issues listed in our "Special Letter" we believe, are amply secured and sure of payment at the due date. They command a close and active market, and yield most attractive returns to the purchaser.

GOVERNMENT BUYING WOOL.

BOSTON, Mass., July 18.—The American Wool and Cotton Reporter will say tomorrow:

"Fine wools, reported to be for Government purposes, were the feature of the market for the week under review. Large quantities of fine capes sold from 55 to 60 cents per pound and fine territory sold readily when obtainable. The feeling in regard to the Government's taking over the control of wool seems to be dying down. The declaration of peace is the only thing which can substantially affect the market. It is generally thought it will be stronger in this event.

"All important in the course of the cotton crop and cotton market now is the weather. The market declined during the week under review on news of rains where needed, but in some quarters it was felt that the recession was due or partly due to disappointment in regard to peace developments in Germany.

"The cotton goods market is relatively more inactive than for a number of weeks and indications are that the market has reached the top for the present. Mills are well sold up and the situation may remain steady, but a buyer would be rather foolish to place any large orders at present. The outlook is not for much higher prices. Present indications are that domestic distribution will be relatively smaller than it has been. Large special buying is holding up the market. If this is withdrawn the market may become decidedly weak."

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Prices on the Consolidated Stock Exchange ended in retreat. Closing quotations for many prominent issues were at or near their lowest. Earlier in the day there had been temporary firmness displayed by the general list, broken, however, by spots of special softness. More than 41,000 shares of United States Steel common were dealt in, with the low price of that stock on the Consolidated 120½. It closed at 120⅝. This was after it had opened at 121⅝, down ⅛ of a point from its closing on Tuesday, and it early sold as high as 122¼. St. Paul was one of the early weak features.

IMPORTS HERE GROW.

But War Cuts Trade from Europe—Puzzling German Entries.

A compilation of J. H. Lant, Chief Statistician of the Custom House, made public yesterday, showed that while imports here from all the world last month exceeded in value the imports of the same month a year ago, the increases were from grand divisions other than Europe. European entries in June were, however, of greater value than in May.

The Custom House report showed that total imports from all sources in June were $154,901,984, against $143,090,866 in the corresponding period of 1916. This compared with merchandise worth $118,850,759 entered in May, a noticeable improvement in volume and value being apparent last month.

European merchandise brought into this port last month was valued at $50,775,671, compared with $53,835,403 in June, 1916, and $39,290,549 in May of this year. Textile and other imports from England in June had a value of $21,792,964 or about $600,000 in excess of May entries. In June a year ago English imports here were returned at $22,120,117. Scotch and Irish imports increased in June when compared with May, and were ahead of last year's totals.

Germany is credited with having sent $3,206 worth of merchandise into the port last month, but customs offcials declined to throw light on the character of the Teutonic goods or to explain how the entries could be made while this country was at war with the Imperial Government. In May, German imports were returned at $10. Austrian goods entered at the Custom House here last month were appraised at $16,994.

France and Italy both gained in entries here in June compared with May, while Dutch imports were $600,000 ahead of the May record, but $3,686,000 below those of June, 1916. The June French imports were valued at $9,217,562, and those from Italy at $4,436,936. Netherlands shipments were listed as having a value of $2,834,622 in June, whereas in the same month one year ago their value was $6,520,588. Belgium, which before the war did a big import business at New York, was credited with entries here in June valued at $2,147. Russian imports, both from Europe and Asia, were much restricted.

Spain and Switzerland gained in imports in June, compared with the month before, and June, 1916. So-called "North American" imports, covering inbound cargoes from Canada, West Indies, and Central America were less in June than in the corresponding month of 1916. Raw material imports gained from South America, Asia, Oceania, and Africa, when compared with June of last year.

RAILROAD SELLS ITS MINES.

The Pennsylvania Transfers Hard Coal Interests to Hanna & Co.

PHILADELPHIA, July 18.—The Pennsylvania Railroad Company announced today that it had sold all its anthracite mining properties and collieries to M. A. Hanna & Co. of Cleveland. The terms of the sale were not made public.

The sale is one of the most important transfers of anthracite coal properties in recent years and is the result of a determination by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company several years ago to divest itself of interests not directly concerned in the transportation service. The greater part of the company's hard coal property was operated by the Susquehanna Coal Company, whose entire capital stock was owned by the Pennsylvania Railroad. The company mined about 5 per cent. of the entire anthracite production.

It is understood here that the Delaware & Hudson Company, which has extensive mining interests in the northern anthracite fields, had a long-time option on the property, but sought certain concessions which the Pennsylvania Railroad would not yield.

German Munitions Plant Blows Up.

AMSTERDAM, July 18.—The Neues Tagblatt of Stuttgart, Germany, reports that on Saturday a great explosion occurred at the Whilhelm Weiffenbach factory. The building was destroyed, neighboring houses were damaged greatly, and windows were broken in the nearby village of Suedheim.

5% General Mortgage Bonds

Bonds of this issue dated April 1, 1903, are secured by mortgage on the Suburban Railway property and are guaranteed as to both principal and interest by the United Railways Company of St. Louis by contract and endorsement on each bond.

The pending negotiations between the City of St. Louis and the United Railways Company are progressing and call for such a reduction in the capitalization of the United Railways Company as to render advisable the organization of a protective committee for these bonds.

The undersigned, owning and representing a large amount of the bonds, believe that the bonds should be put under the control of a protective committee to secure a concert of action and a definite policy, and have consented to act as such committee. We ask the holders of these bonds to promptly deposit them with the Mississippi Valley Trust Company of St. Louis, or New York Trust Company of New York City, depositaries under an agreement dated July 12, 1917. Some Big Single Payments.

Some idea of the amount of merchandise used by the J. C. Penney Company, Inc., in the 177 stores it now operates in the Far, Middle and Southwest, may be gained from the size of the single payment checks sent out in the last few months. One check drawn to the order of a big shoe concern was for $179,000. Several "shoe" checks for $65,000 have been drawn. A recent check in payment for certain dry goods was for $117,200, and another, also for dry goods, called for $95,280. Dry goods payments as large as $65,000 are made quite frequently.

Clothing Stocks Being Cleaned Up.

Although a month ago the clothing retailers were rather fearful that much larger stocks than usual would have to be carried over to next year, business has shown such improvement during the intervening time that it is now believed only a normal surplus will remain. The unusually late Spring, bearing with it cold and rainy weather, held up retail business to a serious extent. The outlook has become much brighter, especially during the last couple of weeks, and by the time the Summer sales are over the retailers feel their shelves will be well cleared.

Gaining Time on New Discounts.

According to an authority in the coat and suit trade the new terms calling for payment in ten days if the 2 per cent. discount is desired does not preclude an end of the month dating. In fact, as he pointed out, no mention of dating is made, so that it is quite possible and within the letter of the agreement to date the bill ahead as far as the buyer might care to and the manufacturer permit. No objection has been raised by the association officials, it was said, to end of the month datings which would really make the 2-10 terms in reality 2-10 and the whole or any part of the month.

Lull in Women's Wear Trade.

Until the conference between the wholesalers and the retailers on the question of the new discount is over, the present lull in the women's wear trade is expected to continue. The associated houses are not the only ones to feel the effect of indecision on the part of buyers. As far as could be determined yesterday, the firms outside the association are feeling the slack to an equal extent. Orders for merchandise that is needed immediately are, of course, coming in regardless of terms, but buyers have shown a disposition to hold off on future needs until the important discount matter is settled.

Fewer Clothing Models.

The sentiment among the clothing retailers, in regard to limiting the number of models, fits in very well with the policy suggested by administration officials as a war-time measure. The retailers have freely expressed themselves on the subject to manufacturers who brought out so many lines last season. It is safe to say that the wholesalers will bear these opinions in mind when it comes time to prepare lines for next Spring. The large showing of models was especially evident this year in the overcoat branch, where the variety of styles overwhelmed buyers. A manufacturer's representative said yesterday that he had spent one whole day helping a buyer select $5,000 worth of overcoats.

Gray Goods Sales Small.

No improvement in buying was apparent in the local gray goods market yesterday. Sheeting sales consisted largely of odds and ends, though the aggregate yardage disposed of in this way was said to be pretty fair. In the printcloths most of the selling was done by second-hands, the mills again being unwilling to meet buyers' price views. Even these sales, aside from some 38½ inch 64-60s at 10½ cents for July-September shipment, were small and without feature. Closing mill prices were:

39-inch, 80-80s	14¼c	38½-inch, 64-60s	10⅝c
39-inch, 72-76s	13¼c	38½-inch, 64-56s	10½c
39-inch, 68-72s	12c	38½-inch, 60-52s	9½c
39-inch, 56-44s	8¼c	38½-inch, 60-48s	9¼c
38½-inch, 64-64s	11c	27-inch, 64-60s	7¼c

Are Having Fabric Troubles.

More than one complaint is heard these days among dress manufacturers regarding the way deliveries are coming through. One concern, which had ordered a quite liberal supply of a certain kind of silk, received only twenty pieces of it in six weeks. The silk being badly needed, other measures were about to be taken to get it when the remainder of the goods arrived in a single shipment. The silk manufacturer put the blame on the finisher. In another case a dress man needed some piece-dyed silks in a hurry. So he bought a good quantity of them in the gray, paying a big price to have them given a special finish and rushed out. They were a success, so he decided to try it again. This time, however, though the same finisher was employed and a similar finish was desired, the silk came out in very poor condition and had to be resold at a loss. So it looks as if the dress men are "up against it" from both sides.

One Way to Check Returns.

Apropos of the seven-day limit put on returns of merchandise by local stores, a man who is interested in a chain of Western retail dry goods establishments told yesterday of one way to check them without putting any time limit on. "We probably show a smaller percentage of illegitimate returns than any other concern in the country," he said. "The reason for this is that we don't deliver anything. Because of this there is little shopping for fun or to impress a companion on the part of our patrons. When a woman knows that she must not only carry her purchases home, but also carry them back in case she wants to return them, you may be pretty sure she will make no returns unless something is wrong with the goods. In that case the return cannot be called illegitimate. While deliveries are doubtless imperative in New York, charging for them might have the same effect in checking returns as our no-delivery system."

Spring Dress Goods Prices High.

In spite of the fact that this is considered a general era of high prices, it is doubtful if many jobbing buyers were prepared for the advances shown by the quotations given out yesterday on the Spring, 1918, lines of dress goods made by the Pacific Mills and marketed through Lawrence & Co. of this city. Especially sharp were the rises on the better, wide, all-wool fabrics. The new price on the 54-inch all-wool French serge is $1.60, according to information gained in the trade, against $1.05@1.07½ last year. For the 54-inch all-wool poplin $1.80 is asked, compared with $1.07½@$1.10 at this time in 1916. Other comparative prices, the new figures being given first in each case, follow: 41-inch cotton-warp French serge, 70 cents—55 cents; 50-inch all-wool storm serge, $1.27½—about $1; 36-inch all-wool storm serge, 70 cents—55 cents; 36-inch cotton-warp storm serge, 55 cents—about 45 cents. About 120 numbers were priced in all.

BUY THROUGH THE TIMES.

When an out-of-town storekeeper finds that it is inconvenient for him to come to New York to buy goods, let him send a prepaid day lettergram to The New York Times, giving particulars of his needs. These details will be embodied in a small advertisement which will appear the following morning on the Business Page of The Times. The cost for this service is 50c for each line of 6 words.—Advt.

DISCOUNT CONTROVERSY.

Makers and Retailers of Women's Wear to Confer on It.

Four of the leading associations in the women's wear trade yesterday agreed to a conference with representatives of retail organization that have protested against the action of the manufacturers in establishing a uniform discount rate. The old terms called for 10 per cent. off in 10 days and have been revised so that only 2 per cent. is now taken off for payment in the same time. When the change was made the retailers and resident buyers complained that the arbitrary decision of the wholesalers would upset their present system of doing business, and asked that the date for putting the new discount into effect be postponed pending the result of a conference between the two sides. The postponement was not made, but the manufacturers agreed to a conference.

The conference to be held will be between a committee representing the Retail Dry Goods Association, the National Garment Retailers' Association, the Greater New York Apparel Merchants, and the National Retail Dry Goods Association and a similar committee from the Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers' Protective Association, the Dress and Waist Manufacturers' Association and the Merchants' Ladies' Garment Association, Inc., and the New York Separate Skirt Manufacturers' Association.

The Wiz Dress Company, a member of the Dress and Waist Manufacturers' Association, has come forward with the suggestion that the controversy over discounts might be settled by making the old terms of 10-10 the uniform rate. In an announcement to the trade, the company states that it is willing to make a formal request for a general membership meeting of the association in order to discuss the suggestion. Arthur Liebes, connected with the company, said yesterday that going back to the old terms is only a matter of arithmetic, since the retailers have expressed themselves as willing to have the disputed 8 per cent. difference added to the price of merchandise.

NOT SELFISH, SAY STEEL MEN

Their Attitude Toward the Wooden Ship Controversy Explained.

The steel interests have no selfish motive in hoping to see General Goethals have his way in the construction of steel ships for the new American merchant marine, according to the head of one of the country's largest steel concerns, who said yesterday that his company had a ready market for the structural material it expected to furnish to General Goethals, and at a higher price. It is known that the United States Steel Corporation has rejected bids for steel at a price $7 a ton higher than the price expected to be fixed for the material for the merchant marine.

"As far as the steel companies are concerned," this man said, "if they were actuated only by a desire to make a profit, they would like to see Mr. Denman have his way and all the ships be built of wood. They can get more money for their steel than the Government will pay for it. They can get from $5 to $11 a ton more for it right now.

"But steel men know that the ships should be built of steel. Why have steel ships been built for the past quarter of a century and wooden ships relegated? Why have railroads built steel cars and scrapped wooden cars? It is simply because the steel ships and the steel cars are better. If the proposed ships are built of steel they will be an asset to the nation after the war, in addition to being of incalculably better service for the primary purpose for which they are to be built. They talk of building the ships in sections, so that a torpedo will not sink one of them by puncturing one section. But burst a hole in a wooden ship and she will splinter from end to end. This is only one of the reasons why wooden ships won't do."

GAS MERGER APPROVED.

New Jersey Commission Grants Permit to Cumberland Gas Company.

TRENTON, N. J., July 18.—Subject to certain conditions the State Board of Public Utility Commissioners has approved the merging of a number of gas companies in Cumberland. The newly formed company, known as the Cumberland Gas Company, will take over the Millville Gas Light Company, Citizens' Gas Company of Landis Township, Citizens' Gas Light Company of Vineland, Commercial Gas Company, Maurice River Gas Company, Downe Township Gas Company, Lawrence Gas Company, Fairfield Gas Company, Deerfield Gas Company, and Pittsgrove Gas Company.

The company is allowed to issue $200,000 in stock in exchange for a similar amount of Millville Gas Light Company stock, and may issue a $1,100,000 mortgage.

Drug Demand Was Fair.

Drug and Chemical Markets will say today that the demand for some commodities has been active of late, particularly for glycerine and grain alcohol, and inquiries in some instances have broadened. Business was limited, however, because of small stocks and the uncertainty in regard to future supplies. Many difficulties have come up in connection with export licenses. Numerous advances in prices have occurred, including those for grain alcohol, antipyrine and mercury. Declines were fed in number and limited in extent.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

One of the old family holdings in the upper Washington Heights section, on Riverside Drive, was sold yesterday to a syndicate of operators for future sale or improvement with apartment houses. The property has been owned by the Foster family for nearly seventy years. It comprises about twenty-five lots, fronting on the westerly curve of Riverside Drive, just above 158th Street, and running through to the north side of that street. The plot begins a short distance from the junction of those thoroughfares, at what is practically the Riverside Drive extension, the old Lafayette Boulevard. The frontage is 288 feet on the Drive, 317 feet on 158th Street, with a depth of 115 feet on the easterly line, and 230 feet on the westerly line.

The sale was made by Macomb G. and Pell W. Foster, heirs of Caroline M. Foster, who sold it for her estate. Two old frame houses of generous proportions are on the property, the northerly one near the Drive having been the Foster family home for years, while the southerly one, at 647 West 158th Street, was erected by the late Mrs. Foster, about thirty years ago, as a wedding gift to her son, Pell W. Foster.

The buying syndicate is headed by Harry London.

Two Upper West Side Deals.

The William S. Dempsey Realty Company purchased from the Washington Place Building Company the two recently completed five-story flats, 608 to 614 West 189th Street, occupying a plot 100 by 100. In part payment the buyer gave 326 and 328 West Twenty-first Street, two five-story tenements, 25 by 92 each. The John J. Peel Company negotiated the trade.

Mattie Salinger purchased for investment the five-story apartment house, occupying a plot 92.3 by 25 by irregular, on the southeast corner of 133d Street and St. Nicholas Avenue, from the Twenty-six West Sixty-third Street Corporation.

Investor Buys Midtown Loft.

An investing client of Harris & Vaughan has purchased from the Victoria Holding Company 132 and 134 West Twenty-second Street. CANADA—Muskoka Lakes.

Get away to happiness—away to the nerve-resting, pine-scented, sleep-giving air of the Muskoka Lakes. There you will find this Hotel the cheery rooms, good food, golf, tennis, everything, that makes life worth while. Passport not required. No head tax. Royal Muskoka, P. O., Lake Rosseau, Ont.
Royal Muskoka

Horace Greeley said it:
Abraham Lincoln sanctioned it:
Woodrow Wilson advised it:
The United States Government invites it:

"GO WEST—YOUNG MAN—GO WEST!"

But the invitation applies to both young and old, for the

is soon to offer you an opportunity to purchase valuable 40—80—160 acre tracts of land in Southeastern Oklahoma.

Here is your chance. Here is your opportunity to throw off the shackles of dependency. Here you can own your own land on easy YEARLY payments made to the Government of the United States, every cent of which will be paid by it to the Choctaw and Chickasaw Indians. Here in the center of the vast midcontinent oil belt—here in the midst of the rich mineral lands—here in the very heart of one of the richest cotton, wheat, grazing, timber and vegetable growing territories of the world you can become as independent as the hundreds of men who have become tremendously rich.

The opportunity is open to you—it is offered to you by the United States Government—the Government invites you to become an owner—on easy terms—of a tract of this wonderful land—land that is surrounded by oil belts that are producing more than one-quarter of the world's supply of oil—land that is within one to ten miles of progressive market towns and railroads.

Will you be independent? Will you throw off the cares and trials of a life of effort and worry? Will you listen to the story of Roy Johnson—a printer; Edwin Galt—a clerk; A. T. McGee—a carpenter—each of whom made a cold million dollars on an investment of $175 apiece? Do you care to know about M. Musselman, a Syrian rug peddler, who paid $300 for 72 acres and is today worth $2,500,000?

If you are tired of a humdrum existence—if you believe that Woodrow Wilson or Abraham Lincoln was right—if you care to open for yourself the possibility of a fortune, investigate the opportunity that is brought to your very door today.

If you have one drop of red, throbbing blood in your body—if you have one atom of patriotism in your system—here is your chance to answer the call of "Back to the Farm." Where the crops grow big and twice a year, where the soil is from two to fourteen feet deep—where these lands have formerly sold at from $3 to $7 an acre, and on easy yearly payments—you can be happy and secure in the thought that you and your family are independent of all the world.

Will you answer the call of patriotism? Will you take the advice of Abraham Lincoln, Woodrow Wilson and Horace Greeley? Will you buy land at this exceptionally low price in the midst of the world's greatest productive territory?

TAKE THIS INTO CONSIDERATION: OKLAHOMA HAS MADE MORE MILLIONAIRES THAN ANY OTHER TERRITORY IN THE WORLD TEN TIMES ITS SIZE.

You do not have to go to Oklahoma to purchase this land. You do not have to live on nor improve the property. You deal with the United States Government. If oil is discovered on your property the oil concerns are compelled by Oklahoma Law to pay you ⅛ of all the oil taken therefrom. By a system of maps, charts, descriptions, etc., you choose your own land in just the location you desire—and if you are dissatisfied at any time within one year you may receive your money back.

Will you take advantage of this greatest opportunity of modern times? Will you grasp the chance to look the world in the face and say "I'm independent"?

If so—investigate every detail of this opportunity to satisfy yourself. Visit the Exhibition and Information cars now in this city at the expense of the McAlester Real Estate Exchange of McAlester, Oklahoma. Come to the cars and see the exhibits of wheat, corn, peaches, apples, onions, etc., etc., grown upon lands sold by the United States Government. See the charts—the plans—the photographs of lands now under cultivation—listen to the true stories of successes in the Oklahoma Fields—tales that read like Arabian Nights—but which you can easily verify for yourself.

Take advantage today of this wonderful opportunity to learn about Oklahoma—for the Exhibition cars must leave here shortly to bring their message to the people in all parts of the United States. Don't delay—for you cannot afford to throw away the chance to become posted as regards what the United States Government is doing for the Red Man.

No Land Is Sold on The Exhibition Car

But you can make arrangements for a purchase of a tract of this land.

Advice and information is freely given, however, and you may ask questions to your heart's content. Cars open daily from 9 A. M. to 9 P. M.

WHITMAN INDORSES FUSION'S PROGRAM

SEEK A DISTRICT ATTORNEY

Leaders May Ask the State's Executive to Name His Own Candidate for That Place.

With the selection of candidates for members of the Board of Estimate out of the way, Fusion leaders turned their attention yesterday to a discussion of candidates for the other offices, principally the judiciary and the District Attorneyship. It was the opinion of the leaders that the choice of Mayor Mitchel, Controller Prendergast, Robert Adamson, and Borough President Marks by the Nominating Committee on Tuesday night constituted the strongest possible ticket with which to fight Tammany Hall this year, and that from now on many prominent Republicans would follow in the footsteps of Charles E. Hughes and enthusiastically indorse the ticket.

Governor Whitman, who was in the city, removed all doubt as to where he stood in regard to the ticket when he came out strongly in favor of the Fusion program. He expressed himself as satisfied with the renomination of Mayor Mitchel and Controller Prendergast and predicted their election.

"Of course, I favor the Fusion movement," said the Governor in reply to a question. "I always have favored it. After all, it is a question of Tammany or anti-Tammany, and I believe the Republican County Chairmen are acting in an unselfish manner in their program. I indorse that program heartily. I do not regard it as my duty to recommend any individual. It would not be proper for me to say that Mayor Mitchel, James C. Cropsey, or any one else should be named. I will say, however, that, while I am an admirer of Fire Commissioner Adamson, who is apparently to be named for President of the Aldermen, I do not believe the Republicans are getting a fifty-fifty deal, because Mayor Mitchel is a Democrat, and if for any reason he should cease to be Mayor another Democrat would take his place."

The Governor, it is said, believes Justice Cropsey will find it expedient within a few days to announce that he is not a candidate for the Mayoralty. For him to persist, the Governor thinks, would mean that the chances of defeating Tammany would be jeopardized. More than anything else, the Governor is interested in the District Attorneyship situation. He is anxious to see a capable and efficient Republican nominated for the place. The Governor discussed this situation with a number of callers yesterday, including Republican County Chairman Samuel S. Koenig. It is said that the Fusion leaders will consult with the Governor before a candidate is named, and he may even have the naming of the candidate himself. Among those already discussed for the place are Isidor Wasservogel, who was four years in the District Attorney's office and served as Acting District Attorney under Mr. Whitman; Henry A. Wise, former United States District Attorney; John Kirkland Clark, a former Assistant District Attorney; Robert W. Bonynge, President of the Republican Club, and John A. Delehanty, who, although an independent Democrat, is a close friend of Governor Whitman.

Among those who conferred with the Governor on political and other matters during the day were Republican National Chairman William R. Willcox, Colonel William Hayward, Oscar S. Straus, Chairman of the Public Service Commission; former Representative Richard Young of Brooklyn, F. J. H. Kracke, Commissioner of Plants and Structures; George W. Perkins, Public Service Commissioner Charles S. Hervey, Henry L. Stoddard, and John C. Clark. Mayor Mitchel and Controller Prendergast were out of the city yesterday.

"It is always flattering to receive an indorsement of my administration such as that extended to me last night by the Nominating and Executive Committees of the Fusion Committee of 1917," said President Marks. "I have not fully weighed the proposition and will await the platform and other facts before deciding on my course."

Edison Sub-Stations

In the sub-stations of the Company, now numbering thirty-four, the electric current as generated at the great Waterside power plants is transformed into the electric current as distributed throughout the City and safely used by the smallest as well as the largest consumer, for light, heat and power. These stations contain not only the machinery by which the transformation takes place, but storage batteries of large capacity, which insure a degree of evenness in the regulation of pressure and a continuity of service obtainable by no other means

As one indication of the remarkable electrical development of the City, there are required no less than ten of these sub-stations in the district lying between Eighth Street and Fifty-ninth Street and the two Rivers, containing many of the theatres, the large department stores and the Great White Way

The black spots on the outline map indicate the location of these stations, and the Company's great coal storage plant on the New Jersey shore. This birdseye view well suggests the enormous extent of the Edison system which contributes so materially to making this the greatest industrial and manufacturing centre of the world, and establishes our right to call New York "The City of Light"
